DAVID GREENE HASKINS, JR., A.M., LL.B.

By Henry Edwards Scott, A.B., of Medford, Mass.

David Greene Haskins, Jr., of Wayland, Mass., scholar, lawyer, and public-spirited citizen, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1869 and Recording Secretary of the Society from 1873 to 1890, was born at Roxbury, Mass., 5 March 1845, the son of Rev. David Greene and Mary Cogswell (Daveis) Haskins, and died at his home in Wayland 23 September 1926.

Robert[1] Haskins, his immigrant ancestor of the Haskins surname, came to Boston, according to family tradition, in the early part of the eighteenth century. According to one story he came to New England from Virginia, where he left numerous relatives; according to another account he came to Boston directly from England, accompanied by a brother, who went to Virginia, where many of the name were found in later years. Robert Haskins married in Boston, in 1728, Sarah Cook, daughter of Philip Cook of Cambridge, Mass., and died of smallpox about 1730, leaving an infant son. His widow was married secondly (intention recorded in Boston, 22 October 1747) to Thomas Hake.

The son, John[2] Haskins, who was born in Boston 12 March 1729 and died there 27 October 1814, was in early life a cooper, in partnership with his stepfather, became later a distiller, and acquired considerable property, chiefly in real estate. His house was on Rainsford's Lane, now Harrison Avenue, and his land extended from that street to Washington Street, opposite the Boylston Market. He was active in military affairs before the Revolution, and was lieutenant and, as early as 1772, captain of a company in Col. John Erving's Boston regiment. In the agitation leading up to the outbreak of the Revolution he apparently sympathized with the Whigs; but he remained in Boston while it was besieged by the Patriots, taking, however, the oath of allegiance to Massachusetts immediately after the British evacuated the town. He was a strong Episcopalian, and worshipped for many years at King's Chapel; but he opposed in 1785 the plans for making changes in the prayer book there used, protested, with others, against the subsequent ordination of Rev.

James Freeman, and thereafter attended Trinity Church. He married at Malden, Mass., 12 March 1752, Hannah Upham, who was born 25 April 1734 and died in Boston 18 September 1819, daughter of Phineas and Hannah (Waite) Upham of Malden. She was a descendant of Dea. John Upham, who was at Weymouth, Mass., as early as 1635 and was afterwards of Malden, of Capt. John Waite of Malden, and of John Howland, the Pilgrim. She bore to her husband sixteen children, of whom the oldest son, John,[3] A.B. (Harvard, 1781), A.M. (ib., 1784), studied medicine, but abandoned this profession for a business career and died in 1840, while a daughter, Ruth, was married to Rev. William Emerson of Harvard, Mass., and became the mother of Ralph Waldo Emerson, who was named Ralph for his mother's youngest brother, Ralph Haskins.

Ralph[3] Haskins, the youngest child of Capt. John Haskins, was born in Boston 5 April 1779, and was baptized in Trinity Church the next day. He was educated at the Boston Latin School, entered the office of Theodore Lyman, a leading merchant of Boston, was supercargo on a Boston ship, the Atahualpa, on a voyage to the northwest coast of North America, the Sandwich Islands, and China (1800–1803), and became himself in time a merchant, a shipowner, and a manufacturer of New England rum and of cotton and woollen cloths. He experienced various reverses of fortune, was involved in protracted litigation growing out of a sale of land made in 1791 by his father as administrator of an estate, and spent the later years of his life, after his retirement from active business, on his farms in Roxbury and Dorchester. A Federalist in early life and opposed to the War of 1812, he became later a Democrat. He was one of the first members of the Boston Hussars, an exclusive cavalry company organized in 1810, in which he rose to the rank of first lieutenant; he was a member of Trinity Church and subsequently helped in the establishment of St. James's Church, Roxbury; and, on 7 April 1847, he was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society and continued as a member until his death, which occurred at his home in Roxbury, 9 November 1852.* Mr. Haskins's wife, whom he married in Boston 24 March 1814, was Rebecca Greene, who was born at sea, on a voyage from Boston to Antigua, British West Indies, 7 December 1785, and died in Boston, at the home of her eldest son, Ralph, 2 August 1873, in her 88th year, the eldest daughter of David and Rebecca (Rose) Greene of Boston. Her father, David Greene, A.B. (Harvard, 1768), A.M. (ib., 1771, and Yale, 1772), was a Boston merchant, a descendant of John Greene, who was an associate of Roger Williams in the Providence Purchase and the founder of a family eminent in the history of the Colony and State of Rhode Island. David Greene was a Loyalist in the Revolution, and, forced to leave Boston, went to England and later to Antigua, where he engaged in business and married Rebecca Rose, daughter of John Rose, a merchant and provost marshal general of that island. He returned to Boston after peace was made, and established himself again there in mercantile pursuits, dying in 1812. Ralph and Rebecca (Greene) Haskins were the parents of five children, of whom the eldest, Rebecca Rose, died when a year and a half old, the second, Ralph, a civil engineer, farmer, and real-estate agent, was a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1875 to 1880, inclusive, the third, David Greene, was the father of the subject of this memoir, the fourth, Rebecca Greene, became the wife of Professor Charles C. Jewett of Brown University, who was afterwards librarian of the Smithsonian Institution and superintendent of the Boston Public Library, and the youngest, Charles, was an architect and died in Boston in 1869.*

Rev. David Greene[4] Haskins, A.B. (Harvard, 1837), A.M. (ib., 1840), S.T.D. (Columbia, 1877), born in Boston 1 May 1818, died at Cambridge, Mass., 11 May 1896. He married at Portland, Me., 20 December 1842, Mary Cogswell Daveis, who was born at Portland 27 March 1820, eldest daughter of Hon. Charles Stewart and Elizabeth Taylor (Gilman) Daveis of Portland, her mother being a daughter of Hon. John Taylor Gilman of Exeter, N. H., who was thirteen times elected Governor of New Hampshire. In his boyhood David Greene[4] Haskins attended the school of his cousin, Ralph Waldo Emerson, in Roxbury. He entered Harvard in 1833, when he was only fifteen years old, and after his graduation taught for two years in the academy of his uncle, Charles W. Greene, at Jamaica Plain, where he had been prepared for college. For three years, 1841–1844, he was preceptor of the academy at Portland, Me. Meanwhile he had begun his studies for the ministry, and in 1839 spent part of a year as a student at the Andover Theological Seminary. He continued his theological education later, under the private instruction of Rev. Dr. M. A. De Wolfe Howe, afterwards bishop of Central Pennsylvania, and also carried on a private school for girls at Roxbury. He was ordained deacon in the Protestant Episcopal Church by Bishop Henshaw of Rhode Island in 1847 and priest by Bishop Eastburn of Massachusetts in 1848. His first charge was at Gardiner, Me., but soon he went to Medford, Mass., where, in 1848, he founded Grace Church, of which he was rector until 1852. Then for ten years, 1853–1862, since a vocal weakness interfered somewhat with his work as a minister, he conducted successfully a school for young ladies, known as Concord Hall, in the South End of Boston. In 1862, when his son entered Harvard, he moved from Roxbury to Cambridge, where he resided for the remainder of his life, and, returning to active work in the ministry, founded the Church of the Epiphany (now St. Margaret's Church) in Brighton, Mass., and was its rector from 1862 to 1866. In 1866–67 he was general agent of the executive committee of the Church for missions, and in January 1868 became chaplain of the McLean Asylum for the Insane, then situated in Somerville, Mass., an office which he held for two years. In 1873–74 he spent fifteen months, with his family, in travel in Europe, and on his return founded St. John's Church in Arlington, Mass., of which he was rector until 1880. He was the author of several books on religious and educational topics,* he was elected, in 1866, an honorary member of Phi Beta Kappa (Harvard Chapter), and his eminence as a teacher and churchman was recognized by his selection in 1876 as dean and professor of ecclesiastical history in the Theological School of the University of the South, at Sewanee, Tenn., a position which he declined, although he accepted a complimentary appointment as commissioner of education at the same university, and by the bestowal on him by Columbia University, in 1877, of the degree of Doctor of Sacred Theology. In his later years, from January 1889 on, he had charge of St. Bartholomew's Church in Cambridge. On 6 January 1869 he and his son, David Greene Haskins, Jr., were elected resident members of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and he retained his membership until his death, serving the Society for several years as chairman of the Committee on Papers and Essays and from time to time as a member of special committees. Of his five children, the oldest, Charles Stuart Daveis, and the third, Elizabeth Taylor Gilman, died before their father, while the second child and son, David Greene Haskins, Jr., and the two youngest daughters survived him.†

David Greene[5] Haskins, Jr., the subject of this memoir, was prepared for college at the Roxbury Latin School, under its famous principal, Augustus H. Buck, and, entering Harvard in 1862, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1866. His father resided in Cambridge while the son was pursuing his college course, and the latter lived at home during all but a few weeks of this period. He attained high rank in his college work, standing eighth for the course in a class of one hundred and thirteen and winning membership in Phi Beta Kappa. In October 1866 he entered the Harvard Law School, and, after completing the usual three-years course, was admitted by the University to the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1869. He received the degree of Master of Arts from Harvard in 1872, and was enrolled in the Harvard Graduate School in 1872–73.

Mr. Haskins began the practice of his profession in Boston in 1870, and maintained an office there until his death; but he resided in Cambridge — for many years in the house in which he had lived as an undergraduate — until the end of June 1915, when he moved with his family to Wayland, Mass., his home for the remainder of his life. Soon afterwards he wrote to the secretary of his college class, who was collecting material for the fiftieth anniversary report of the class: "We have nearly five acres of beautiful hilly land, with a large variety of trees, and are thoroughly enjoying the country air and life, in an unspoiled New England village." As a lawyer he devoted himself chiefly to conveyancing, probate business, collections, and the care of property.

*His volume entitled "Ralph Waldo Emerson: His Maternal Ancestors, with Some Reminiscences of Him," Boston, 1887, should also be mentioned here.

†See memoir of David Greene[4] Haskins in REGISTER, vol. 51, pp. 79–80, and in Memorial Biographies of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, vol. 9, pp. 331–333, Boston, 1908. Cf. also Memorials of the Class of 1837 of Harvard University, pp. 99–101, Boston, 1887.

From his early days Mr. Haskins was deeply interested in historical and genealogical research, literature, and public affairs. Elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society on 6 January 1869, when he was not yet twenty-four years of age, he served the Society as Recording Secretary for seventeen years (1873–1890), wrote the memoir of his grandfather, Ralph Haskins, previously referred to in this article, and in 1897 contributed to the REGISTER (vol. 51, pp. 141–150) a scholarly biography of his maternal grandfather, Hon. Charles Stewart Daveis of Portland, Me., which is of great genealogical as well as biographical interest. At the stated meeting of the Society on 6 October 1920, a few months after the seventy-fifth anniversary of its incorporation (18 March 1845), the topic selected for consideration was "The New England Historic Genealogical Society: Its Past, Present, and Future," and, by invitation of the Committee on Papers and Essays, five members of the Society spoke on different subdivisions of this title. Mr. Haskins was the first speaker, and in his address, prepared after careful and painstaking research in the records, he gave an exceedingly interesting narrative of the "Early History and Growth of the Society," which was printed in full in the REGISTER (vol. 75, pp. 66–69), in the published account of the "Proceedings" of that meeting. He was prominent also in the work of the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati, holding there the office of assistant secretary, and later, from 4 July 1890 until his death, that of secretary. He was early elected a corresponding member of the Maine Historical Society, and was at one time recording secretary and subsequently vice president of the Prince Society.

A Democrat in national politics and a warm supporter of his party, Mr. Haskins never allowed his interest in the past to interfere with his active participation in the discussion of the political problems of the present. Opposed to the retention by the United States Government, after the War with Spain, of the Philippine Islands and to its treatment of Santo Domingo, Haiti, Porto Rico, Cuba, and the republics of Central America, he was a member of the Anti-Imperialist Committee of Correspondence, June–November 1898, and one of the founders of the Anti-Imperialist League, being a member of the Executive Committee of that organization and, since September 1900, treasurer of its New England branch. In 1899 he was one of the editors of The Peace Crusade, and in August 1900 he was a delegate to the Liberty Congress at Indianapolis. He also served about the same time as chairman of the Executive Committee of the Massachusetts Reform Club, and he was a member of the Massachusetts Peace Society. In 1904 he was the Democratic candidate for Congress from the Eighth Massachusetts District, but was not elected. He belonged to the Twentieth Century Club and to the American Bar Association, and his religious affiliations were with the Protestant Episcopal Church.

A college classmate of Mr. Haskins, a coworker with him in behalf of some of the causes that were especially dear to his heart, has characterized him as "an able, scholarly, earnest, high-minded, clear-headed man, . . . not fitted for controversy, not inclined to push himself, not ambitious, but of very distinct opinions, to which he adhered steadily and which he was always ready to defend." As a lawyer "he was retiring, not seeking large acquaintances, not enjoying the combats which play so large a part in legal practice, very particular to see that justice was done to his opponent as well as his client. . . . He was a man of the purest character, highly respected by all who knew him, who pursued the even tenor of his way throughout his life."

Mr. Haskins married, 30 April 1907, Amy Webster Field, daughter of Pearson Howard and Caroline Webster (Stone) Field of Dorchester, Mass., who survives her husband, together with their only child, David Greene Haskins, 3d, of Wayland, who was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 1 November 1927 and is thus of the fourth generation of the family, in direct succession from father to son, to hold membership in the Society.

TIMOTHY WILLIAMSON OF MARSHFIELD, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS

By Grace Williamson Edes of Cambridge, Mass.

20. George[5] Williamson (George,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), born at Canterbury, Conn., Wednesday, 22 Nov. 1786, died at Pittston, Me., 1 Feb. 1860. He married at Gardiner, Me., 19 Mar. 1820, Martha Jewett, born at Gardiner 28 Dec. 1791, died at Southport, Me., 21 Jan. 1892, aged 100, daughter of Daniel and Betsey (Tarbox) Jewett.

Like his brothers, George Williamson desired a college education, with the intention of becoming a physician. His uncle, Ebenezer Williamson, however, whose natural shrewdness was not diminished by his alliance with the astute Foster family (his wife was sister of the consort of his brother George), dissuaded him from the plan. Being childless, he was anxious to avail himself of filial attentions from one of his nephews, and he persuaded George to move to Pittston, where he had recently established himself, holding out alluring inducements in the way of future testamentary advantages.

In 1808 George Williamson was at Bangor, "a famous school-teacher universally liked," writes his brother William to their parents; and, having been appointed deputy sheriff, he thought of abandoning his school wholly for the duties of the latter office. He retained both occupations, however, but later settled at Pittston, the home of his uncle, Ebenezer. His uncle, however, died intestate, and any hopes which George may have cherished in regard to his property were not fulfilled.

In 1814 George Williamson was sergeant in the militia, in Capt. P. D. Bailey's company, Lieut. Col. J. Stone's regiment, and was stationed at Wiscasset, Me., from 11 to 25 September. The letters written by him to his brothers William and Joseph, between all of whom there was a very warm affection, show a sense of humor, in addition to keenness and penetration, and his handwriting might well serve as a copy-book model.

Identifying himself with the interests of Pittston, he bought a large farm in the town, and remained there, although his Uncle Ebenezer ultimately returned to Connecticut. The latter's three nephews were appointed administrators of his very ample estate, but all the labor seems to have devolved upon George, who settled the claims of the multifarious and widely scattered heirs with great skill and acumen.

Children, born at Pittston:

i. Helen,[6] b. 3 June 1822; d. unm. 28 Feb. 1904. She was one of the first women to study medicine, but never practised the profession.

ii. Emily, b. 24 Oct. 1827; d. at Danvers, Mass., 4 Sept. 1910; m. at Gardiner, Me., 15 Jan. 1867, Ephraim Forsyth, merchant, b. at Farmington, Me., 3 May 1811, d. at Gardiner 21 Jan. 1890, son of Alexander and Deborah (Norton) Forsyth. Residence, Gardiner. After Mr. Forsyth's death his widow made her home with her daughter.

Children (surname Forsyth):

1. Martha Williamson, b. 18 May 1869; m. at Cambridge, Mass., 22 May 1895, Charles Milliken Duren, b. at Chelsea, Mass., 26 Apr. 1870, son of Freeman Hyde and Helen Josephine (Milliken) Duren. Residence (1922), Swampscott. Mrs. Duren has contributed valuable articles to The Essex Institute Historical Collections. No children.

2. Alexander, of Fallon, Churchill Co., Nev., mining and metallurgical engineer, A.B. (Harvard, 1896), b. at Gardiner 5 Dec. 1872; m. at Port Henry, N. Y., 8 Aug. 1902, Eva Frances Sargent, b. at Nashua, N. H., 4 Apr. 1875, daughter of William Franklin and Minnie (Cullen) Sargent. He was prepared for college at the high schools in Gardiner, Me., and Chelsea, Mass., and was an undergraduate student at Harvard in 1891–92 and in 1893–1896. After receiving his degree at Harvard, he studied mining engineering in the Lawrence Scientific School there for one year, was instructor in metallurgy in the Missouri School of Mines for one year and professor of mining and metallurgy in the South Dakota School of Mines for two years, and then became superintendent of the Gordon-Tiger Mining & Reduction Company at Twin Lakes, Lake Co., Colo. He is now engaged in mill design and construction in the mining region of the West. Children: (1) George Williamson, b. at Victor, Colo., 3 Apr. 1903, d. 25 Aug. 1907; (2) Robert Dana, b. at Victor, Colo., 4 Sept. 1904; (3) John Swanton, b. at Victor, Colo., 10 July 1906, d. 25 May 1907; (4) Alexander, b. at Reno, Nev., 1 Oct. 1908; (5) Charles Duren, b. at Reno, Nev., 30 Dec. 1912.

iii. Martha, b. 30 Apr. 1831; d. 26 Mar. 1835.

iv. Mary, b. 7 Mar. 1834; d. unm. 18 June 1903.

21. Hon. Joseph[5] Williamson (George,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), of Belfast, Me., lawyer, public servant, A.B. (University of Vermont, 1812), A.M. (ib., 1815), honorary A.M. (Brown University, 1839), born at Canterbury, Conn., Wednesday, 5 Aug. 1789, and baptized by Rev. Ebenezer Bradford, pastor of the First Church of Canterbury, 23 Jan. 1790, died at Belfast 30 Sept. 1854. He married first, 7 Aug. 1821, MARY HUSE, who died at Belfast 21 Feb. 1822, of consumption, daughter of John (an early settler of Belfast) and Mehitabel Huse; and secondly, at her father's house in Newburyport, Mass., 14 June 1824, CAROLINE CROSS, born at Newburyport 5 Mar. 1797, died at Pittston, Me., 22 June 1852, of consumption, daughter of William and Ruth (Stacey) Cross.*

Joseph Williamson narrowly escaped being burned to death in the fire which destroyed his father's house at Amherst, Mass., one midnight in Mar. 1799. In 1808, being then of Woodstock, Vt., he entered the Freshman class of the University of Vermont, at Burlington, and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts there in 1812 and the degree of Master of Arts in course, in 1815. From time to time during his undergraduate days he taught school, but nevertheless found leisure for participation in various college activities. He belonged to a Greek-letter fraternity (Phi Sigma Nu), and, with five other students, presented an English drama on duelling. At the Junior Exhibition of 14 Nov. 1810 he delivered an English oration, and at Commencement, in July 1812, he not only took part in an English conference on "Painting, Musick and Poetry," but also was awarded the English Oration and the Valedictory Address. An example of the simple, thrifty customs of those days is seen in the offer of his sister Mary to spin and weave for him material for a suit of clothes, which might be dyed black and for which he could pay her whenever he might find it convenient.

Joseph Williamson studied law in the office of Frederic Allen, Esq., of Gardiner, Me., was admitted as an attorney at the Court of Common Pleas at Bangor, Me., in Jan. 1816, and immediately began the practice of his profession at Belfast. He was admitted as an attorney at the Supreme Judicial Court at Castine, Me., in 1818, and was appointed a justice of the peace in 1819 and a counsellor of the Supreme Judicial Court at Castine in 1820. In the same year he was appointed county attorney for Hancock County, a position which he held until 1827, when, on the establishment of Waldo County from part of Hancock County, including Belfast, he was made county attorney for the new county, and held this office in 1827–28 and again in 1831 and in 1841.

*Caroline Cross came to Belfast in 1823 to visit her aunt, Sarah (Cross) Johnson, wife of Rev. Alfred Johnson, generally known as "Priest Johnson." She was then in the full bloom of early womanhood, possessed remarkable beauty, charm, and refinement, was a woman of brilliant mind, and was unusually highly educated. It is small wonder that not only Joseph Williamson but also her cousin, Ralph Cross Johnson, followed her home to ask the honor of her hand, which she awarded to Mr. Williamson, who was first in the field and in her affections.

Her father, William Cross, Esq., master of the port of Newburyport, was the son of Gen. Ralph Cross of Newburyport, who served in the Revolution and commanded a regiment at the surrender of General Burgoyne. The Cross family were noted ship builders in Newburyport, and furnished several vessels during the War.

In Dec. 1822 he received the appointment of postmaster at Belfast, and served in this capacity until 1830. A Democrat in politics, he was elected a member of the Maine Senate from Waldo County for 1833 and 1834, and was president of that body in the latter year. In 1839 he was an unsuccessful candidate for Congress, and in 1840 he withdrew from the Democratic Party and became a Whig. Brown University conferred on him the honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1839.

For several years Mr. Williamson "edited a local paper, . . . delivered frequent speeches, lectures and addresses, and took a willing hand in every scheme for the education and improvement of his town and its inhabitants." * In 1820 or 1821 he delivered the Fourth of July oration at Belfast, and on 14 Nov. 1848 he lectured before the Belfast Lyceum on "The Importance of Practical Knowledge." In 1836 he was chosen as the first president of the Belfast bank, and in 1853, when Belfast became a city, he was elected the first president of the City Council.

In 1820, before his first marriage, Mr. Williamson bought a house in Belfast. In Oct. 1827 the once celebrated Mrs. Ann Royal passed a week in Belfast, and thus describes Mr. Williamson:

"Col. [sic] Joseph Williamson is one of the finest looking men in the place, and deservedly ranks among the highest. He is quite a young man, a fine figure, with a fair oval face, gay countenance and soft dark gray eye. In his deportment he is manly and dignified."†

In 1842 Mr. Williamson bought land on High Street, in Belfast, and proceeded to build a house. The house raising occurred in May 1844, and, according to the customs of the day, was celebrated as a festivity, the many who were present being regaled with a collation of crackers, fish, and, possibly, lemonade. The pleasant mansion, standing on a slight eminence at some distance from the street, with a lawn sloping up to it, and the residence of Hon. James P. White, built at about the same time, were long conspicuous as the handsomest houses in the village.‡

In spite of the remoteness of Belfast from any large centre in those days and for long afterwards, it enjoyed a remarkably cultivated society, in which Mr. and Mrs. Williamson played leading parts. The latter was very fond of music, for which she possessed a perfect ear, and several of her children

†Mrs. Ann Royal was a noted character in Washington for nearly forty years, and published several volumes of travel, descriptive of different parts of the United States. Her book in which Belfast is mentioned and its prominent residents described is entitled "The Black Book or a Continuation of Travels in the United States."

‡In an article published in the spring of 1920, in a Sunday issue of The Boston Herald, it was stated that both these houses were constructed from designs of the famous Sir Christopher Wren. These designs had been sent to America at the time when Mount Vernon and other old Virginia mansions were built, and, having for some reason been rejected, had lain forgotten for years. Mysteriously brought to light, they found their way to Boston, and two of them were bought by Mr. White and Mr. Williamson and were followed in the building of their houses.

inherited her musical talent. At one time she made the exhausting journey to Boston, in the depth of winter, to gratify her desire to hear Jenny Lind. Her unusual charm and graceful hospitality were recalled to her daughter, Mrs. Willard, forty years after her death by those who had enjoyed them while in Belfast.

For more than seventy-five years Mr. Williamson and his descendants held a pew in the present Unitarian Church in Belfast, which was erected as the result of a vote to build "a meeting-house" carried in 1818 in the ministry of Rev. William Frothingham.

In the unusually severe winter of 1832–33 Mr. Williamson attended the sessions of the State Senate at Augusta, and during his absence from home his wife nursed her children through the whooping cough and then herself developed a cough which led to the old-fashioned New England consumption, from which she suffered for twenty years. In spite of her impaired health, she set forth with Mr. Williamson in the early summer of 1852 on a journey to Cambridge, Mass., where their son, William Cross, was to deliver the poem at the graduation exercises of his Harvard class. Their first stopping place was at the house of their brother, George Williamson, at Pittston, Me., and there Mrs. Williamson grew rapidly worse and died in the early morning of 22 June. Her husband survived her for over two years, and died quietly while seated in his chair. Resolutions adopted after his death by the bar of the Supreme Judicial Court made mention of "his indefatigable devotion to his profession, and of the esteem in which he was held and of his unvarying amenity of manners."

Children by second wife, born at Belfast:

i. Mary,[6] b. 31 Aug. 1826; d. 2 May 1833, of scarlet fever. A portrait painted shortly before her illness depicts the prettiest and most winsome of little maidens, with a face of unusual intelligence and brightness.

54. ii. Joseph, b. 5 Oct. 1828.

55. iii. William Cross, b. 31 Jan. 1831.

iv. George Ralph, A.B. (Bowdoin, 1856), A.M. (ib., 1859), LL.B. (Harvard, 1860), b. 13 Apr. 1836; d. s.p. at Belfast 22 Sept. 1902; m. 10 Oct. 1884 Mrs. Emma (Ingraham) Sprague, b. at Easton, N. Y., 18 May 1847, daughter of William Hammond and Mabel Heath (Bliven) Ingraham and widow of Abram Pulling Sprague.

George Ralph Williamson was named for his mother's two brothers, George and Ralph Cross. Like his own brothers, he was prepared for college at the Belfast Academy, and, entering Bowdoin College, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1856 and that of Master of Arts in due course. He studied law with his brother Joseph, and later attended the Harvard Law School, graduating there in 1860. After a vacation tour in Europe he practised his profession for a while (1860–1863) in New York City, in the office of Addison Brown, A.B. (Harvard, 1852), LL.B. (ib., 1855), LL.D. (ib., 1902), who was a college classmate of his brother, William Cross Williamson, was subsequently a judge of the United States District Court in New York, 1881–1901, and died in 1913. Becoming weary of the law, he took up mining at Sacramento, Calif. (1863–1869), having accepted the position of superintendent of mines for the firm of Goss & Lombard, Mr. Lombard coming from Augusta, Me., and being his intimate personal friend. On his return to the East he lived for some years with his brother William's family in Boston, where he was treasurer of the Franklin Telegraph Company (1871–1874). Wishing to have a larger field of activity, he moved to New York City, and filled various important positions with the Postal Telegraph Company. In 1900 he retired from business, and, at the suggestion of his brother William, went back to Belfast where he bought a part of Lot No. 47 on Northport Avenue and there built his house. The place was called "Mile Tree Farm," from a beautiful elm which grew just outside the gate and served as a mile landmark from the centre of the city. For the brief remainder of his life he was very happy in his native city. He adapted himself to the life of the place, and was much gratified when his grains took prizes at the county fair. Mrs. Williamson, who passed her girlhood in Troy, N. Y., where she attended the Emma Willard School, has continued to live in Belfast since her husband's death, and has contributed interesting papers to the Alliance of the Unitarian Society.

v. Caroline Cross, b. 18 Dec. 1841; d. at Cambridge, Mass., 1 Apr. 1923; m. in Boston, Mass., at the house of her brother, William Cross Williamson, 16 Sept. 1868, Rev. James Freeman Clarke, S.T.D., officiating, Robert Willard of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1860), M.D. (ib., 1864), b. in Boston 8 Dec. 1838, d. there 6 Feb. 1892, son of Joseph and Susanna Hickling (Lewis) Willard.

Caroline Cross Williamson lost both her parents before she was thirteen years old, and her brothers Joseph and William, after giving anxious consideration to the subject of her education, decided to send her to the best private schools in Boston. From her mother she had inherited a taste for music, and her proudest moments as a little girl were when she was acting as accompanist for her brother William's singing or violin. She was an accomplished pianist, and could play anything that she had heard with a delicacy of touch rarely equalled. By the same brother she was early steeped in literature, in the American poets, Longfellow, Emerson, and Lowell, as well as in the beautiful German classics, then comparatively new to this country. She was apt and quick at repartee, and always had the apposite quotation at hand for every occasion. It was while she was living in the family of Joseph Willard, Esq., of Boston, that she met her future husband, in the person of his son Robert, then an undergraduate at Harvard. Immediately after his graduation at Harvard in 1860 they became engaged, but their marriage was delayed until after the Civil War and until Dr. Willard had established himself in his profession in Boston.

Robert Willard was a scion of one of the best known and most prolific New England families. His immigrant ancestor, Maj. Simon[1] Willard, was one of the founders of Concord, Mass., in 1635; the latter's son, Rev. Samuel[2] Willard, A.B. (Harvard, 1659), A.M. (ib., 1662), was pastor of the Old South Church in Boston and was acting president of Harvard College, with the title of vice president, from 1700 to 1707; Rev. Joseph[5] Willard, A.B. (Harvard, 1765), A.M. (ib., 1768), S.T.D. (ib., 1785), LL.D. (Yale, 1791), great-grandson of Rev. Samuel, was president of Harvard from 1781 until his death in 1804; and Joseph[6] Willard, A.B. (Harvard, 1816), A.M. (ib., 1819), LL.B. (ib., 1820), youngest child of President Joseph Willard and father of Dr. Robert Willard, was a lawyer, historian, and genealogist, clerk of the courts in Boston for many years, corresponding secretary of the Massachusetts Historical Society, and a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from the first election of members by the founders of the Society, on 21 Jan. 1845, to his death, 12 May 1865.*

Robert Willard entered the Harvard Medical School in Sept. 1860 and remained there as a student until Apr. 1862. Then, for a year, he was house physician at the Massachusetts General Hospital. On 1 May 1863 he was appointed acting assistant surgeon in the United States Navy, and was stationed at the Navy Yard at Charlestown, Mass. On 1 June 1863 he was commissioned assistant surgeon, and on 25 June 1863 was ordered to the U. S. steamer John Adams, then at Newport, R. I., which was to sail in pursuit of the Confederate bark Tacony. He was allowed to return to Boston to take a private examination for the degree of Doctor of Medicine, after the Harvard Commencement of 1863, and in Mar. 1864 this degree was conferred on him by his alma mater. In Aug. 1863 he rejoined the John Adams, and was on duty off Charleston and at Port Royal and Beaufort, S. C., until Nov. 1863, when he was transferred to the U. S. monitor Catskill, on blockade duty off Charleston. Detached from the Catskill in the spring of 1864, he was ordered in July 1864 to the frigate Susquehanna and thence in Sept. 1864 to the frigate Colorado, which took part in the two attacks on Fort Fisher, N. C., on 25 and 26 Dec. 1864 and on 13, 14, and 15 Jan. 1865. In Mar. 1865 he was ordered to the West Gulf Squadron, off Mobile, Ala., in Apr. 1865 to the Naval Hospital at New Orleans, La., and in June 1865 to the U. S. steamer Richmond, which finally brought him back to Boston. He resigned from the service on 13 July 1865, and in September of the same year began the practice of medicine in Boston.

As physician and surgeon he was connected at various times with the Massachusetts General Hospital, the Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, the Home for Aged Women, and the Adams Nervine Institute. About 1882 he gave up general practice and became one of the early specialists in ophthalmology, and he is therefore best known and remembered as an oculist. In his chosen specialty he was very successful, and he retained to the end of his life his connection with the Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary. At the height of his attainment he fell a victim to the grippe, from the effects of which he never recovered. He was beloved by his patients, was untiring in his tenderness to all in trouble, and bestowed his charity unobtrusively among the poor.†

After her husband's death Mrs. Willard, with her daughter, moved to Cambridge, Mass., the home of many of her girlhood friends, and there her house became a gathering place for old and young, where one was sure of a cordial greeting. For fifteen years she was chairman of the Post Office Mission of the First Parish Church (Unitarian) in Cambridge, and wrote many charming essays for its meetings, her style being easy, fluent, and always interesting.

Child (surname Willard):

1. Theodora, b. in Boston 15 Nov. 1870; living unm. in Cambridge. She is an artist, and, having been taught all nautical lore by her father, is especially happy in her paintings of boats and the salt marshes of the Massachusetts shore.

22. Samuel Joseph[5] Williamson (Joseph,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), born at Mayfield, N. Y., 21 Aug. 1799, died at Rochester, N. Y., 6 Aug. 1899, having almost completed his one hundredth year. He married first Harriet Rockwell,

*For a brief account of the ancestry of Dr. Robert Willard see the memoir of his sister, Susanna Willard, in Register, vol. 78, pp. 442–444. Cf. also the Willard Genealogy, 1915. In memory of Maj. Simon Willard a stained-glass window has been placed by his American descendants in the parish church at Horsmonden, co. Kent, England, where he was baptized 7 Apr. 1605.

who died before 1831; and secondly, at Rodman, N. Y., 22 June 1832, ANNA WILLIAMSON, born at Herkimer, N. Y., 22 Jan. 1806, died at Scriba, Oswego Co., N. Y., 28 May 1883, daughter of Christopher and Eleanor (Heustis) Williamson.*

When Samuel Joseph Williamson was about ten years old, his mother moved to Watertown, Jefferson Co., N. Y. The lad attained his growth so early that in 1812 he was as large as a man; and, when his mother's third husband, Henry Gardinier, was summoned to report at Sacketts Harbor, N. Y., where troops for the War of 1812 were quartered, and, being confined to his bed, was unable to go, the young Samuel Joseph shouldered his stepfather's musket, marched the twelve miles to Sacketts Harbor, and drilled in his place until the troops were ordered home again. Of course he was not in the battle.

During his early life he taught school, and his chirography is a fine specimen of old-fashioned penmanship. After his first marriage he lived at Orleans, Orleans Co., N. Y.; but after the death of his first wife he returned, with his small son Orange, to his mother, then living at Rodman, and made his home for a time with her. In 1820 he cast his first vote, and was for years a strong Democrat; but, when President Lincoln became a candidate for reëlection, he was persuaded to vote for him, being, no doubt, somewhat influenced by the fact that his son George was then serving in the Federal Army. After changing his party affiliations, he was wont to aver that the Republicans perpetuated the true principles of Jeffersonian Democracy. He was a man of deep religious feeling and an earnest student of the Bible. About 1893 he settled in Rochester, and lived there until his death. He and his second wife are buried at New Haven, Oswego Co., N. Y.

Child by first wife:

56. i. ORANGE,[6] b. before 1831.

Children by second wife:

ii. HANNAH JANE, b. 23 May 1833; d. 11 July 1834.

iii. ELLEN ELIZA, b. at Rodman, N. Y., 22 Feb. 1835; d. at New Rochelle, N. Y., 29 Jan. 1912; m. at Watertown, N. Y., 11 Apr. 1860, GEORGE SUMMERFIELD WALKER, b. at Ellisburg, N. Y., 27 Nov. 1830, d. at Perth Amboy, N. J., 18 Mar. 1909, son of David and Lucy (Thomas) Walker. Mr. Walker was a pupil at the Black River Institute, and entered the Albany (N. Y.) Normal School, but his course there was interrupted by ill health. Later he attended the academy at East Smithfield, N. Y. He taught school at several places, and was connected for many years with the railroad at Adams, N. Y. Subsequently he was superintendent of a large seed-growing firm at Cape Vincent, N. Y. After 1888 he was interested in the Watertown Carriage Company. While stationed at Castorland, N. Y., he was postmaster, and he was also collector of the town of Adams. He was a prominent Mason.

*The Williamson ancestors of Samuel Joseph Williamson's second wife were of English origin, too, but, so far as is known, of an entirely different family. Her grandfather, who came from Hull, England, was in Lord Loudoun's division, when the latter was sent to this country as commander in chief in the French and Indian War, and remained in America.

Children (surname Walker):

*In this section the word "baptized" is to be supplied in every entry, unless another word or phrase is given in its place.

The list of baptisms by Dr. Haven extends from 1752, the date of his settlement in Portsmouth, to 1801, inclusive. He died in 1806, and therefore the baptismal records for the last five years of his life are missing. Late in life he became very feeble, and probably left his parish work to his assistant, Rev. Dr. Timothy Alden, 1799–1805. According to a note inserted in the church records by Dr. Parker, who was minister from 1808 to 1833, Dr. Alden kept his baptismal records in another book, which is probably lost.

*Preserved in the Public Record Office, London.
†This date, 38 Henry VIII, is given in the calendar of Lay Subsidies.

From the foregoing records — chiefly from the probate records and the parish registers — the following Jones pedigree has been compiled. Many other persons of this surname appear in the Bridgwater records, but their relationship to the family of this pedigree has not been discovered.

William Jones, Henry Jones, and Alexander Jones, all of Bridgwater, co. Somerset, were living in the last half of the sixteenth century, and were perhaps brothers. William Jones (No. 1 of this pedigree) and some of his descendants are given below. Henry Jones married at Bridgwater, 26 May 1567, Agnes Mychell, and was buried at Bridgwater 8 Nov. 1608. Alexander Jones married at Bridgwater, 28 Feb. 1567/8, Margaret Baker, and was buried at Bridgwater 15 Feb. 1569/70. The Henry Jones who was baptized at Bridgwater 1 Sept. 1569 was probably their son.

1. William Jones, of Bridgwater, co. Somerset, is perhaps the William Jones of the muster roll of 1569. He married Alice ———, who was living 1 Mar. 1609/10, when her son Henry made his will.

Children:

2. i. Henry.
   ii. Alexander, of Bridgwater, merchant, the testator of 6 Apr. 1608, d. s.p.; bur. at Bridgwater 11 Apr. 1609; m. Margaret ———, the testatrix of 19 Jan. 1615/16, who was bur. at Bridgwater 6 Feb. 1615/16. Her will deserves careful study. Alexander Jones was a member of Parliament for Bridgwater in 1597 and mayor of Bridgwater in 1588, 1592, and 1608. He died while holding the office of mayor.
3. iii. William.
   iv. Dorothy (perhaps daughter of William), m. John Michell, mayor of Bridgwater.

2. Henry Jones (William), of Bridgwater, co. Somerset, gentleman, the testator of 1 Mar. 1609/10, was buried at Bridgwater 3 Apr. 1610. He married at Bridgwater, 15 Sept. 1584, Joan Neale, who died before her husband, probably the Joan Neale who was baptized at Bridgwater 10 November 1570 and probably the Joan Jones who was buried at Bridgwater 20 June 1607.

He was mayor of Bridgwater in 1594 and 1602.

Children (recorded at Bridgwater):

i. Robert, bapt. 1 Aug. 1585; bur. 5 Aug. 1585.
ii. Mark, bapt. 23 Nov. 1589; d. in 1610, before 3 Dec.
iii. Henry, m. at Bridgwater, 21 July 1610, Elizabeth Baber.

Children (recorded at Bridgwater):

1. Edward, bapt. 2 Oct. 1611.
2. Amia, bapt. 24 Oct. 1613.
3. Joan, bapt. 8 Mar. 1615/16.
4. Henry, bapt. 1 Dec. 1618.
5. Tacy, bapt. 4 June 1621; probably d. young.
6. Tacy, bapt. in Mar. 1627.

iv. Alexander, bapt. 21 Jan. 1592/3; bur. 4 June 1623.
v. William, bapt. 15 July 1594; probably d. young.
vi. Tacy (daughter), bapt. 7 July 1595; living unm. 1 Mar. 1609/10.
vii. Robert, of Bridgwater, gentleman, the testator of 3 May 1639, bapt. 11 July 1596; d. between 3 May 1639 and 15 Nov. 1639; m. Margaret ———, who was living 3 May 1639.

Children (all named in their father's will, but order of births somewhat uncertain):

1. William, living 3 May 1639; d. before 22 Sept. 1660. He was executor of his father's will.
2. Robert, second son, living 3 May 1639.
3. Nathaniel, living 22 Sept. 1660.

x. DEANES (daughter), bapt. 12 Oct. 1600; living 1 Mar. 1609/10.
xi. ALICE, bapt. 21 Feb. 1601/2; living 1 Mar. 1609/10.

3. WILLIAM JONES (William), of Bridgwater, co. Somerset, merchant, the testator of 20 Mar. 1592/3, was buried at Bridgwater 30 July 1593. He married at Bridgwater, 1 June 1585, JANE BISHOPP, who was living 20 Mar. 1592/3.

He was mayor of Bridgwater in 1592.

Children (baptized at Bridgwater):

i. ROBERT, bapt. 20 Feb. 1585/6; living 6 Apr. 1608, when his uncle, Alexander Jones, made his will.
ii. ALICE, bapt. 9 Aug. 1589; living 20 Mar. 1592/3.
iii. MARGARET, bapt. 12 Nov. 1590; d. 24 Oct. 1654 (REGISTER, vol. 79, p. 422); m. at Bridgwater, 11 Feb. 1604/5, ROGER LEACHLAND of Chard, co. Somerset, merchant, for whom see pedigree of Leachland, infra, p. 65.
iv. JANE, bapt. 20 Feb. 1591/2; living unm. 17 Mar. 1609/10.

LEACHLAND (CONCLUDED)

From the Leachland records given in the REGISTER, vol. 81, pp. 320–323, 486–487, from the Lechland pedigree in "The Visitation of the County of Somerset in the Year 1623" (Publications of the Harleian Society, vol. 11, p. 67), and from other records mentioned below, the following pedigree of the earliest known generations of the Leachland or Lechland family of Colyton, co. Devon, and Taunton, co. Somerset, has been compiled.

1. JOHN LECHLAND* held land in Colyton Manor, co. Devon, in 1496–97 and in 1525, when he was bailiff of Colyton Hundred. He was taxed on £60 in the subsidy of 1524. He married, according to the Visitation of 1623, ISABEL ———, but the Chancery case given in REGISTER, vol. 81, p. 487, shows that his widow was named JOHANE.

Children:

2. i. JOHN.
ii. NICHOLAS (perhaps a son of No. 1), taxed on £10 in 1524.
iii. JOAN (perhaps a daughter of No. 1), bur. 28 Apr. 1582; m. JOHN WESTON of Colyton, who was bur. 10 June 1555.†

*According to the Visitation of Somersetshire, 1623, he was the son of ——— Lechland and his wife, who was a daughter of ——— St. Lowe of co. Devon.

†Cf. Vivian's Visitation of Devon, p. 780.

Children (surname Weston):
1. Walter.
2. Robert.

2. JOHN LECHLAND (John) was of Colyton, co. Devon, in 1550. He married AGNES STARRE of Beare, co. Devon.

Children:

i. EDWARD, of London, lawyer.

3. ii. THOMAS.

iii. LAWRENCE, of Taunton, co. Somerset, m. at Taunton, 30 Sept. 1567, MARGARET (———) PERSE, widow, the testatrix of 30 Jan. 1621/2, who in her will calls herself of Fitzhead [co. Somerset] and who d. between 30 Jan. 1621/2 and 22 Aug. 1622. Lawrence Leachland was constable of Taunton in 1583 (Taunton Portreeves' Accounts).

Children, bapt. at Taunton:
1. Annes, bapt. 24 July 1568; m. John Dier; both were living 30 Jan. 1621/2.
2. Joan, bapt. 10 Dec. 1570; living unm. 30 Jan. 1621/2.
3. Lawrence (perhaps son of No. 2, iii), bapt. 9 Nov. 1571; bur. at Taunton 29 [sic] Feb. 1574/5.

iv. ROBERT, who went to Spain and m. a Spanish woman.

v. WILLIAM, of Westmounton, co. Somerset, yeoman, the testator of 12 Jan. 1615/16; bapt. at Colyton 27 Aug. 1551; d. between 12 Jan. 1615/16 and 21 Feb. 1615/16; m. ———, who was living 12 Jan. 1615/16.

Children:
1. Anne, m. ——— Harte. Five children living and under twenty-one 12 Jan. 1615/16.
2. Eleanor, m. ——— Palfrey. Four children living and under twenty-one 12 Jan. 1615/16.

vi. JOAN, bapt. at Colyton 21 Oct. 1553.

vii. AMBROSE, bapt. at Colyton 7 Sept. 1555.

viii. ALICE, bapt. at Colyton 4 Nov. 1559.

ix. AGNES, bapt. at Colyton 24 Feb. 1561/2.

3. THOMAS LECHLAND (John, John), of Colyton, co. Devon, and Taunton, co. Somerset, was buried at Taunton, as "Mr." Thomas Lechland, 30 Nov. 1593. He married ALICE VINEY, who, as Alice Leachland, widow, was buried at Taunton 12 Feb. 1596/7, daughter of William Viney of Taunton (constable of Taunton in 1542, 1549, 1551, and 1554*).

Thomas Lechland was deputy bailiff of Taunton in 1566 and constable of Taunton in 1572 and 1580.*

Children:

i. WILLIAM, of Taunton, gentleman, the testator of 4 Jan. 1637/8, d. s.p. between 4 Apr. 1639 and 20 May 1639; m. in 1582 FRANCES CORNISH, who d. 18 Mar. 1631, aged 76, daughter of Henry Cornish of Greenwich, Esq., captain of Jersey Castle and godson of King Henry VIII.† William Lechland was constable of Taunton in 1603, 1610, 1619, and 1627 (Taunton Portreeves' Accounts), and he was also mayor of Taunton. He entered the Lechland pedigree in the Visitation of Somersetshire in 1623, but no arms were recorded with it.

ii. LUCY, bapt. at Taunton 28 July 1560, iii. ELEANOR, bapt. at Taunton 4 Jan. 1561/2,
iv. ANNES, bur. at Taunton 13 Aug. 1564,
v. JOHAN, bapt. at Taunton 20 May 1564, } perhaps children of No. 3.

*Taunton Portreeves' Accounts, in possession of H. Byard Sheppard of Taunton.
†See her mural tablet, REGISTER, vol. 81, p. 486.

vi. Annes, bapt. at Taunton 2 Dec. 1565; m. before 2 Feb. 1595/6 Thomas Calton of London.
vii. Robert, bapt. at Taunton 25 Jan. 1566/7; d. s.p.
viii. Thomas, of London and Taunton, merchant, the testator of 2 Feb. 1595/6, bapt. at Taunton 13 Oct. 1568; d. s.p.; bur. at Taunton 8 Feb. 1595/6.
4. ix. Roger, bapt. at Taunton 25 Dec. 1570.

4. Roger Leachland (Thomas, John, John), of Chard, co. Somerset, merchant, the testator of 6 Feb. 1620/1, baptized at Taunton, co. Somerset, 25 Dec. 1570, died between 6 Feb. 1620/1 and 31 Oct. 1621. He married at Bridgwater, co. Somerset, 11 Feb. 1604/5, Margaret Jones, who was baptized at Bridgwater 12 Nov. 1590 and died 24 Oct. 1654 (Register, vol. 79, p. 422), daughter of William and Jane (Bishopp) Jones of Bridgwater (see pedigree of Jones supra, p. 63). As Margaret Leachland of Chard, co. Somerset, widow, she made her will (q.v.) 31 Aug. 1654.

Children:

i. William, b. about 1608, since according to the Visitation pedigree he was aged 15 in 1623; probably d. before 31 Aug. 1654, since he is not mentioned in his mother's will.
ii. Margaret, living 31 Aug. 1654; m. before that date ——— Turner.
iii. Jane (or Joane), living, a widow, 12 Feb. 1654/5 (Register, vol. 79, p. 422); m. ——— Thorne.
Children (surname Thorne), living 31 Aug. 1654:
1. Margaret.
2. Joan.
iv. Thomas, of Chard, co. Somerset, merchant, b. about 1616, since according to the Visitation pedigree he was aged 7 in 1623; bur. at Topsham, co. Devon, 3 Sept. 1669; m. Sarah ———, who was bur. at Topsham 22 Mar. 1658/9. As executor, he proved his mother's will, 22 July 1655; and he was involved in litigation with his brother-in-law, Richard Derby, mercer, and his sister, Alice, wife of the latter, in 1653 and subsequent years. (Cf. Register, vol. 79, pp. 415, 421–422, 447.) Thomas Leachland's son Roger was bapt. at Topsham 15 Mar. 1641/2 and was bur. there 22 Apr. 1642, and his daughter Sara was bapt. there 25 July 1643 (ib., vol. 79, p. 415).
v. Alice, b. before 6 Feb. 1620/1, when she was mentioned in her father's will; living 12 Feb. 1654/5 (Register, vol. 79, p. 422); m. about 1642 Richard Derby, gentleman, mercer, for whom see Register, vol. 79, pp. 443–448. They were the parents of Roger Derby, the immigrant ancestor of the Derby family of Salem, Mass., and of two other children (ib., vol. 79, pp. 448–449).

Derby (Additional Records)

The Chairman of the Committee on English Research is indebted to his friend, Rev. R. Grosvenor Bartelot, F.S.A., of Fordington St. George, co. Dorset, the well-known antiquary, for the following additional records relating to the Derby family of Dorset, to which Roger Derby, the immigrant ancestor of the Derby family of Salem, Mass., belonged. These records supplement the records and pedigree given in the Register, vol. 79, pp. 410–449, in an article contributed by the Chairman of the Committee, in which the English ancestry and connections of the Salem settler were set forth.

From notes assembled by Rev. R. Grosvenor Bartelot it appears that William Derby of Dorchester, co. Dorset, gentleman, was aged 37 years on 20 March, 2 Charles I [1626/7]. He married at Beaminster, co. Dorset, 19 April 1615, Mary, daughter of Joseph Bradstock, and had issue: Joseph, aged 43 on 12 December 1663, Matthew of Dorchester, and Paul of Dorchester. Cf. Register, vol. 79, p. 437, second footnote.

Mohun (Additions and Corrections)

Sundry additions and corrections for the pedigree of Mohun (or Moone), which was published in the Register, vol. 81, pp. 314–318, are here presented, and are followed by some additional records pertaining to this family.

Richard Mohun alias Moone (No. 1 of the pedigree) was born about 1485 and died about 1547 (not about 1570, as stated in the pedigree). He married Joan (———) Howman, a widow (cf. Court Rolls of the Manor of Axminster, 21 July 1528, infra).

A large parchment pedigree of the Mohuns of Fleet, co. Dorset, was compiled in 1606 by the Garter Dethick for Maximilian Mohun (No. 2, ii,

*For Laurence Derby, father of this child, see Register, vol. 79, p. 432, where he appears as No. 1, iv, of the Derby pedigree. This child should be added to the list of his children there given.

†This entry gives the exact date of the baptism of Thomas Derby (No. 2, v, of the Derby pedigree), who is listed in Register, vol. 79, p. 436.

‡If this William Derby is identical with the William Derby who appears as No. 3 of the Derby pedigree (Register, vol. 79, p. 437), he must have had a wife named Lucy before he married Joan Baldwyn. But see infra, last entry under Burials, 10 Mar. 1665/6.

§This entry was given in Register, vol. 79, p. 414.

||This Nicholas Derby appears as No. 1, v, in the Derby pedigree (Register, vol. 79, pp. 432–433).

¶No. 1, iv, of the Derby pedigree (Register, vol. 79, p. 432).

This entry gives the exact date of the burial of Christopher Derby (No. 2, i, of the Derby pedigree), who is said in Register, vol. 79, p. 414 and p. 436, to have been buried at Burton-Bradstock in 1623.

††No. 2 of the Derby pedigree, who is said in Register, vol. 79, p. 433, to have died 20 Jan. 1639/40 and to have been buried at Shipton-George, co. Dorset. of the pedigree published in the REGISTER), son of Robert Mohun alias Moone (No. 2 of the pedigree) and grandson of Richard Mohun alias Moone (No. 1 of the pedigree). In this parchment pedigree Richard Mohun (No. 1) is given as the son of John Mohun of Ottery St. Mary, co. Devon; and, since Maximilian Mohun, for whom the parchment pedigree was drawn up, was a grandson of this Richard, it is probable that this statement is correct, especially as in the court rolls of Ottery St. Mary, now among the muniments of Lord Coleridge, it appears that on 14 Apr. 1516 John Mohun of Ottery St. Mary was surety for William Salter, an out-tenant. This John Mohun was evidently the son of Richard Moyne of Ottery St. Mary, who died between 21 Nov. 1515 and 24 Jan. 1515/16, seised of half a ferling of land at "Four Elms," of the tenure of "antique berton" and leaving a wife, Elizabeth. (Court Rolls of Ottery St. Mary, m. 106*d*.)

Maximilian Mohun (No. 2, ii, 2), of Fleet, Esq., was born in 1596 and was matriculated at Oxford in Apr. 1613. In 1631 he paid £10 for exemption from knighthood. He was an active adherent of King Charles, his estate was sequestered for seven years by the Parliament, and he compounded for £1540. 18s. 4d. He was imprisoned for some time at Weymouth, co. Dorset.

Francis Mohun, of Fleet, Esq., son of Maximilian Mohun (No. 2, ii, 2), married Eleanor, daughter of Ralph Sheldon of Stanton, co. Stafford, and niece of Gilbert Sheldon, Archbishop of Canterbury. Francis Mohun was one of the Dorsetshire gentlemen who in 1688 refused to support the repeal of the Penal Laws. (Cf. History of Dunster, by Sir Henry Churchill Maxwell-Lyte, K.C.B., vol. 2, app. A, p. 472 et seq.)

Churchill Mohun (No. 2, ii, 3) was matriculated at Oxford in Apr. 1613.

Robert Mohun (No. 2, ii, 4), of Birckham near Beaminster, co. Dorset, married in 1634 Elizabeth, daughter of John Hillary of Meerclay. He was a major in King Charles's Army, was taken prisoner near Bridgwater, co. Somerset, by the forces of the Parliament, and later compounded for his estates.

John Mohun (No. 2, iii) was matriculated at St. Albans Hall, Oxford, in 1581, aged 16 years, and was therefore born about 1565. On 4 Oct. 1593 he was a student at the Middle Temple.

The heir general of Mohun of Fleet is Sir Henry Churchill Maxwell-Lyte, K.C.B., of Lyte's Cary, co. Somerset, a distinguished scholar, who, until recently, was head of the Public Record Office, London. He is an honorary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, having been elected 1 Apr. 1924.

to hold the said parcel of land to the said Richard Mowne and Robert and Walter, his sons, immediately after the death, surrender, or forfeiture of the said Elizabeth, for their lives and the lives of the longest liver, paying yearly at the usual terms 10s. and other dues, rents, and services formerly due and of right accustomed. And he gave to the lord as fine for having this estate 10s., paid in hand, and is admitted to the reversion, and fealties are respited.

To this court came Richard Mowne and took of the lord, John Cabell, Abbot, and the monastery of Newham the reversion of a tenement, with appurtenances, in Axminster, which Richard Wod alias Tayllor now holds, and the reversion of one parcel of land of the lord's demesne, called Stodehays, and of one acre of land, called Beare acre, and of one parcell of pasture or moor of the lord's demesne, lying under Southfyld, containing 4 acres, and also of one parcel of pasture "de solo domini," lying above [or upon, supra] Furseley downe, at Boroughhute [elsewhere Boroughshete], all of which the said Richard Wod alias Tayllour now holds, to hold the said tenement, with appurtenances, and all the land, pasture, and premises to the said Richard Mowne and Robert and Walter, his sons, immediately after the death, surrender, or forfeiture of the said Richard Wod alias Tayllour, for their lives and the life of the longest liver, successively, according to the custom of the manor, paying therefor yearly, viz., for the tenement 6s. 10d. and for the said parcell of land called Stoneyats 10s., and for Beare acre 8d., for the pasture under Southfyld 4s., and for the parcel upon Fursely downe 3s. 4d., and all other dues and services, etc. And, by an agreement made, the said Richard, Robert, and Walter are to repair hedges and fences between the lord's and their own land upon Furseley downe during the said term, at their own cost. And said Richard gave to the lord as fine for the estate £14 and a horse worth 40s., paid in hand. And they are admitted to the reversion, and their fealties respited.

21 July, 20 Henry VIII [1528]. To this court came Richard Mowne and took of the lord, John Cabelle, Abbot of Newham, and the convent the reversion of a tenement and two gardens, which Elizabeth Yorke, widow, now holds, to hold the said tenement and two gardens, together with two closes of the demesne, called Stoneyats, to said Richard Mowne, Joan, his wife, and John Howman, son of said Joan, immediately after the death, surrender, or forfeiture of said Elizabeth Yorke, for their lives and the life of the longest liver, successively, according to the custom of the manor for rent and services due and of right accustomed. And he gave to the lord as fine for such estate 46s. 8d., in hand paid, and was admitted to reversion, and fealty respited.

12 December, 22 Henry VIII [1530]. To this court came Elizabeth Yorke, who held of the lord one cottage, with appurtenances, and certain land of the barton of the lord, called Stoneyattys, and the said cottage, with premises and appurtenances, surrendered into the hands of the lord, to the use of Richard Mone, and nothing falls as heriot, because there is no heriot, upon which came the said Richard and took of the lord, Richard Gyll, Abbot of Newham, said cottage and said parcel of land called Stoneyatts, to have and to hold, etc.

26 July, 23 Henry VIII [1531]. Messor comes ex officio and presents that Richard Taylor als. Wode allows his ditch lying over against Fursse Downe called the Gore to be ruinous and in decay, to the great damage of the lord: in mercy 3d.

Pain laid on Richard Mone (6s. 8d.) to remove from the said house [sic] a certain John Halsshe and Joan, his wife. [Repeated 8 August, 23 Henry VIII [1531]. "recess" is written over the name of John Halsshe.]

9 October, 23 Henry VIII [1531]. Legal court, with view of frankpledge. It is presented that John Nuton and Richard Monne absent themselves from their tenements which they hold of the lord according to the custom of the manor, and the bailiff is ordered to seize the land and tenements into the hands of the lord. Richard Mone (3d.) and William Symond (3d.) for suit.

6 November, 23 Henry VIII [1531]. The bailiff is in mercy because he did not distrain Richard Monne (3d.) [among other] to answer to the lord for divers trespasses. [Repeated 18 December, 23 January, 20 February, and 16 April.]

14 May, 24 Henry VIII [1532]. Legal court. Richard Monne (3d.) for suit.

14 November, 24 Henry VIII [1532]. Richard Mone (3d.) for suit.*

Garde

Parentage of Roger Garde, the First New England Mayor

One of the most interesting characters of early New England and one about whom we know very little was Roger Garde of York, Me. He was recorder of York and mayor of Agamenticus or Gorgeana under Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and hence he was, beyond all doubt, the first mayor in New England.

Roger Garde had a relative, John Garde, an English merchant at Fayal in the Azores (cf. Aspinwall's Notarial Record, p. 109), who later came to Boston; for on 15 Mar. 1661/2 John Davesse and wife discharged to "John Gard, merchant, now living at Boston," a mortgage that they held on Roger Garde's land south of the Agamenticus River in York (cf. York Deeds, vol. 1, part 1, fo. 119). John Garde lived the latter part of his life in Newport, R. I., on the south side of Thames Street, where Southwick's sporting-goods store recently stood. His wife, Harte Garde, was buried back of the store, having died on 16 Sept. 1660, aged 55 years. On 7 Aug. 1665 "John Garde merchant" died, aged 61 years, and was buried beside his wife. The stones, two large, flat, sandstone slabs, were removed many years ago to the Island Cemetery at Newport, where they are the two oldest stones in that burying ground.

Last summer, while examining copies of certain Devonshire parish registers in the possession of the Devon & Cornwall Record Society, the writer came upon the following entries:

Burials

1614 Joane Montjoye 2 February [1614/15].
1634 Philip wife of Roger Garde 1 February [1634/5].
1646 Elizabeth Garde 10 June.

In Rhode Island, on 9 Apr. 1675, John Champlin, late of Fayal, now of Newport, merchant, sold land of John Garde in that town to Peleg Sanford of Newport, merchant (Rhode Island Land Evidence). On 30 Mar. 16 — John Champlin, "heire to John Garde deceased," gave freedom to the latter's negro, Salmerdore (entered between documents dated 17 Mar. 1672/3 and 8 June 1673, in Rhode Island Land Evidence, vol. 1, 1648–1676; cf. also Magazine of New England History, vol. 3, pp. 232 et seq.). This John Champlin occupied land in Newport adjoining that of Jeffrey Champlin, an early settler of Newport in 1638 and the founder of the Rhode Island family of Champlin. John Champlin apparently remained only a few years in Newport, and then vanished utterly from the Rhode Island records.

It is probable that Roger Garde, the mayor of Agamenticus or Gorgeana, was an unrecorded child of Roger Garde of Bideford, co. Devon, and that John Garde of Fayal, Boston, and Newport was his uncle and the great-uncle of John Champlin of Fayal and Newport. Furthermore, this John Champlin was evidently a near kinsman of Jeffrey Champlin, the founder of the Rhode Island family of Champlin, who must seek their origin in and around Bideford in co. Devon. The Garde family apparently moved, early in the seventeenth century, from Alvington to Bideford.

The George Mountjoy who appears in the Bideford parish registers is evidently a kinsman of George Mountjoy, the early settler of Falmouth (Portland), Me., and later of Boston.

As a student of early Newport history, it is gratifying to the writer to be able to clear up, to some extent, the history of that hitherto mysterious person, John Garde, and at the same time to point out the probable origin of the Rhode Island Champlins and of that sturdy opponent of the Massachusetts Puritans, Roger Garde of the Maine coast, the first mayor that New England ever had.

RECORDS OF THE FIRST CHURCH OF BERWICK (SOUTH BERWICK), ME.

Communicated by Hon. JOHN CLARK SCATES of Westbrook, Me.

THE whole of the territory now comprised in the towns of Berwick, North Berwick, and South Berwick, Me., except a small part of the town of York, which was annexed to South Berwick in 1834, formed in early days the northern part of the town of Kittery, and was known as the parish of Unity and precinct of Berwick. In 1713 this parish was incorporated as the town of Berwick. In 1814 the southern part of the town of Berwick was incorporated as the town of South Berwick, and in 1831 the northeastern half of the remaining town of Berwick was incorporated as the town of North Berwick.

The first church organized within the limits of what was later the town of Berwick was in the parish of Unity, at Quamphegan Landing, in the present village of South Berwick. It was formed by Rev. John Wade, A.B. (Harvard, 1693), A.M. (ib., 1696), who had been employed as the minister of the parish about 1700.* On 4 June 1702 a church organization was effected, with seventeen members. A meeting house was built in 1702, south of Great Works River; and Mr. Wade was ordained 18 Nov. 1702, but died 13 Nov. 1703. In 1706 Rev. Jeremiah Wise, A.B. (Harvard, 1700), A.M. (ib., 1703), was called to this church; a new meeting house was begun in Mar. 1707; and Mr. Wise was ordained 26 Nov. 1707 and remained pastor of the church for almost half a century, until his death, 20 Jan. 1756. In his ministry, in 1751, the parish was divided, and a second parish, with a meeting house at Blackberry Hill, was formed.† Mr. Wise was succeeded, 1 Sept. 1756, by Rev. Jacob Foster, A.B. (Harvard, 1754), A.M. (ib., 1757), who was dismissed at his own request in 1777, entered the Revolutionary Army as a chaplain, and died in 1798. His successor as pastor of the First Church was Rev. John Tompson, A.B. (Harvard, 1765), A.M. (ib., 1768), who served from 7 May 1783 until his death, 21 Dec. 1828. From 17 Nov. 1824 he had as his colleague Rev. George W. Campbell, during whose pastorate a new meeting house was built at the village of South Berwick. Mr. Campbell resigned on the death of Mr. Tompson, although he was invited to remain with the church. Succeeding pastors, down to the early years of the present century, were Rev. Seth H. Keeler, from 15 Oct. 1829 to 18 Apr. 1836, Rev. Andrew Rankin, honorary A.M. (Dartmouth, 1839), from 1 Mar. 1837 to 14 Apr. 1840, Rev. William Bradford Homer, B.A. (Amherst, 1836), M.A. (ib., 1839), who was ordained 11 Nov. 1840 and died 22 Mar. 1841, aged 24, Rev. Benjamin Russell Allen, honorary A.M.

*He was born at Ipswich, Mass., 15 Feb. 1674/5, the son of Thomas and Elisabeth (Cogswell) Wade. (Ipswich Vital Records, vol. 1, p. 376.)

†The records of the Second Church of Berwick, now extinct, in the Second, or Blackberry Hill, Parish, extending from 1755 to 1857, were published in the REGISTER, vol. 74, pp. 211–230, 246–267. For the Records of the Society of Friends at Berwick (North Berwick) see REGISTER, vol. 72, pp. 253–273, vol. 73, pp. 43–51, 124–128, and vol. 75, pp. 5–12.

(Amherst, 1842, and Dartmouth, 1854), from 12 Oct. 1842 to 19 Oct. 1854, Rev. Alfred Emerson, from 18 Feb. 1857 to 12 May 1858, Rev. Ephraim Williams Allen, B.A. (Amherst, 1838), from 30 Dec. 1858 to 10 May 1866, Rev. Silvanus Hayward, A.B. (Dartmouth, 1853), A.M. (ib., 1856), D.D. (ib., 1903), who was installed 10 May 1866 and became professor of mathematics at Fiske University, Nashville, Tenn., in 1873,* and Rev. George Lewis, A.B. (Bowdoin, 1864), D.D. (ib., 1894), who began his work at South Berwick in 1874, was installed in 1876, and continued as pastor until his death, in 1910.†

The records given in this article are preserved in a book entitled THE RECORDS OF THE CHURCH OF CHRIST AT BARWICK, which was "bought at the churches Charge Anno Domini 1703," and is described as "Volume 1: from 21 Decr 1701 to 14 Octr 1829." It contains, however, many records later than 1829, as well as numerous additions and notes relating for the most part to the early records or to persons mentioned in them, but of much later origin. These additions and notes seem to have been inserted by Rev. Ephraim Williams Allen, pastor from 1858 to 1866; and, in so far as they are of enough importance to be reproduced here, have been either printed in italics or otherwise indicated as of later date. The original record book is kept in the vault of the Casco Mercantile Trust Company of South Berwick, and, because it was used for so many years, is in a dilapidated condition, the writing in some places being almost illegible.

In this printed copy the customary abbreviations for the names of the months have been substituted in the column of dates for the various forms used in the manuscript, and the superior letters of the original have been placed on the line;‡ but otherwise the records have been printed verbatim, omissions having been indicated by periods in the text or explained in brackets or footnotes.

[ORGANIZATION OF THE CHURCH§]

A.D. 1701 Decem. 21 (After meeting on the Lords day) At a meeting notified a fortnight before, in Order to the gathering a church. Divers persons appearing, I|| began wth Prayer. after which I plainly discoursed before them about ye nature of a Church, and the necessity advantage & signification of Christ's Ordinances. After which I asked every person there by name, whether they were desirous to joyn together in Church Orders. To which Question each answered particularly for himself. Then taking notice of the Persons Confronting, I charged them in the name of the Lord Jesus Not for any Vain end whatsoever to desire an approach to Christ's

*Rev. Silvanus Hayward, D.D., was a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1892 until his death, in 1908, in his 80th year. Cf. memoir in REGISTER, vol. 63, p. lx.

Ordinances, but to draw near Unto Christ therein. 1. With a right understanding of them 2. With a sence of duty 3. Wth a sence of their need of them as help for the increase of grace & mortifieing of sin:

Then I Counselled them, if any were offended at or unsatisfied about joyning wth any Person or Persons who had now offered themselves, That they should by no means express their names, by openly objecting against them but in due time privately inform me about the same. That satisfaction might be either given or a stop put to the offending persons proceeding, without any blast of his Reputation, or discouragement to his future offering himself, when better prepared.

Finally I appointed a Private meeting to be on ye first Monday of March 1701/2 signifieing yt before that meeting they must expect to be Examined by me & Publickly propounded for satisfaction about their Conversation. & So they were dismissed wth Prayer.

Before the Second Meeting the Several Persons were privately examined as to their Creed by such Questions as These . . .*

To which questions after they had given a Satisfactory answer I drew forth their Profession by Questions to this Purpose. . . .†

Having Received also an answer of consent to the sd queries. I publickly Propounded them a fortnight before the second meeting, none objecting against their Conversation.

Mar. 2d 1701/2 Was our 2d meeting, where after Thanksgiving to God for such a prospect of his favour as was before us, and imploring his assisting & Succeeding Grace in or enterprise I gave an account of the Satisfaction I had received of ym severally Repeating over the above sd Questions to ym & the sum of their answers amounting to an enture Confession of faith in the fundamental articles of Christianity, telling them that they were Severally conscious of my dealing wth them as above sd and as each had expressed his answer — So all had as to the substance thereof. So they were all professedly of One faith. I then propounded whether they were satisfied as to the Conversation of one another? They Signified that they were. Upon which I read to them a Confession of faith — Church Covenant, to which they joyntly assented. Then after Renewing a word of Warning & Exhortation to them we agreed to keep a day of Publick Fasting & Prayer On June 4th & so dismissed them with Prayer.

June 4th 1702 Being fastday, The Reved Mr John Pike Pastor of ye Church of Christ at Dover, Samuel Emery Pastor of the Church of Wells & Mr Samuel Moody Pastor of the Church of Christ at York, coming to our assistance; After Prayer & A sermon for our direction Mr Pike &c taking Cognizance of or Proceeding & seeing all their assent to the Articles of Faith & Form of Covenant then Publickly read & their Satisfaction One wth another, Pronounced them a of Jesus Christ. Upon which they signified their choice of J. Wade, as their Pastor.

The following Confession of Faith & form of Covenant was subscribed by those Foundation Brethren of the Church, & is from time to time Owned Publickly by all such adult persons as are Baptized or Admitted to the Lord's Supper, being first privately explained to them

MEMOIRS OF DECEASED MEMBERS OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Prepared by Rev. Arthur Wilmot Ackerman, D.D., Historian

Nathaniel Terry Bacon, Ph.B., of Peace Dale, R. I., chemical engineer, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Litchfield, Conn., 16 August 1858, the son of Rev. Leonard Woolsey and Susan (Bacon) Bacon, and died at "The Acorns," his home in Peace Dale, 3 January 1926.

He was a descendant of Michael[1] Bacon, who was at Dedham, Mass., in 1640 and died there 18 April 1648, through John[2] of Dedham, Daniel[3] of Dedham, William,[4] 1694–1776, Joseph[5] of Stoughton, Mass., who was born 4 October 1733, married 9 August 1764 Abigail Holmes, and settled in Woodstock, Conn., before 1771, Rev. David,[6] who was born at Woodstock 4 September 1771, married at Bethlehem, Conn., Alice Parks, and died in 1817, Rev. Leonard,[7] B.A. (Yale, 1820), M.A. (ib., 1823), S. T. D. (Hamilton, 1842), LL.D. (Harvard, 1870), the well-known pastor of the Centre Church in New Haven, Conn., historian, university teacher, a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1845 until his death and its Vice President for Connecticut, 1855–1859, who was born at Detroit, Mich., 19 February 1802, married first Lucy Johnston, and died at New Haven 24 December 1881,* and Rev. Leonard Woolsey,[8] his father, B.A. (Yale, 1853, as of 1850), M.D. (ib., 1856), D.D. (ib., 1879), who was born at New Haven 1 January 1830, married Susan Bacon (born at New Haven 11 August 1834, daughter of Nathaniel Almoran and Almira (Selden) Bacon and a descendant of Nathaniel Bacon of Middletown, Conn., in 1650), and died at Assonet, in Freetown, Mass., 12 May 1907.

Nathaniel Terry Bacon was educated at the Hopkins Grammar School in New Haven, at the Casimir Gymnasium in Coburg, Germany, at the University of Geneva, where he studied civil engineering, and at the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University, where he received the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy in 1879.

From November 1879 to February 1880 he was timekeeper and gauger in the work at Diamond Reef, in New York, and was later employed on the Northern Pacific, West Shore, Southern Pacific, Alleghany Central, and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads. In 1884 he was sent to Europe to study the Solvay process in Belgium, France, Germany, and England, and then, as a technical expert, became assistant to the president of the Solvay Process Company of Syracuse, N. Y., and resided from 1884 to 1895 at Syracuse and from 1895 to 1924 at Peace Dale. He was the principal owner of the Sea View Railroad Company, a Washington County (R. I.) electric line, of a large cotton plantation in Alabama, and of the Benton Lumber Company, president of the Narragansett Pier Railroad Company, 1915–1924, and of the Southern Realty Company, 1907–1923, and a director in Berlinger's, Inc., carrying on business at Bluefields, Nicaragua, in the Manhattan Rubber Company, and in the Phœnix Linen Company of North Brookfield, Mass.

He was an honorary member of the American Chemical Society and of the Society of Colonial Governors and a member of the American Economic Association and of the Society of Chemical Industry. He was a deacon in the Peace Dale Congregational Church, and gave much time to the cause of Near East Relief.

His publications included many magazine and newspaper articles on economic, scientific, historical, and linguistic subjects, a translation from the French of a work entitled "Mathematical Principles of the Theory of Wealth," 1897, and a metrical version of the first book of Homer's Iliad.

He married at Peace Dale, 6 October 1885, Helen Hazard, who was born at Peace Dale 15 January 1862 and died there 26 October 1925, daughter of Hon. Rowland and Margaret (Rood) Hazard. Mrs. Bacon was elected a life member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1923, and a memoir of her may be found in the REGISTER, vol. 81, pp. 476–477. Their two children survive them, namely, Leonard Bacon, B.A. (Yale, 1909), of Peace Dale, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, as successor to his father, and Susan, wife of Elmer Davenport Keith of New Haven, Conn., B.A. (Yale, 1910, Oxford, 1913).

MRS. SUMNER (JOHNSON) MILTON, of Waltham, Mass., a resident member since 1923, was born at Waltham 6 July 1860, the daughter of Edward Coke and Maria (Haynes) Johnson, and died there 5 January 1926.

Her father was born at Orange, Mass., 28 January 1815, but became a resident of Waltham. Her mother was born at Sudbury, Mass., 15 June 1817, the daughter of Gideon and Anne (Carr) Haynes and a descendant of Walter Haynes of Sudbury, who came to New England in the ship Confidence in 1638.

For a number of years previous to her marriage she was connected with the Waltham Public Library, first as assistant librarian and from 1885 to 1892 as librarian, rendering a service that "entailed the usual sacrifice that is incident to pioneer library work because of limited quarters and scant means."

She was married 26 December 1892 to George Arthur Milton, whom she survived, son of George Bruce and Lucy Kidder (Slade) Milton.

She was attached to home life and found pleasure in reading; but she had a wide circle of friends, who highly esteemed her and greatly enjoyed her companionship. She was a member of the Wayside Inn Lodge, Daughters of the American Revolution, and of the Waltham Historical Society.

In her will she bequeathed to the Waltham Public Library the sum of $1,000, the income of which is to be used for the purchase of reference books, "her spirit thus carrying on the work to which she was so devoted during her lifetime. The gift was in the memory of Lorenza Haynes, aunt of Mrs. Milton, and the first Librarian of the Waltham Public Library, and is to be known as the 'Lorenza Haynes Bequest.'" (Annual Report of the Library.)

She had no children, and her nearest surviving relatives are two nieces, Mrs. Robert Dunbar Weir and Mrs. Margaret Johnson Ranney, both of Colorado Springs, Colo., and a nephew, Morton Johnson, who is an artist in Paris.

CHARLES ALBERT GOULD, of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at Batavia, N. Y., 13 January 1849, the son of William Wallace and Electa M. (Pratt) Gould, and died in New York City 6 January 1926.

He was a descendant of Zaccheus[1] Gould, one of the first settlers of Topsfield, Mass., through Capt. John[2] of Topsfield, a soldier in King Philip's War, Zaccheus,[3] 1672–1739, of Topsfield, Eliezer,[4] Bezaleel,[5] 1756–1818, a Revolutionary soldier, Orphir,[6] 1781–1868, Jedediah,[7] who was born 7 November 1804, married Nancy Chamberlain, and died at East Pembroke, N. Y., 22 May 1869, and William Wallace,[8] his father, who was born 7 March 1826 and married 27 October 1847 Electa M. Pratt.

He was educated in the public schools and was prepared for college, but financial reverses led him, in 1869, to become an accountant in Buffalo, N. Y. He was deputy postmaster of Buffalo in 1878 and 1879 and collector of customs there from 1880 to 1884. He was president of the Gould Coupler Company of Depew, N. Y., of the Gould Realty Company of New York City, and of the Gould Storage Battery Company.

He was a member of the Order of the Founders and Patriots of America, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Society of Sons of the Revolution, and the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Among his clubs were the Union League and New York Yacht Clubs.

He married at Batavia, N. Y., 1 September 1869, Julia Adelaide Stocking, who survives him, daughter of Abraham and Henrietta Maria (Colton) Stocking. They had four children: Henry Colton Moulton, Charles Stocking, William S., and Celia Adelaide (now Mrs. George G. Milne of Rye, N. Y.).

Charles Hubbard Sergel, of Chicago, Ill., a resident member since 1923, was born at Muscatine, Iowa, 25 September 1861, the son of John Henry and Jean G. (Pocock) Sergel, and died in Chicago 7 January 1926.

Among his ancestors were William Bassett, who was at Plymouth in New England in 1621, Maj. Simon Willard, one of the founders of Concord, Mass., in 1635, John Prescott of Lancaster, Mass., in 1640, George Hubbard of Connecticut, and other well-known early settlers of New England.

He was graduated at the high school in Mansfield, Ohio, and began his business career in 1882 with the Western News Company in Chicago, becoming head of the book department of this company and resigning this position in 1890. In 1886 he organized The Dramatic Publishing Company and became its president, and afterwards was the organizer and proprietor of Charles H. Sergel & Company, publishers.

He was Peruvian consul in Chicago, 1893–1901, treasurer of the City of Chicago, 1915–1917, president of the Sanitary District of Chicago, 1916–1920, and trustee, 1920–1922. He was an alternate delegate to the Progressive National Convention in 1912, a delegate to the Republican National Convention in 1916, and treasurer of the Republican State Central Committee, 1918–1920.

He was a member of the Chicago Academy of Sciences, the Chicago Historical Society, the Ohio Society, and the Society of Sons of the American Revolution, and was affiliated with several clubs. In 1895 he published a treatise entitled "Sound Money."

He married 3 March 1891 Annie E. Myers of Chicago.

Francis Phelps Dodge, B.A., of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Teaneck, N. J., 20 September 1871, the son of Rev. David Stuart and Ellen Ada (Phelps) Dodge, and died unmarried in New York City 14 January 1926.

He was a descendant of Richard[1] Dodge, who was at Salem, Mass., in 1638, an older brother of William Dodge, also of Salem, who is often referred to as the immigrant ancestor of this family. The line of descent is traced through Richard,[2] 1643–1705, of Wenham, Mass., Daniel,[3] 1677–1740, of Wenham, David,[4] who was born at Wenham in 1723 and died in the expedition against Canada, David,[5] 1742–1807, who was born at Ipswich, Mass., and died at Brooklyn, Conn., David Low,[6] 1774–1852, who was born in Brooklyn, Conn., and died in New York City, Hon. William Earl,[7] 1805–

1883, a noted merchant of New York City, who was born at Hartford, Conn., and died in New York City, and Rev. David Stuart,[8] his father, B.A. (Yale, 1857), M.A. (ib., 1864), D.D. (ib., 1899), who was born in New York City 22 September 1836, married there, 20 June 1860, Ellen Ada Phelps (daughter of John Jay and Rachel Badgeley (Phinney) Phelps and a descendant of William[1] Phelps of Dorchester, Mass.), and died 17 December 1921. Rev. Dr. David Stuart Phelps was a Presbyterian minister, who served at one time as professor of modern languages in the Syrian Protestant College, was president of its Board of Trustees, and was president also of the Board of Home Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the United Stated, 1899–1915.

Francis Phelps Dodge received his early education at the Glen Tower School, at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass., and entered Yale with the Class of 1894, but on account of ill health he left college at the end of the Freshman year. Later he returned to Yale, but on account of serious rheumatic trouble was not able to graduate. In 1915, however, the degree of Bachelor of Arts, as of the Class of 1894, was conferred on him by the University. He was an invalid from the time of leaving college, and lived at various times at Simsbury, Conn., Clifton Springs and Watkins Glen, N. Y., and Colorado Springs, Colo.

He gave much time to philanthropic activities, and was a member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, the National Executive Board of Girl Scouts, and the Founders' Committee of the National Child Welfare Association. Through the National Education Association he worked for the improvement of the New York public school system, by causing to be formed, in 1919, a committee on education for citizenship. He was also interested in the Life Extension Institute, the Art Workers' Club for Women, the Fatherless Orphans of France, and the Nacoochee Institute at Sautee, Ga., and he was a charter member of the International Club, a life member of the Young Men's Christian Association, and a member of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Museum of Natural History, the New York Academy of Sciences, the Botanical Gardens, the Zoölogical Gardens, and the Audubon, Concordance, and Philharmonic Societies. The plans of Phi Beta Kappa for popularizing scholarship in America received his hearty support, and in his will he pledged his estate for a sum of money equal to one-tenth of the total amount raised by the society for this purpose.

In memory of William Phelps, his mother's immigrant ancestor in the male line, Mr. Dodge placed a marble tablet on the wall of the stair hall of the New England Historic Genealogical Society's house in Boston.

His religious affiliations were with the Brick Presbyterian Church of New York City.

Two brothers, Walter Phelps Dodge, a lawyer and well-known author, who spends much of his time abroad, and Clarence Phelps Dodge, B.A. (Yale, 1899), survive him.

Hon. Edric Eldridge, of Jamaica Plain (Boston), Mass., elected a resident member in 1911 and made a life member in 1918, was born at Yarmouth, Mass., 12 September 1849, the son of David Gorham and Sarah (Thacher) Eldridge, and died at Jamaica Plain 15 January 1926.

He belonged to one of the Eldridge families of the Old Colony, and traced his descent from John[1] Eldridge, an early settler, through John,[2] David,[3] Edmund,[4] and David Gorham,[5] his father, who was born at Yarmouth 26 July 1822. His mother was born at Yarmouth 2 May 1825, the daughter of Samuel and Nancy (Hallett) Thacher and a descendant of Anthony[1] Thacher of Yarmouth through John,[2] Judah,[3] Josiah,[4] Solomon,[5] and Samuel,[6] her father. Mr. Eldridge was also of the ninth generation from John Howland, the Pilgrim.

He was educated in the public schools of Yarmouth, and entered business in Boston, where he became a member of the firm of Crocker & Eldridge on 1 January 1884, was for twenty-five years senior partner in the wholesale grocery firm of Eldridge, Baker & Bain, afterwards Eldridge, Baker & Company, and then a director and vice president of Eldridge, Baker Company, a corporation doing business as wholesale grocers in Boston and Salem, Mass. He was president of the Boston Wholesale Grocers' Association, 1900–1902, and was also a director of the Pioneer, Guardian, and Homestead Coöperative Banks of Boston.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Society of Colonial Wars in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, and he belonged also to the Masonic fraternity. He served on the Common Council of Somerville, Mass., in 1890–91 and on the Somerville Board of Aldermen in 1892–93, and he was a member of the Massachusetts Senate in 1912–13. He was a Republican and, in religious affiliations, a Congregationalist.

He married first, in May 1874, Sarah Elizabeth Hall, who was born in June 1854 and died in October 1900; and secondly, 8 October 1902, Harriet M. Hancock of Otisfield, Me., daughter of Charles Francis and Ella Augusta (Haskell) Hancock, who survives him, together with a son by his first wife, Stanley Hall Eldridge, S.B. (Harvard, 1902), now of Lexington, Mass.

Edward Kemp, of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 11 June 1863, the son of William and Louisa Elizabeth (Jones) Kemp, and died at Nice, France, 17 January 1926.

His father, William Kemp, was born on a farm at Cavan, Ireland, in April 1822, the son of Edward (of English descent) and Margaret (Traver) Kemp, and came to America as a child with his widowed mother, five brothers, and two sisters. The family settled in New York City, where William Kemp married 13 April 1848 Louisa Elizabeth Jones. With his two younger brothers, George and Edward Kemp, he conducted a drug business under the firm name of Lanman & Kemp. He died in New York City 21 December 1881. Louisa Elizabeth Jones, mother of the subject of this memoir, was born in Roxbury, Mass., in 1824, the daughter of James and Susannah (Goddard) Jones. Her father, James Jones, was born at Athol, Mass., and died at the age of thirty-three, and her mother, Susannah Goddard, was a daughter of Joseph Goddard of Brookline, Mass.

Edward Kemp, the youngest of four children, was educated at Charlier's, a well-known French school, and at Arthur Cutler's, another private school. He went into his father's business, later became a partner, and remained in the firm until ill health necessitated his retirement a few years before his death. Towards the end of his life he took, as a middle name, the name "Aspinwall," which was the maiden name of his great-grandmother, the wife of Joseph Goddard. As a boy he joined the Fifth Avenue Baptist Church in New York City, of which his father was a trustee and active member for many years.

He belonged to several yacht clubs and other organizations devoted to outdoor sports, and he was especially interested in golf. He was a member also of the Society of Sons of the Revolution and a veteran of the Seventh Regiment.

He married twice. His first wife, whom he married in New York City, 2 December 1886, was Josephine De Mott, who died at Seligman, Ariz., 7 December 1923, while on a journey to California for her health, the daughter of John H. and Anna M. (Van Horne) De Mott. His second wife survived him. By his first wife he had two sons, Edward and Van Horne. Both were educated at the Fay School and at St. Mark's School, Southborough, Mass., and both entered Harvard, but soon left college to take up their father's business. The elder son, Edward, born in New York City 28 January 1892, was in college in 1912–13, as a member of the Class of 1916, and after leaving Harvard became a student in the College of Pharmacy, Columbia University, in order to prepare himself for his business career. In the World War he joined the Armored Motor Corps, and, while on duty in New York City, was killed in a traffic accident, 6 March 1917. In 1920 Harvard honored his memory by conferring on him a posthumous war degree and enrolling him in the list of Bachelors of Arts of the Class of 1916. He was unmarried. Van Horne, the younger son, was a student at Harvard in 1914–15, and in the World War was private in the Ninth Coast Artillery, New York National Guard, an organization which was taken into the service of the United States. He was transferred to the Aviation Section, United States Signal Corps, 20 February 1918, was stationed at various places in the United States, and was discharged 19 December 1918. He died at Seabright, N. J., 1 January 1920, aged 25.

Edward Whiting Hopkins, of San Francisco, Calif., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at China, Mich., 26 April 1848, the seventh and youngest child of Samuel Frederick and Mary Ann (Keeney) Hopkins, and died at San Francisco 18 January 1926.

He was a descendant of John[1] Hopkins, who was in Cambridge, Mass., in 1634 and at Hartford, Conn., in 1636, through Stephen,[2] 1634–1689, of Hartford, John,[3] 1665–1732, Capt. Timothy,[4] 1691–1748, of Waterbury, Conn., Rev. Samuel,[5] 1721–1803, B. A. (Yale, 1741), M.A. (ib., 1744), D.D. (Brown, 1790), a distinguished Congregational minister and theologian, who held pastorates at Great Barrington, Mass., and Newport, R. I., Moses,[6] 1751–1835, whose wife was Anna Whiting, Mark,[7] and Samuel Frederick,[8] his father, who was born at Hinsdale, Mass., 15 September 1803, married Mary Ann Keeney of Hartford (born at Hartford 21 July 1807, died in 1891, daughter of Asahel and Theodosia (Woodruff) Keeney), and died in 1884. He also traced his ancestry to Governor William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony.

Mr. Hopkins went to California in 1870, and resided at Sacramento while serving as assistant treasurer of the Central Pacific Railroad, of which his uncle, Mark Hopkins, had been one of the organizers and was at that time treasurer. In 1878, upon the death of his uncle, he became treasurer, and removed to San Francisco. In 1882 he severed his connection with the railroad and organized the Union Ice Company, of which he was president until his death. In financial circles he was active in establishing a number of banks, among them the Mission Savings Bank of which he was for a time vice president, the Mission Bank, and the Mercantile Trust Company, in which he was a director. At the time of his death he was a director of the Bank of California.

His benefactions were many; but he shunned publicity, and few knew of his gifts. Among them may be mentioned a fund of $25,000 for the Leland Stanford Junior University, to be used to help deserving but needy students in completing their college course.

He was a member of several clubs, among which were the Pacific Union and the Bohemian, Olympic, Menlo Country, and San Jose Country Clubs. His summer home was at Menlo Park, Calif.

Mr. Hopkins married first, at San Francisco, 25 October 1876, Georgina C. Smith, who died 7 March 1920, daughter of Henry Stephen and Mary Henrietta (Higginson) Smith, of a family of Philadelphia Quakers; and secondly Mrs. Helen M. (Thompson) Tourtillotte of New York. His second wife survives him, together with four of his five children by his first wife, namely, Mrs. Augustus Taylor (Helen Hopkins) of Menlo Park, Mrs. Stewart S. Lowery (Edna Hopkins Taylor) of Menlo Park, Samuel Hopkins of San Francisco, and Mrs. John Cheever Cowdin (Florence Hopkins) of San Francisco. His third child, Georgina Hopkins, was the wife of Frederick William McNear and died 21 February 1920.

David Hale Fanning, of Worcester, Mass., manufacturer, philanthropist, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Jewett City, a village in the town of Griswold, New London Co., Conn., 4 August 1830, the son of Henry Willson and Sarah (Hale) Fanning, and died at Worcester 21 January 1926, in his 96th year.

He traced his descent from Edmund[1] Fanning, who was at New London, Conn., about the middle of the seventeenth century, lived later at Fisher's Island and Stonington, and died in 1683, through Lieut. John[2] of Groton, Conn., a soldier in King Philip's War, John,[3] 1688–1718, of Groton, Capt. Thomas,[4] Thomas,[5] 1755–1828, a soldier in the Revolution, and Henry Willson,[6] his father, blacksmith, a soldier in the War of 1812, who was born at Groton 8 February 1786, married at Marlboro, Conn., 3 October 1811, Sarah Hale (who was born at Glastonbury, Conn., 19 July 1788 and died at Jewett City 10 June 1837, the daughter of David and Ruth (Hale) Hale), and died at Jewett City 3 July 1836.*

The youngest of a family of nine children, David Hale Fanning was bereft of his parents before he was seven years old and was brought up in the home of an elder brother. He had very limited opportunities for education, and, at the age of sixteen, started out with only $2.50 in his pocket, walked twenty miles to Danielson, Conn., thence to Worcester, and thence to Clinton (then a part of Lancaster), Mass., where he found employment in a counterpane factory. Two years later he became an apprentice in the machinist trade at Worcester, and then, in 1853, bought a country store at Groton Junction, Mass., but a little later he sold his store and went to the West. He was at Cleveland, Ohio, for two years, and then, returning to Worcester, was employed as a salesman, 1857–1861. In the last-mentioned year he founded the Worcester Skirt Company and began the manufacture of hoop skirts at Worcester, and two or three years later extended his business to include the manufacture of corsets. For almost sixty-five years he was at the head of this growing business; his firm, under the name of the Worcester Corset Company, was incorporated in 1888 and again in 1901, when its name was changed to the Royal Worcester Corset Company; and Mr. Fanning, as president, remained in active charge of its operations and was almost daily at his desk until he had passed the ninety-fifth anniversary of his birth. He was called the "Corset King," and at the time of his death was the oldest active manufacturer in New England and one of the oldest in the United States. He was a member of the Home Market Club, a Republican in politics, and in his religious affiliations a Unitarian.

Interested in his sturdy New England progenitors, he placed on the wall of the stair hall of the New England Historic Genealogical Society's house in Boston a beautiful slate tablet, with marble border, in memory of Edmund Fanning, his immigrant ancestor.

In his lifetime he gave to his native town a park that bears his name, and to the city of his adoption he presented the David H. Fanning Trade School for Girls, and aided many other charitable and educational undertakings. In his will, in addition to personal bequests, he bequeathed more than a quarter of a million dollars for public purposes, in sums ranging from $500 to $75,000. Among these bequests may be mentioned $75,000 for the enlargement of the Slater Library at Jewett City, $5,000 for the improvement of the cemetery at Jewett City, $25,000 for an extension of the new Hahnemann Hospital at Worcester, $25,000 to the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, to aid deserving boys in acquiring an education, $25,000 to the Connecticut College for Women, $25,000 to Talladega College, Alabama, for a new dormitory, $15,000 to the City of Worcester, as a trust fund, the income of which is to be used to provide prizes for school children below the eighth grade, $5,000 to Mount Holyoke College, in memory of the testator's daughters, Agnes and Helen, who were formerly students there, $5,000 to the Perkins Institution for the Blind, in Watertown, Mass., $5,000 to the Memorial Home for the Blind, in Worcester, and the same amount to the Worcester Boys' Club, to the Worcester Young Men's Christian Association, and to the Worcester Young Women's Christian Association, $3,000 to Berea College, in Kentucky, and many smaller sums to various local charities, the Moody schools at Northfield, Mass., and other worthy objects. To the Royal Worcester Corset Company the testator bequeathed $10,000, to form a fund for the benefit of sick and needy employees of the Company who have been in its employ for twenty years or more. The residue of his estate the testator bequeathed in equal parts to the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, the Connecticut College for Women, Talladega College, and the Worcester Hahnemann Hospital.

Mr. Fanning married at Worcester, 28 September 1859, Rosamond Hopkins Dawless, who died at Worcester 14 December 1901, daughter of Young Simmons and Adaline Fidelia (Willard) Dawless of Sterling, Mass. Their only son died in infancy; but their two daughters, Agnes Maria, widow of John Edward Lancaster of Worcester, and Helen Josephine, widow of William C. Supplee of Philadelphia, Pa., survive their parents. Mr. Fanning's grandson, John Edward Lancaster, A.B. (Harvard, 1916), of Hewlett, Long Island, N. Y., has succeeded to his Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Mrs. Emma Ursula (Richmond) Adams, of St. Louis, Mo., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Barnard, Vt., 10 September 1847, the daughter of Lorenzo and Ursula (Hazen) Richmond, and died at Woodstock, Vt., 4 February 1926.

She was a descendant of John[1] Richmond, who was one of the purchasers of Taunton in the Plymouth Colony in 1637, through John,[2] Ebenezer,[3] who was born at Newport, R. I., 12 May 1676 and died in 1729, Ebenezer,[4] 1701–1793, of Middleborough, Mass., Ebenezer,[5] a soldier of the Revolution, who was born at Middleborough 16 January 1738 and died at Barnard, Vt., 15 March 1814, Ebenezer,[6] who was born at Taunton, Mass., 10 June 1770 and died 6 June 1840, and Capt. Lorenzo,[7] her father, who was born at Barnard, Vt., 16 August 1806 and married Ursula Hazen, born at Hartford, Vt., 26 October 1814, daughter of Jasper and Abigail Crossman (Thomas) Hazen of Woodstock, Vt. Through her grandmother, Abigail Crossman (Thomas) Hazen, she traced her descent from John[1] Alden of the Mayflower.

She was married at Woodstock, Vt., 10 November 1870, to Elmer Bragg Adams, B.A. (Yale, 1865), LL.D. (University of Missouri, 1898, Washington University, 1907, Yale, 1916), who was born at Pomfret, Vt., 27 October 1842 and died 24 October 1916, the son of Jarvis and Eunice (Mitchell) Adams and a descendant of Henry[1] Adams of Braintree, Mass. Mr. Adams was a student at the Harvard Law School for a year, and began the practice of law in St. Louis in 1868. Ten years later he was elected judge of the Circuit Court of the City of St. Louis, a position which he held for six years (1879 to 1885), when he declined a reëlection and returned to private practice. In 1895 he was appointed a judge of the United States District Court for the Eastern District of Missouri; in 1905 he was made a judge of the United States Circuit Court for the Eighth Judicial Circuit, and, later, became automatically a judge of the Circuit Court of Appeals, holding this high judicial office until his death.

While the home of Judge and Mrs. Adams was in St. Louis, their summers were spent in Woodstock, Vt., where Mrs. Adams died. They had no children. Mrs. Adams's niece, Mrs. Brenton C. Pomeroy (Kathrine Adams Semple) of Pittsfield, Mass., has succeeded to her Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Allen Herbert Bent, of Roslindale (Boston), Mass., a resident member since 1895, was born at Gardner, Mass., 5 June 1867, the son of Arunah Allen and Sarah (Breck) Bent, and died at Roslindale 8 February 1926.

He traced his descent from John[1] Bent, who came to New England in the ship Confidence in 1638 and settled at Sudbury, Mass., through Peter[2] of Marlborough, Ensign Hopestill[3] of Sudbury, who served in the Canadian expedition of 1690, Thomas,[4] 1706–1775, of Sudbury, Samuel,[5] 1755–1833, a soldier of the Revolution, who was born at Sudbury and died at Fitzwilliam, N. H., Hyman,[6] 1788–1872, of Fitzwilliam, N. H., whose wife was Levina Johnson Allen, and Arunah Allen,[7] his father, who was born at Fitzwilliam 29 January 1823 and married Sarah Breck, born at Gardner 24 July 1826, the daughter of Elijah and Sarah (Comee) Breck.

Allen Herbert Bent was educated in the Boston Public schools, and was graduated at the English High School, a Franklin Medal scholar, in 1884. He became an auctioneer, and after September 1894 was connected with the well-known firm of Edward Hatch & Company.

He was greatly interested in genealogical research, contributed to the Register for July 1894 (vol. 48, pp. 288–296) an article entitled "The Bent Family," and published later a comprehensive genealogy of this family. He also compiled a manuscript history of the family of Elnathan Allen of Shrewsbury, a history of the Comee-Comey family, and an account of the descendants of Jabez Hatch.

He was a member of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and of the Appalachian Mountain Club.

Richard Henry Greene, B.A., M.A., LL.B., of New York City, a corresponding member since 1897, was born in New York City 12 June 1839, the son of William Webb and Sarah Ann (Todd) Green, and died there 13 February 1926.

He was fifth in descent from William[1] Greene of the Plymouth Colony, who married Elizabeth Warren, granddaughter of Richard Warren of the Mayflower, and died at Plymouth 7 October 1685, through William[2] Greene, who married Desire Bacon, a descendant of John and Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland, and died 28 January 1756, Capt. James[3] Green, 1728–1809, an officer in the Revolution, who married Ruth Marshall, Richard[4] Green, 1765–1848, whose wife was Sally Webb, and William Webb[5] Green, his father, a merchant and shipowner, who was born at East Haddam, Conn., 29 March 1807, married Sarah Ann Todd (born in New York City 21 June 1813, died 8 March 1883, daughter of Col. William Whetten and Maria Caroline (Duffie) Todd), and died in 1894.

Richard Henry Greene was prepared for college at the Dwight High School, in Brooklyn, N. Y., entered Yale, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1862. In the Civil War he raised a company of one hundred men, and on 8 December 1862 was mustered into the Federal Army as captain of Company A, in the Pierrepont Regiment of New York Volunteers, which in 1863 was combined with the Fourteenth Cavalry. Later in 1863 he was with Company K of the Seventh New York Regiment, and in the campaign of 1864 he was on the staff of the Sixty-ninth New York Regiment. His alma mater conferred on him the degree of Master of Arts, in course, in 1865, and in the same year he received the degree of Bachelor of Laws from Columbia University. From 1865 to 1867 he practised his profession in New York City, in the firm of Roosevelt & Greene.

A Republican in politics, he served as chairman of the Board of Registry and Elections, 1865–1870, as vice president of the District Association, 1868–1871, and as an executive member of the Republican General Committee, 1870–1875. He was a special deputy assessor in the United States Internal Revenue Department, 1869–1871.

In his business activities he was a director of the North Second Street & Middle Village Railroad Company, 1870–1884, president of the Company, 1882–1884, president of the Brooklyn, Bushwick & Queens County Railroad, 1884–1886, and president of the Excess Indicator Company of Massachusetts and of Pittsburgh, Pa., in 1909–10.

He was well known for his active interest in genealogy and in the work of genealogical and hereditary-patriotic societies. He became an annual member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society in 1891 and a life member in 1905, and at various times served this society as trustee, honorary librarian, recording secretary, necrologist, member of the Executive Committee, member of the Publication Committee, and editor of The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record. He was one of the founders of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants, which was organized in New York City in December 1894, and held high office both in the General Society and in the New York Society. He was a member also of the Society of Colonial Wars, the Society of Sons of the Revolution, the Society of American Wars, the Society of the War of 1812, and other similar organizations, as well as the New York Historical Society. For eleven years he was commander of Farragut Post, Grand Army of the Republic.

He was the author or compiler of "The Greene Family of Plymouth Colony," "William Webb, Ancestry and Descendants," a Todd genealogy, and various articles relating to the Pilgrims of the Mayflower and to the alumni of Yale and other colleges who have held official positions. Some of these articles on college alumni were published in the REGISTER in 1888 and subsequent years.

Captain Greene was a member of the Presbyterian Church at Washington Heights, New York, and was active in that church as superintendent of the Sunday school, deacon, elder, and trustee.

He married at New Haven, Conn., 20 June 1867, Mary Gertrude Munson, daughter of Edwin Beach and Catharine Amelia (Sperry) Munson. Mrs. Greene survived her husband. Of their six children only Mrs. Augustus Thatcher Holbrook (Edna Munson Greene) survived her father, her brother, Marshall Winslow Greene, having died in 1921 and the four other children having died in infancy or early childhood. Captain Greene is buried in the family mausoleum in Riverside Cemetery, East Haddam, Conn.

Cf. memoir of Captain Greene, with portrait, in The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, vol. 57, pp. 309–310 (October 1926), and memoir of his son, Marshall Winslow Greene, with portrait, ib., vol. 52, pp. 293–294 (October, 1921).

EDWIN BERTRAM PIKE, of Pike, Grafton Co., N. H., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at Salem, Mass., 24 July 1866, the son of Edwin Burbank and Adelaide Arvilla (Miner) Pike, and died at Pike 17 February 1926.

He traced his descent from John[1] Pike of Newbury, Mass., who came from Langford, Oxfordshire, England, in 1635, through Capt. John,[2] who migrated to Woodbridge, N. J., in 1669, Joseph[3] of Newbury, who was killed by the Indians in 1694, Lieut. Joseph,[4] 1674–1757, of Newbury, Joseph,[5] 1696–1788, of Newbury and Dunstable, Mass., Daniel,[6] who died at Hebron, N. H., 10 April 1795, Moses,[7] 1769–1821, of Hebron and Groton, N. H., Isaac,[8] 1799–1860, of Haverhill, N. H., and Edwin Burbank,[9] his father, who was born at Haverhill, N. H., 7 April 1845, married Adelaide Arvilla Miner (born 26 June 1848, daughter of John Tyler and Helen Maria (Closson) Miner), and died 24 August 1908.

Edwin Bertram Pike was educated at the Haverhill (N. H.) Academy, the St. Johnsbury (Vt.) Academy, where he was graduated in 1884, and the Commercial College Department of the New Hampton (N. H.) Literary Institute, where he was a student in 1885–86. Then, in 1886, he entered the employ of the Pike Manufacturing Company as a salesman, and in 1908 succeeded his father as head of the business, which had been founded in 1842. Under his management, as president, the Pike Manufacturing Company became known as the largest producers of whetstones in the world. He was also president of the National Bank of Newbury, Vt., and of the Cortland Grinding Wheels Corporation of Chester, Mass.

He was a representative in the New Hampshire Legislature in 1903–04 and served as major on the staff of Governor Bass in 1911–12. He was also a thirty-second degree Mason.

He married 18 February 1911 Mrs. Mamie (Pearson) Rix, daughter of Robert Henry and Sarah (Harrison) Pearson of Birmingham, Ala. There were three children: Constance Harrison, Edwin Bertram, Jr., and Deborah. The son has succeeded to his father's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

George Wood, of Philadelphia, Pa., merchant, manufacturer, railway official, financier, a life member since 1922, was born in Philadelphia 1 July 1842, the son of Richard Davis and Julianna (Randolph) Wood, and died 17 February 1926.

He was a descendant of Richard[1] Wood of Bristol, England, who emigrated to America in 1683, through James,[2] who was born at Bristol 15 December 1671 and was brought to America by his father, Richard,[3] born in Philadelphia in November 1694, Richard,[4] who married Hannah Davis, of Welsh ancestry, Richard,[5] born 2 July 1755, whose wife was Elizabeth Bacon, and Richard Davis,[6] his father, who was born at Greenwich, Cumberland Co., N. J., 29 March 1799 and married Julianna Randolph, born in Philadelphia in October 1810, daughter of Edward and Mary (Taylor) Randolph and a descendant of Edward Fitzrandolph, who was at Scituate in the Plymouth Colony as early as 1637.

He was educated in the preparatory department of Haverford College, 1855–1860, entered in 1860 the employ of the firm of Wood & Garrett, manufacturers of cotton goods, and became a partner in the firm in 1863, being manager of the factory at Millville, N. J., where he remained for seven years. His firm was known later as George Wood, Sons & Company. He assisted his father in the development of the town of Vineland, N. J., was a director of the Millville & Glassboro Railroad Company, and negotiated the purchase of the Pleasantville & Ocean City line, which was subsequently merged with the West Jersey & Atlantic Railroad. He was president and principal owner of the Millville Manufacturing Company and the May's Landing Water Power Company, a director of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company since 1881, chairman of its finance committee since 1891, a director and chairman of the finance committee of the West Jersey & Seashore Railroad Company, and a director in various Philadelphia banks, trust companies, and insurance companies.

He was a member of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, the Academy of Natural Sciences, and of many clubs in Philadelphia and New York, including some devoted to art. He belonged to the Society of Friends.

He married 12 October 1864 Mary Sharpless Hunn, who survived him, daughter of Ezekiel and Lydia J. Hunn. They had eight children: Richard D., who died in infancy, Lydia H. (Mrs. Charles Winter Baily of Wayne, Pa.), George B., who died in his twenty-sixth year, Caroline (Mrs. Radclyffe Furness of Jenkintown, Pa.), Grahame of Philadelphia, Richard D. of Philadelphia, Mary (Mrs. Wiltsie of Philadelphia), and Dorothea.

Mrs. Annie Lyman (Delano) Hitch, of Newburgh, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Newburgh 8 January 1849, the daughter of Warren and Catharine Robbins (Lyman) Delano, and died there 6 March 1926.

She was a descendant of Philip[1] De La Noye, who was born at Leyden, Holland, in 1603 and died at Bridgewater, Mass., about 1681, through Lieut. Jonathan[2] Delano, who was born at Duxbury in the Plymouth Colony in 1647, married Mercy Warren, granddaughter of Richard Warren of the Mayflower, and died at Dartmouth, Mass., 23 December 1720, Thomas[3] of Dartmouth, Capt. Ephraim,[4] whose wife was Elizabeth Cushman, a descendant of Robert Cushman, Capt. Warren,[5] who was born 28 October 1779 and died at Fairhaven, Mass., 25 September 1866, and Warren,[6] her father, who was born 13 July 1809, married Catharine Robbins Lyman, daughter of Judge Joseph and Anna Jean (Hutchinson) Lyman, and died at Newburgh 17 January 1898.

She was married at Newburgh, 16 October 1877, to Frederic Delano Hitch of Shanghai, China, whom she survived, son of Capt. George and Abbie (Church) Hitch of Fairhaven; and they had a son, who died young. She was buried in Riverside Cemetery, Fairhaven.

Jeptha Homer Wade, M.A., of Cleveland, Ohio, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Cleveland 15 October 1857, the son of Randall Palmer and Anna R. (McGaw) Wade, and died at Thomasville, Ga., 6 March 1926.

He was a descendant of Benjamin[1] Wade, who was at Elizabethtown, N. J., as early as 1675, through Joseph,[3] grandson of Benjamin,[1] Andrew,[4] 1740–1781, Jeptha,[5] 1768–1813, of Morristown, N. J., and Romulus, N. Y., Jeptha Homer,[6] 1811–1889, developer of the electric telegraph, who built the first line west of Buffalo and the Wade lines in Ohio, was the first president of the Pacific Telegraph Company and of the Western Union Telegraph Company, and suggested enclosing submarine cables in iron armor, thus making intercontinental communication by telegraph possible, and Randall Palmer,[7] 1835–1876, his father.

Jeptha Homer[8] Wade, the subject of this memoir, was educated in private schools and by tutors, and was graduated from the Mount Pleasant Academy at Ossining, N. Y. His father died when the young man was only nineteen, and he became intimately associated with his grandfather in his undertakings. For forty years he was interested in a great variety of large business enterprises, including banks, railways, industrial administration, ore shipping, and real estate. At his death he was president of the Montreal Mining Company, vice president of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Company, and a director of the Union Trust Company, the Portland Cement Company, the Grasselli Chemical Company, the National Refining Company, and the Cleveland Stone Company.

His death occurred just after the Board of Directors of the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce had voted to award him its medal "for distinguished service to Cleveland," and he was often said to be the city's foremost benefactor. His gifts, made for the most part without publicity, amounted to millions, among them being a fund in memory of his wife, the income of which was to be used for more than two dozen charities, a fund in his own name, also to be used for charities, a fund for the Cleveland Protestant Orphan Asylum, and gifts to the Lakeside Hospital. His greatest interest, however, was in art. His grandfather began his career as a painter of portraits and was afterwards a maker of daguerreotypes, and the grandson seems to have inherited his appreciation of art. The Cleveland Museum of Art is one of his enduring monuments. He was one of its incorporators, a trustee, and its first vice president, and during the last years of his life he was its president. His gifts to this institution included the land upon which the Museum stands, a purchase fund of over a million dollars, and nearly three thousand works of art of various kinds. He was also one of the leading benefactors of the Cleveland School of Art, the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, and the Western Reserve Historical Society. Western Reserve University conferred on him the degree of Master of Arts.

He was an enthusiastic fisherman, hunter, and yachtsman, and was a member of many clubs in Cleveland and other cities. For twenty-three years his winter home had been in Thomasville, Ga.

Mr. Wade married 15 October 1878 Ellen Garretson, who died 21 May 1917, daughter of Hiram Garretson and a sister of Gen. George Garretson. Three children survive him, namely, Jeptha Homer Wade, 3d, George Garretson Wade, and Mrs. Edward B. Greene (Helen Wade), all of Cleveland.

Edmund James Baker Huntoon, of Milton, Mass., a resident member since 1913, was born at Canton, Mass., 29 September 1868, the son of Daniel Thomas Vose and Ella Augusta (French) Huntoon, and died at Milton 8 March 1926.

He traced his descent from Philip[1] Huntoon of Exeter, N. H., who died in 1752, through Philip,[2] 1694–1780, Benjamin,[3] 1729–1815, a soldier in the French and Indian War and also in the Revolution, Benjamin,[4] 1765–1856, who died at Salisbury, N. H., Rev. Benjamin,[5] A.B. (Dartmouth, 1817), A.M. (ib.), who was born at Salisbury 28 November 1792 and died at Canton, Mass., 19 April 1864, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1860 until his death (see memoir in Register, vol. 19, pp. 176–178), and Daniel Thomas Vose,[6] his father, who was born at Canton 4 September 1842, married there, 23 October 1867, Ella Augusta French (born at Canton 21 November 1845, daughter of Hon. Charles Howe and Almira Kimball (Everett) French and a descendant of John[1] French of Dorchester, 1639), and died at Canton 15 December 1886. Daniel Thomas Vose Huntoon was author of a history of Canton and of a history of the Huntoon family and became a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1874, serving on its Committee on Memorials from the establishment of this committee in 1878 until his death (see memoir in Register, vol. 41, pp. 328–329).

The subject of this memoir attended the public schools of Canton until 1885, and then continued his studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where for two years and a half he was affiliated with the Class of 1889, but did not complete the course for a degree. For several years he was connected with the Boston Gas Light Company, but later, from 1898 until his death, he was with the Stone & Webster organization. He was a member of the Hoosic Whisick Club of Canton, of which he was treasurer for twenty-five years, and also of the Exchange Club.

He married 18 April 1911 Ida Hersey Vose, daughter of Charles and Mary Ann Barrett (Hersey) Vose, whose immigrant ancestor, Robert[1] Vose of Milton, 1641, was also an ancestor of Mr. Huntoon. Four years before his death Mr. Huntoon purchased part of the estate at Milton once owned by Capt. Thomas Vose, 1667–1722, son of the first Robert, and there his family still resides. Mrs. Huntoon survives her husband, together with their only son, Daniel Thomas Vose Huntoon, 2d, and a brother, Daniel Thomas Vose Huntoon of Philadelphia, Pa.

John Leverett Moore, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born in New York City 6 June 1859, the son of Alexander Thompson and Fidelia Wellman (Leverett) Moore, and died there 10 March 1926.

His father, who was of Irish descent, was born in New York City 25 July 1828 and became a clothing and dry-goods merchant there. His mother, born in Boston 11 May 1828, was the daughter of John Leverett, 1793–1848, who was seventh in descent from Thomas Leverett.

John Leverett Moore was prepared for college by private tutors, and, entering Princeton, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1881 and that of Master of Arts in 1884. He was tutor of Latin at Princeton, 1882–1885, a graduate student at the Johns Hopkins University, 1885–1887, a fellow in Latin there, 1887–88, a fellow by courtesy, 1889–1891, and instructor in Latin, 1888–89, and he received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy there in 1891. From 1891 on he was professor of Latin at Vassar College.

He was a member of the American Philological Association, the Archæological Institute of America, the Jury on Classical Fellowships of the American Academy in Rome, Italy, and the University and Princeton Clubs of New York City.

He married 23 December 1891 Nancy Clark Williams, daughter of John Howell and Nancy Williamson (Campbell) Williams. There were two children, Nancy Campbell Moore and Fidelia Leverett Moore (Mrs. Charles Holt Taylor of Cambridge, Mass.). Mrs. Taylor survives her father and has succeeded to his Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Mrs. Anna Eliza (Wilde) Nietert, of Walker, Iowa, a resident member since 1924, was born at Hennepin, Ill., 24 October 1855, the daughter of Edmond and Eleanor (Drummond) Wilde, and died before 18 March 1926.

Her father was born in a village near Oldham, co. Lancaster, England, 10 February 1820, and died 23 July 1856. Her mother was born at Sherbrooke, Canada, 2 December 1829, the daughter of John and Daraxa (Willard) Drummond, Daraxa Willard, 1807–1838, being a descendant of Maj. Simon[1] Willard, a founder of Concord, Mass.

She was educated at a private school, in the public schools of Waverly, Bremer co., Iowa, and at the Elgin (Ill.) Academy, where she specialized in music. Then she taught school in Linn Co., Iowa, for a year, until her marriage.

She was married 4 May 1881 to Henry John Nietert, son of John Henry Gotleib and Caroline Wilhelmina Dorothea (Buhlman) Nietert.

She worked out the genealogy of the different families to which her own and her husband's ancestors belonged, collected the data contained in the appendix to the Willard genealogy, published in 1915, and issued in booklet form data on the Nietert, Buhlman, and Wildman or Wilde families, from the time these families took root in the United States.

She had two children, Roscoe Henry Nietert and Gertrude Eleanor Nietert (Mrs. Theodore W. Hawkinson of Walker, Iowa), who survives her.

William Warren Shilling, A.B., of Sharon, Pa., a life member since 1925, was born at Wheatland, Pa., 24 October 1856, the son of Henry and Mary (Hann) Shilling, and died unmarried at Sharon 21 March 1926.

His grandfather, George Shilling, blacksmith, who was born in Westmoreland Co., Pa., 24 February 1781, married Elizabeth McBride, and died in 1860, was an early pioneer of Hickory Township. His father, Henry Shilling, was born in Westmoreland County 2 April 1812 and died 16 September 1882. Mr. Shilling's mother, Mary Hann, was born 11 December 1816, the daughter of Jacob and Elizabeth (Roof) Hann, who settled on a tract of five hundred acres in Mercer County, which became the borough site of the town of Wheatland.

He was educated in the Wheatland public schools, studied for two terms at the State Normal School at Edinboro, Pa., took a full course at Eastman's Business College, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., and was graduated at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., in 1880, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts. He read law with able lawyers at Mercer, Pa., and was admitted to the bar of Mercer County in 1882. In the fall of the same year he began to practise law at Sharon, and about two years later formed a partnership with Thomas Tanner, under the name of Tanner & Shilling, a firm which became widely and favorably known. About 1891 he became interested in manufacturing, and for several years was president of the Sharon Boiler Works. He was interested also in the Michigan iron-ore fields, and was president of the Sharon Railway Company, which controls an important valley link in the Erie system, and of the Sharon Foundry Company.

Mr. Shilling was a Republican in politics, a member of the local lodge of Masons, and a man of high character and keen intellect. As a business man, he was correct, honorable, and progressive.

Two brothers, Albert Shilling of Wheatland and Jacob Shilling of Sharon, and a sister, Mary L. Shilling of Mercer, survive him, together with two nephews and six nieces.

Henry Ayling Phillips, S.B., of Millbury, Mass., a resident member since 1904, was born in Boston 19 August 1852, the son of Elijah Brigham and Maria Rebecca (Ayling) Phillips, and died in a hospital there 25 March 1926.

He traced his descent from Rev. George[1] Phillips, a graduate of Cambridge University, who came to New England in the fleet with Winthrop in 1630, became the first minister at Watertown, Mass., and died there 1 July 1644, through Theophilus,[2] Joseph,[3] 1702–1772, of Oxford, Mass., Jonathan,[4] 1732–1798, of Sturbridge, Mass., Ebenezer Humphrey,[5] 1756–1838, of Charlton, Mass., Ebenezer Morgan[6] of Westborough, Mass., and Elijah Brigham[7] of Brookline, Mass., his father, who was born at Sutton, Mass., 20 August 1819 and married Maria Rebecca Ayling, born in Boston 12 October 1822, daughter of Henry and Mehitable (Copeland) Ayling.

He was educated in the primary and grammar schools of Boston, in the grammar and high schools of Chicago, Ill., and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he was graduated in 1873, being the first to receive from the Institute the degree of Bachelor of Science in Architecture. He then studied for a year at the École des Beaux Arts, in Paris, and later he opened an office in Boston, where he designed many notable residences in New England and continued in practice as an architect until 1923.

He married 4 October 1888 Florence Elizabeth Waters, daughter of Col. Asa Holman and Mary Elizabeth (Hovey) Waters of Millbury; and after his marriage he made his home in that town, where he took a lively interest in local affairs. He was a member of the executive committee of the Millbury Centennial Celebration, chairman of the committee of the Millbury Centennial Historical Exhibition of 1913, and a member and secretary of the committee having in charge the publication of the Millbury Centennial History. He was deeply interested in historical and genealogical matters, and made much use of the library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. He was a member of the Boston Society of Architects and of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers.

His wife survives him, together with a sister, Mrs. C. A. Page of Santa Barbara, Calif., and a brother, Walter B. Phillips of Boston.

Mrs. Anna Maria (Richardson) Harkness, of New York City, philanthropist, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Dalton, Ohio, 25 October 1837, the daughter of James and Anna Maria (Rank) Richardson, and died in New York City 27 March 1926.

She was married 14 February 1853 to Stephen Vanderburgh Harkness, son of Dr. David and Martha (Cook) Harkness. Her husband was connected with the Standard Oil Company from its inception.

For many years she lived in Cleveland, Ohio, but moved in 1891 to New York City, where she resided until her death. She led a very quiet, secluded life, but was greatly interested in charitable and educational institutions. Her largest gifts were made to Yale University, and amounted in all to nine millions of dollars. Chief among these is the Memorial Quadrangle, a group of dormitories for Seniors, erected in memory of her son, Charles William Harkness, B.A. (Yale, 1883), who died in 1916. In 1920 she gave to Yale three millions more, on condition that another two millions be raised, the completed fund to be used to increase the salaries of members of the faculty. Another large gift was to the new Presbyterian Hospital in New York. She also gave liberally to the New York Public Library, the Metropolitan Museum of Art, the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of which she was member, and the Union Theological Seminary, and left a memorial to the College for Women of Western Reserve University.

A son, Edward Stephen Harkness of New York City, B.A. (Yale, 1897), M.A. (ib., 1925), a Pilgrim Tercentenary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1919, and a half sister, Mrs. T. J. Anderson of Caledonia, Ohio, a daughter of her mother by a second marriage, survive her.

Hon. Albert Davis Bosson, A.B., A.M., of Chelsea, Mass., a resident member since 1891, was born at Chelsea 8 November 1853, the son of George Chapman and Mary Jane (Hood) Bosson, and died in Boston 4 April 1926.

He traced his descent from Joshua[1] Bosson of Beverly, Mass., in 1702, who came from the Isle of Jersey, through William,[2] A.B. (Harvard, 1723), A.M. (ib., 1726), William,[3] Jonathan D.,[4] a soldier of the Revolution, born at Roxbury, Mass., 14 June 1762, Jonathan D.,[5] born at Salem, Mass., 1 January 1786, and George Chapman,[6] his father, who was born at Charlestown, Mass., 11 October 1825 and married Mary Jane Hood, born at Salem 23 November 1827, daughter of Rev. Jacob and Sophia (Needham) Hood.

He received his early education in the public schools of Chelsea, where he was graduated at the high school in 1867, at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and at the University Grammar School, Providence, R. I., entered Brown University, and was admitted there to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1875 and that of Master of Arts in 1878. He read law in the office of Brooks, Ball & Storey of Boston, and took a course at the Boston University Law School. He was admitted to the Suffolk bar in February 1878 and was in active practice — part of the time sharing offices with Augustus L. Thorndike, the former bank commissioner — until he began his career as judge in the Police Court, later the District Court, of Chelsea, a position which he held until his death. About 1891 the condition of his health obliged him to relinquish all court work, except that necessitated by his duties as judge, so that his legal practice after that date was of inconsiderable proportions. Business affairs, too, demanded more and more of his time. He was a director of the Naumkeag Mills, Salem, president and director of the Boston & Lockport Block Company of East Boston, chairman of the Board of Directors of the Hood Rubber Company, the first, and up to the time of his death the only, president of the County Savings Bank of Chelsea, a director of the Broadway National Bank of Chelsea, and a director and member of the finance committee of the Conveyancers' Title Insurance Company.

In 1891 he served his native city as mayor, and his interest in the history of Chelsea led him to prepare a paper on "The Battle of Chelsea in 1775," which he read at a stated meeting of the New England Historic Genealogical Society on 2 November 1898 and which was published later in the Register of the Old Suffolk Chapter, Sons of the American Revolution.

Judge Bosson was a member and for a number of years senior warden of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Chelsea. His clubs included the Episcopalian, St. Botolph, Twentieth Century, University, and Massachusetts Reform Clubs, and the Review Club of Chelsea. He had a house at 27 Hereford Street, Boston, and a summer home at Nahant. He had crossed the Atlantic Ocean about fifty times and had travelled extensively in Europe.

He married 18 May 1887 Alice Lavinia Campbell of Chelsea, daughter of Charles Abner and Lavinia (Hutchinson) Campbell, who survives him, together with a son, Campbell Bosson, A.B. (Harvard, 1911), LL.B. (ib., 1913), a Boston attorney, who since July 1926 has been a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, a daughter, Mrs. Pauline A. B. Seamans of Salem, five grandchildren, a sister, Mrs. Jennie B. Hatch of Reading, Mass., and two brothers, Frederick N. Bosson of Calumet, Mich., and George C. Bosson of Washington, D. C.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Tuttle) Dary, of Brookline, Mass., a resident member since 1918, was born in Boston in December 1844, the daughter of Erastus S. and Susan Elizabeth (Hardy) Tuttle, and died at Brookline 13 April 1926.

She belonged to the Tuttle family of New Hamsphire, her father, who was born at Newmarket, N. H., and died in Boston 6 June 1890, aged 74 years, being a son of Benjamin B. and Dolly Tuttle of Lee, N. H. He was a merchant in Boston for a number of years.

She was married at Taunton, Mass., 7 October 1868, to George Allen Dary, son of George Leonard and Rebekah Gulliver (Stall) Dary of Taunton. Her husband was a bookkeeper at the time of his marriage, but was admitted to the bar in 1872, practised law in Boston, and died 30 December 1905.

Mrs. Dary was a member of the Bostonian Society and of the Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, and took an active interest in the work of the organizations with which she was connected. Her presence at the stated meetings of the New England Historic Genealogical Society is a pleasant memory to many who met her there. Her religious affiliations were with the Unitarians.

Mr. and Mrs. Dary had four daughters: Mrs. Jeannette Tuttle (Dary) Philbrick, now deceased, Louise Stall Dary, who died in childhood, Mrs. Gorham Rogers (Marian Hardy Dary) of Brookline, and Mrs. Henry Merk Smith Aiken (Rebekah Stall Dary) of Wellesley Hills, Mass. Besides her daughters, Mrs. Rogers and Mrs. Aiken, six grandchildren survive her.

Lewis Abbott Crossett, of Boston, a resident member since 1911, was born at Springfield, Mass., 29 January 1859, the son of Robert and Ruth Ellen (Lewis) Crossett, and died at Cohasset, Mass., 24 April 1926.

His great-great-grandfather, Robert Crossett, was born in 1723. His great-grandfather, Samuel Crossett, was born 25 December 1750 and died 2 November 1803. His grandfather, Robert Crossett, was born 18 May 1781 and died 16 April 1842. His father, Robert Crossett, was born in Boston 21 August 1809, married Ruth Ellen Lewis, daughter of Jason and Ruth (Wilkinson) Lewis, and died 24 March 1862.

He was educated in the public schools, and in his early twenties entered the business of shoe manufacturing, in which he continued until his death, from 1885 to 1902 in his own name and later under the name of Lewis A. Crossett, Inc., a corporation of which he was president and treasurer. He was always an active factor in the business and one of the leading men in this branch of industry. He was also a director of the Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Company and president and director of the Northfield Hotel Company.

He was greatly interested in the schools at Northfield, Mass., which were founded by the late Dwight L. Moody, and he had served as a member of the board of directors of these schools. For many years the Young Men's Christian Association had received his special attention. In 1903 he gave to the town of Abington, Mass., a fully equipped Young Men's Christian Association building, and for years he was a director and trustee of that local institution, a director of the Boston and of the State Associations and also of the National Committee of the Association, and a trustee of the Naval Young Men's Christian Association at Charlestown. At one time he was chairman of the State Committee of the Association for Massachusetts and Rhode Island. In the World War he was appointed a special commissioner of the War Work Council of the Association, and spent the summers of 1917 and 1918 with the American, British, and French Armies on French soil. His religious affiliations were with the Old South Church, in Boston, of which he was a deacon for a number of years.

He was a member of the Algonquin, Exchange, and Merchants Clubs of Boston, of the Union League and Metropolitan Clubs of New York, and of the Massachusetts Society, Sons of the American Revolution, tracing his ancestry to fifteen forbears who served in the Revolution.

He married 14 January 1882 Sarah Foster Dow, daughter of Charles H. and Sarah Elizabeth (Hunt) Dow of Braintree, Mass., who survives him, together with a daughter, Mrs. Austin S. Kibbe (Ruth Lewis Crossett) of Hingham, Mass.

Edward Augustus Bowen, of Woodstock, Conn., elected a resident member in 1895, made a life member in 1896, and enrolled as a Pilgrim Tercentenary member in 1919, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 31 January 1847, the son of Henry Chandler and Lucy Maria (Tappan) Bowen, and died unmarried at Woodstock 12 May 1926.

He belonged to the distinguished Bowen family of Woodstock and of New York, whose immigrant ancestor, Griffith[1] Bowen, gentleman, from Glamorganshire, Wales, was admitted, with his wife Margaret (Fleming), to the church in Boston 6 February 1638/9. He lived for several years at Roxbury, Mass., but returned to Wales with his wife and some of his children, probably in 1649, and in his later years lived in London. He died in England between 11 March 1672/3 and the early days of 1676. Some of his children, however, remained in New England, and the subject of this memoir traced his descent from him through Lieut. Henry[2] of Roxbury, Mass., and of Woodstock, Conn., who married Elizabeth Johnson and died at Woodstock 13 March 1723/4, Isaac,[3] who was born at Roxbury 20 April 1676, married Hannah Winchester, and died at Stoughton, Mass., 1 January 1726/7, Henry,[4] who was born at Framingham, Mass., 30 March 1700, married Margaret Corbin, and died at Woodstock 1 January 1758, Capt. Matthew,[5] an officer in the Revolution, who was born at Woodstock 22 October 1724, married Mary Dana, and died there 16 February 1806, William,[6] who was born at Woodstock 28 December 1763, married Mary Chandler, and died 14 May 1837, Lieut. George,[7] who was born at Woodstock 8 June 1789, married Lydia Wolcott Eaton, and died 6 January 1846, and Henry Chandler,[8] his father, who was born at Woodstock 11 September 1813, married first, 6 June 1844, Lucy Maria Tappan (born in Boston 17 February 1825, daughter of Lewis and Susanna (Aspinwall) Tappan), and died in Brooklyn, N. Y., 24 February 1896. Henry Chandler Bowen was one of the founders, in 1848, of The Independent, and from 1861 on he was the sole proprietor of this well-known religious periodical, which has numbered among its editors such famous Congregational ministers as Rev. Richard Salter Storrs, S.T.D., and Rev. Henry Ward Beecher. Mr. Bowen was known also for the annual celebration of Independence Day which in his later years he arranged at Roseland Park, in Woodstock. He was a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1858 until his death.*

Edward Augustus Bowen was educated at home, at Dwight and Holbrook's School, and at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute. At the age of seventeen he entered the employ of Fitch, Estee & Company, wholesale and retail stationers, of 3 Park Place, New York City, and after remaining with this firm for a year became a clerk in the office of Robinson & Ogden, brokers, of 4 Broad Street, New York City. In the following year he entered, as a clerk, the employ of Jay Cooke & Company, bankers, of 1 Nassau Street, New York City, on the day on which this firm opened its New York office. He was with this firm for nearly three years, and then became junior partner in the stock-brokerage firm of Smith, Seaver & Bowen, of 8 Broad Street, New York City. At the end of the year, however, the partnership was dissolved, and Mr. Bowen joined with his father and brother, Henry E. Bowen, in purchasing The Brooklyn Daily Union. The Bowens sold this newspaper in the autumn of 1873, and thereafter Mr. Bowen did not engage in regular business, but spent his time in farming, in travelling in the United States and abroad, in genealogical research in New York City, New England, London, and Wales, and in such office work, for a few months at a time, as he saw fit to undertake. He usually spent his winters in Brooklyn, and his summer residence was at Woodstock.

Mr. Bowen compiled a manuscript genealogy of the Aspinwall family of Brookline, Mass., the first part of which was published in the Register, vol. 47, pp. 342–348 (July 1893), while the entire manuscript was deposited with the New England Historic Genealogical Society. To the same volume of the Register, pp. 453–459 (October 1893), he contributed an article entitled "Griffith Bowen of Boston," and in 1897 he published a more comprehensive genealogy of the Bowen family under the title "Lineage of the Bowens of Woodstock, Connecticut."

Surviving younger brothers of Mr. Bowen are Clarence Winthrop Bowen of New York City, B.A. (Yale, 1873), M.A. (ib., 1876), Ph.D. (ib., 1882), LL.D. (William and Mary College, 1918), historian, publisher and proprietor of The Independent, 1896–1912, a founder, 1884, and first treasurer, 1884–1917, of the American Historical Association, president of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, vice president of the Connecticut Historical Society and of the American Antiquarian Society, and a member of other historical organizations, and Herbert Wolcott Bowen of Woodstock, B.A. (Yale, 1903, as of 1878), LL.B. (Columbia, 1881), honorary M.A. (Yale, 1903), lawyer, author, diplomat. Mr. Bowen's grandnephew, Henry Bowen White of Boston, has succeeded him in his Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Franklin Solomon Cooley, of Belmont, Mass., a resident member since 1913, was born at Malone, Franklin Co., N. Y., 27 October 1858, the son of Arthur Benjamin and Mary Elizabeth (Bostwick) Cooley, and died at Belmont 18 May 1926.

He traced his descent from Benjamin[1] Cooley, who was at Springfield, Mass., as early as 1646, through Eliakim,[2] Samuel,[3] Israel,[4] Joel[5] of Connecticut, Levi,[6] who was born at Charlestown, N. H., in 1761 and settled in Plattsburgh, N. Y., Levi,[7] who was born at Stillwater, N. Y., in 1792, and Arthur Benjamin,[8] his father, who was born at Montreal, Canada, 22 November 1822 and married Mary Elizabeth Bostwick, born at Champlain, Clinton Co., N. Y., 20 October 1830, daughter of Solomon and Sally Cable (Thurber) Bostwick.

He was educated in the public schools of Malone, N. Y., and came to Brookline, Mass., where for some years he was employed as an engraver. Then he accepted a secretarial position, and finally became a salesman.

He married 15 January 1885 Lucy Pamela Williams, who survives him, daughter of Adin and Lucy Ann (Fiske) Williams. They had two children, Arthur Samuel Cooley, an artist, and Lucy Fiske Cooley, for a number of years a teacher.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Field) (Bates) Spalding, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Beloit, Wis., 26 February 1845, the daughter of Alfred Lorenzo and Elizabeth (Lusk) Field, and died in Brooklyn 21 May 1926.

She was a descendant of Zechariah[1] Field, who was at Hartford, Conn., in 1639 and was later of Northampton and Hatfield, Mass., through Sergt. Samuel[2] of Hatfield, who served in King Philip's War and was killed by Indians over twenty years later, 24 June 1697, Thomas[3] of Hatfield and Longmeadow (then a parish of Springfield), Mass., Dr. Simeon,[4] 1731–1801, of Enfield, Conn., who married Margaret Reynolds, Peter Reynolds,[5] who was born at Enfield 28 February 1774 and died at Beloit, Wis., 20 October 1856, and Alfred Lorenzo,[6] her father, miller, bank cashier, and merchant, a soldier in the Civil War, who was born at Colebrook, N. H., 16 April 1809 and died at Delavan, Wis., 14 December 1868, whose wife, Elizabeth Lusk, was born at Enfield, Conn., 19 August 1814, daughter of Sylvester and Sarah (King) Lusk.

She was educated at the seminary in Beloit and at the schools of the Misses Howland and Madame Mears in New York City.

She was married first, 25 October 1871, to James Hale Bates, son of James and Sarah (Robbins) Bates, a gifted man who was prevented by ill health from completing his college course at the University of Michigan and went into business in New York; and secondly, 12 February 1908, to William Dixon Spalding, B.A. (Williams, 1860), journalist, who lived for many years in London, England, and died at Proctorsville, Vt., 25 July 1925, son of Asa Leffingwell and Mary (Dixon) Spalding. Mr. and Mrs. Bates resided in Brooklyn, and had four children, who died in infancy.

Mrs. Spalding was succeeded in her Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society by her nephew, James Alfred Field, A.B. (Harvard, 1903), professor of political economy at the University of Chicago, who died in Boston 15 July 1927.

Hon. John West Churchill, of Plymouth, Mass., a resident member since 1917, was born at Plymouth 17 November 1853, the son of John and Martha G. (Bagnell) Churchill, and died there, unmarried, 30 May 1926.

He was a descendant of John[1] Churchill, who was at Plymouth in New England in 1643, married 18 December 1644 Hannah Pontus, and died 1 January 1662/3, through Eliezur[2] of Plymouth, Stephen,[3] Ephraim,[4] 1709– 1749, Ansel,[5] John,[6] 1775–1841, George,[7] 1803–1871, and John,[8] his father, a merchant in Plymouth, who was born 6 July 1828, married Martha G. Bagnell, and died 27 October 1895.

He was educated in the public schools of his native town, and, after his graduation, learned the trade of carpenter, and for a long time was a leading contractor and builder in Plymouth and vicinity. Later he became extensively interested in cranberry culture, and was prominent as an officer of the Old Colony Cranberry Growers' Association.

He was a member of the Plymouth Fire Department in the old volunteer days, served the town as a selectman, was for a long period chairman of the Plymouth Water Board, and was a member of the building committees of some of the public buildings in Plymouth. He was one of the first members of the Plymouth Chamber of Commerce, and during the World War was chairman of the Exemption Board for Plymouth. He represented his district in the Massachusetts General Court in 1915, 1916, and 1917, and was State senator for two years.

He was a trustee of the Pilgrim Society and a member of the Old Colony Club of Plymouth, the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, and the Society of Sons of the American Revolution. On matters of local history he was well posted and an authority, and he served on the Plymouth Pilgrim Tercentenary Committee in 1921. He was a thirty-second degree Mason and was connected with Masonic organizations in Plymouth and Boston.

John Goddard Phillips, of Sharon, Mass., a life member since 1896, was born at Sharon 29 May 1848, the son of Rev. Lebbeus Rude and Susanna Heath (Goddard) Phillips, and died there 8 June 1926.

He was perhaps a descendant of Nicholas[1] Phillips, through Richard[2] and Capt. John[3] of Weymouth, Mass., who died in 1760, but there seems to be some doubt about the early generations of this line. If it is correct, the descent was continued through Thomas,[4] born in 1712, Capt. Philip,[5] 1739–1800, of Ashfield, Mass., Elijah,[6] 1759–1840, of Ashfield, Elijah[7] of Ashfield and Buckland, Mass., whose wife was Fannie Rude, and Rev. Lebbeus Rude,[8] his father, B.A. (Williams, 1836), a graduate of the East Windsor (Conn.) Theological Institute in 1839, who was born at Ashfield 1 November 1806, married Susanna Heath Goddard (born at Portland, Me., 25 September 1816, daughter of John Heath and Almira (Porter) Goddard and a descendant of a Portsmouth (N. H.) family), and died in 1886. Rev. Lebbeus Rude Phillips became pastor of the Congregational Church at Sharon in 1841, and moved to Groton, Mass., in 1861.

John Goddard Phillips was educated at Lawrence Academy, Groton, and was for a while a student at Williams College in the Class of 1871. After a year as a clerk he became associated with George P. Eustis and conducted, under the firm name of Eustis & Phillips, a commission business in Boston. Later the name of the firm was changed to Wendell, Eustis & Phillips, after Abram Q. Wendell, Jr., joined it, and they carried on the business of shipping merchants in the foreign export and import trade for a number of years. After thirty years of active business life Mr. Phillips retired in 1901, and took up his residence in his native town, in whose affairs he manifested a vital interest and took an active part.

He married 8 October 1874 Mary Williams Nightingale, daughter of Rev. Crawford and Mary Hoyt (Williams) Nightingale of Providence, R. I., and Groton, Mass., and they went to reside in Dorchester, Mass. They had four children, Mary Nightingale, John King, Anna Goddard, and Nightingale. Mr. Phillips's wife and two daughters, Mary Nightingale Phillips and Anna Goddard Phillips, survive him.

Mrs. Mary Anne (Witherton) Russell, of Boston, a resident member since 1913, was born 15 February 1835, and died at Roxbury (Boston), Mass., 11 June 1926.

She was the widow of Charles S. Russell, who was connected with the automobile business in Roxbury and died 15 December 1916, the son of Artemas and Lavina (Smith) Russell of Middletown, N. Y.

She was a member of the Baptist congregation of Tremont Temple, Boston, and, even in her advanced age, was a regular attendant at the meetings of the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Augustus George Bullock, A.B., A.M., of Worcester, Mass., a life member since 1891, was born at Enfield, Conn., 2 June 1847, the son of Hon. Alexander Hamilton and Elvira (Hazard) Bullock, and died at Worcester 22 June 1926.

He was a descendant of Richard[1] Bullock, who was at Rehoboth in the Plymouth Colony in 1643, where he held the office of town clerk and died in 1667, through Samuel,[2] Ebenezer,[3] Hugh,[4] 1706–1771, Hugh,[5] 1751–1837, a Revolutionary soldier, Hon. Rufus,[6] 1779–1858, who married Sarah Davis of Rindge, N. H., represented Royalston, Mass., in the Massachusetts General Court and his district twice in the Massachusetts Senate, and was a delegate to the Constitutional Conventions of Massachusetts in 1820 and 1852, and Hon. Alexander Hamilton[7] of Worcester, his father, lawyer and public servant, B.A. (Amherst, 1836), LL.D. (ib., 1865, Harvard, 1866), who was born at Royalston 2 March 1816, married 29 August 1844 Elvira Hazard, daughter of Augustus George Hazard of Enfield, Conn., and died at Worcester 17 January 1882. Alexander Hamilton Bullock was a representative in the Massachusetts General Court, 1845–1847 and 1861–1865 (speaker of the House, 1862–1865), State senator, 1849, commissioner of insolvency, 1853–1856, judge of the Court of Insolvency, 1856–1858, mayor of Worcester, 1859, and Governor of Massachusetts, 1866–1868. He was a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society and the American Antiquarian Society, and was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society on 6 September 1865, becoming a life member in 1868.*

Augustus George Bullock was prepared for college under the tuition of Elbridge J. Cutler, and, entering Harvard, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1868 and that of Master of Arts, in course, in 1871. In college he was active in class and society affairs.

In February 1868 he was appointed by his father, then serving his third term as Governor of the Commonwealth, as his private and military secretary, with the rank of lieutenant colonel. After a period devoted to travel in Europe and after reading law in New York City he settled in Worcester, and became connected with the banking firm of Rice & Whiting. In April 1875 he was admitted to the bar, and practised law in Worcester until 1883. He was, at various times, an officer in many important enterprises, serving as chairman of the Board of Directors and vice president of the State Mutual Life Assurance Company, president of the Worcester & Shrewsbury Railroad Company, a director of the Norwich & Worcester Railroad Company, the Providence & Worcester Railroad Company, the Boston and Albany Railroad Company, the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company, and the Worcester Gas Light Company, a trustee of the Worcester County Institution for Savings, a director of the Worcester National Bank, president and treasurer of the State Safe Deposit Company, and a director of the American Loan & Trust Company of Boston and of the New England Investment & Security Company.

* Cf. memoirs of Governor Bullock in the Register, vol. 36, pp. 413–414, and in Memorial Biographies of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, vol. 8, pp. 87–88.

He was greatly interested in many institutions that served the public, and was president of the Worcester Music Hall Association and the Worcester Theatre Corporation, a trustee of the Worcester State Hospital, and president of the Board of Trustees of Clark University. He was also chairman of the Committee on Fine Arts of the World's Columbian Exposition in 1893, a life member of the Royal Society of Arts of London, England, and a member of the American Antiquarian Society, the Archæological Institute of America, and the American Bar Association.

In politics he was a Democrat, and had been president of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts. He was a member also of the University, Harvard, Reform, and Democratic Clubs of New York, the University, Somerset, Union, and Exchange Clubs of Boston, the Tatnuck Country and Worcester Clubs of Worcester, and the Authors' Club of London.

He married 4 October 1871 Mary Chandler, daughter of George and Josephine (Rose) Chandler of Worcester, who survives him and has been a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1906. They had four sons, of whom Chandler, A.B. (Harvard, 1894), LL.B. (ib., 1897), Alexander Hamilton, A.B. (Harvard, 1896), and Rockwood Hoar, A.B. (Harvard, 1903), all of Worcester, survive their father, while Augustus George died in infancy.

The Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws reported that they had considered the proposed amendments to the By-Laws referred to them under the vote passed at a stated meeting of the Society, 4 May 1927, but did not deem it expedient to submit at this time their recommendations in regard to the amendments referred to them, as a draft of a complete revision of the By-Laws of the Society had been prepared and would be submitted to the Society for its consideration; and, on motion, it was Voted, That the report of the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws be accepted and ordered on file.

A draft of a complete revision of the By-Laws was then laid before the Society by James Melville Hunnewell, and, on motion, it was Voted, That the draft of a complete revision of the By-Laws submitted to the Society this day be referred to the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws, that said Committee be authorized to make such minor changes in this draft as it deems expedient, and that the Committee be requested to report its recommendations in regard to this draft at the next stated meeting of the Society.

The Chair then presented, as the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Harriette Merrifield Forbes of Worcester, Mass., whose paper, entitled Early New England Gravestones and the Men Who Made Them, was illustrated with lantern slides and gave the results of the writer's extended and painstaking researches in her efforts to establish the identity of the various stonecutters who made many of the curiously carved gravestones of the early Colonial era in New England.

On motion of Hosea Starr Ballou the thanks of the Society were extended to Mrs. Forbes for her interesting and scholarly paper.

No further business being presented, the President, at 3.50 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and the members of the Society and their guests tarried for the hospitable social hour that marked the opening of a new lecture season.

2 November. A stated meeting of the Society was held in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, at 2.30 P.M., George Andrews Moriarty, Jr., Vice President for Rhode Island, presiding.

The minutes of the October meeting were read and approved, and the reports of the Corresponding Secretary, Librarian, Historian, and Council were accepted, the Council reporting that since the October meeting members of the Society had been elected as follows:

William Edward Lovell Dillaway of Boston, Mass., in 1927.
Charles Alanson Barnard of Plattsburgh, N. Y., ———.

A report of the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws was presented, reading as follows:

"The Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws has considered carefully the proposed revision of the By-Laws referred to it by the Society at the stated meeting of 5 October 1927, and unanimously recommends the adoption of this revision."

On motion it was Voted, That the report of the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws be accepted and ordered on file.

Voted, That action on the proposed revision of the By-Laws, the adoption of which has been unanimously recommended by the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws in its report submitted this day, be taken by the Society at its stated meeting on 7 December 1927, and that the Recording Secretary be and hereby is instructed to mail to every Pilgrim Tercentenary, Life, and Resident Member of the Society, with the notice of the December meeting, a printed copy of said proposed revision of the By-Laws.

On motion it was Voted, That the Society proceed to the election of the Nominating Committee, agreeable to the provisions of the By-Laws.

That three tellers be appointed by the Chair, and that said tellers shall distribute, receive, sort, and count the ballots, and make a report at this meeting.

That the polls be now opened, and stand open until every member present has had opportunity to vote.

The Chair appointed as tellers Messrs. William Ogilvie Comstock, George Herbert Waterhouse, and Frederic Winthrop, and the election by ballot of the Nominating Committee took place.

After the polls had been closed, Vice President Moriarty called upon Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse, Chairman of the Committee on Papers and Essays, to preside during a round-table discussion of the question: Who Have Had the Greater Influence in the Development of Our Nation, the Pilgrims or the Puritans? Mr. Morse presented first Rev. Carroll Perry, of Ipswich, Mass., who spoke for the Pilgrims of Plymouth, and Mr. Perry was followed by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart, of Cambridge, Mass., who ascribed the greater influence in the development of the Nation to the Puritans of the Massachusetts Bay Colony. After the two leaders of the discussion had presented to the Society their carefully prepared opinions as to the importance of the Pilgrims and Puritans, respectively, in the history of the Nation, several members of the Society spoke briefly on one side or the other of the question, and the results of the discussion were summed up by the Chairman of the Committee on Papers and Essays, who suggested that the Pilgrims had the idea and the Puritans the strength to carry it on.

Vice President Moriarty, on resuming the chair, called for a vote of thanks to Messrs. Perry and Hart, which was adopted by a unanimous vote of the large number of members present.

The Chair then called for the report of the tellers, which was presented by William Ogilvie Comstock, and showed that Hosea Starr Ballou of Brookline, Everett Jefts Beede of Belmont, Mrs. Mary Christina (Harris) Haff of Newton, Mrs. Ella May (Swint) Lewis of Springfield, and T. Julien Silsby of Boston had been elected members of the Nominating Committee.

No further business being presented, Vice President Moriarty, at 4.10 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and the members of the Society and their friends tarried for the usual refreshments in the adjoining tea room.

7 December. A stated meeting of the Society was held in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, at 2.30 P.M., Albert Henry Lamson, Vice President for New Hampshire, presiding.

The minutes of the November meeting were read and approved, and the reports of the Corresponding Secretary, Librarian, Historian, and Council were accepted, the Council reporting that since the November meeting members of the Society had been elected as follows:

Frederic Lathrop Colver of Tenafly, N. J., 11 November 1927.
Frank Ephraim Herbert Gary of Newton, Mass., 17 November 1927.
Mrs. Amy Gore (Walker) Iasigi of Stockbridge, Mass., 23 November 1927.

The report of the Nominating Committee was read by Hosea Starr Ballou, Chairman of the Committee, and was accepted.

The Chair appointed William Brown Snow and Howard Dakin French as Auditors to audit the accounts of the Treasurer for the current year.

Action on the proposed revision of the By-Laws of the Society being in order, in accordance with a vote of the Society of 2 November 1927, James Melville Hunnewell offered five amendments to the text of the proposed revision of the By-Laws, and the following votes embodying these amendments were unanimously adopted:

Voted, That Section 3 of Article IV of the proposed revision of the By-Laws be amended by transferring the last paragraph of said section, which begins with the words "Any Annual, Corresponding or Honorary Member," etc., to Section 4 of said article, where said paragraph shall be inserted after the fourth paragraph of said section, which begins with the words "A Life Member of one of the first three classes," etc.

Voted, That Section 7 of Article IV of the proposed revision of the By-Laws be amended by substituting for the words "except the first classes of Annual and of Life Members" the words "except the first class of Annual and the first class of Life Members," etc.

Voted, That Section 5 of Article IX of the proposed revision of the By-Laws be amended by substituting the word "keep" for the word "maintain" in said section.

Voted, That Section 4 of Article XVI of the proposed revision of the By-Laws be amended so that the first sentence of said section shall read as follows: "Five members of the Council shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of any business, except as otherwise provided in these By-Laws."

Voted, That Article XXIII of the proposed revision of the By-Laws be amended so that the whole article, as amended, shall read as follows: "These By-Laws shall take effect January 3, 1928, but the committees appointed under the By-Laws in force in 1927 shall continue to serve until the first meeting of the Council after the Annual Meeting of the Society in 1928."

Mr. Hunnewell then, in moving the adoption of the proposed revision of the By-Laws, as amended, explained at length the most important changes made in the By-Laws by the proposed revision; and, his motion being seconded, the following vote was unanimously adopted:

Whereas the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws, in its report submitted to the Society at the stated meeting of November 2, 1927, unanimously recommended that the proposed revision of the By-Laws of the New England Historic Genealogical Society which had been referred to said Committee by the Society at its stated meeting on October 5, 1927, be adopted; and whereas a printed copy of said proposed revision of the By-Laws was mailed to every Pilgrim Tercentenary, Life, and Resident Member of the Society with the notice of the present meeting; and whereas it was announced in the notice of the present meeting that action on said proposed revision of the By-Laws would be in order at the present meeting of the Society; therefore it is hereby Voted, That said proposed revision of the By-Laws of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, as amended by the Society this day, be adopted as the By-Laws of the Society, that these new By-Laws shall take effect on January 3, 1928, as provided in Article XXIII of the same, and that the By-Laws of the Society now in force shall cease to be in force on and after January 3, 1928.

The Chair then presented, as the speaker of the afternoon, Walter Kendall Watkins of Wakefield, Mass., the eminent antiquary and historian, who gave an interesting address on Beacon Hill in the Past, illustrating his descriptions with lantern slides that included many rare views of Old Boston and especially of the region about Beacon Hill.

On motion of Hosea Starr Ballou the thanks of the Society were extended to Mr. Watkins for his interesting and instructive paper.

No further business being presented, Vice President Lamson, at 3.50 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and invited the members of the Society and their friends to partake of the usual refreshments in the adjoining tea room.

NOTES

It having come to the attention of this Society that certain genealogists and publishers have used the name of the Society in connection with their own enterprises, the Society again desires to state that it has NO genealogical representatives in this country or in England, nor is it in any way connected with any publications other than those that it issues over its own name at 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

It has also been reported to the Society that certain paper salesmen have been telling members of the Society who were seeking durable paper for their publications that the paper used in this periodical is "one hundred per cent wood."

For more than fifty years the paper used for this magazine has been made to order by the same manufacturer, and since 1907 it has been made on the Society's formula and watermarked "N. E. H. G. S. Standard." Sample sheets, selected at random, have been examined by a competent chemist, whose certificates have shown that the paper complies with the requirements of the formula. This formula is in substantial agreement with the recommendations of the Committee on Deterioration of Paper, appointed by the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, & Commerce, whose report (London, 1898) shows an exhaustive study of the subject. The leading German, English, and American chemists who have made a study of the manufacture of paper believe that paper properly made on such specifications will prove sufficiently lasting for publications of permanent value. This Society requires not less than 75% rag fibre, not over 25% wood fibre, freedom from all but the merest trace of chemicals used in the manufacture, and not over 10% clay filler.

The new By-Laws of the Society, which were adopted at the stated meeting of 7 December 1927 and take effect 3 January 1928, have been printed, and members may obtain copies by applying to the Recording Secretary, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

STEWARD-RING BIBLE RECORDS. — The records that follow have been taken from the family Bible of Solomon Spafford Steward, who was the son of Elias and Sarah (Spafford) Steward and married at Clarendon, Vt., 21 Jan. 1808, Abigail Ring, a descendant of Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower. Abigail Ring was fourth in descent from Andrew[1] Ring, who married Deborah Hopkins, daughter of Stephen Hopkins, through Eleazar[2] Ring, Jonathan,[3] and Joseph,[4] her father; and she was fifth in descent from Experience[1] Mitchell, whose first wife was Jane Cooke, daughter of Francis Cooke of the Mayflower, through John[2] Mitchell, Joseph,[3] and Sarah,[4] who married Jonathan[3] Ring, Abigail Ring's grandfather. Solomon Spafford Steward lived in or near Rutland, Vt., until he moved with his family to Ohio in 1838. His family Bible, for which I had been searching for several years, is now in the possession of Mrs. Julien C. Monnet of Norman, Okla., daughter of Robert Groves and Angeline C. (Steward) Orton and granddaughter of Solomon Spafford Steward.

Historical Intelligence

Hamilton. — In 1825, as is well known to genealogists, Dr. John Anderson of Edinburgh, Scotland, published a large folio volume on the Scottish house of Hamilton, including its chief cadet branches; and now, more than a hundred years later, a member of the Hamilton family is revising this noted book. The reviser is Lieut. Col. George Hamilton of Castle House, Park Hill, Bexley, Kent, England, and he will be glad to receive information concerning American Hamilton families. — A. W. H. E.

The Susquehanna Papers. — The Wyoming Historical and Geological Society of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., intends to publish the valuable manuscript material which has recently come into its possession relating to the early settlement of the Wyoming Valley, in the Colonial era, under the auspices of the Susquehanna Company. This material, known as the "Susquehanna Papers," is of great interest and importance, and will throw a flood of light upon the occupation of the region around Wilkes-Barre by a group of Connecticut settlers in the decade preceding the Revolution.

The editing of these papers has been entrusted to Dr. Wayland Fuller Dunaway, professor of history in the Pennsylvania State College. That there is in existence additional manuscript material relating to this important subject which has not yet been brought to light is indicated by the chance discovery of a collection of one hundred and fifty manuscripts on the Susquehanna settlements, in the possession of a family in Kansas City, whose ancestors had come from Connecticut. These papers have been made available to the Society for publication.

The Society and the editor solicit the coöperation of individuals and organizations in notifying them of any such manuscripts.

Eastern Penobscot Bay Archives. — At Stonington, Hancock Co., Me., B. Lake Noyes, M.D., a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society and of the Maine Genealogical Society, has established and owns a depository for manuscripts and printed material relating to the early history and genealogy of the Penobscot Bay region. This depository has been built against a high ledge of granite on Main Street, Stonington. The outer wall is of granite, eighteen inches thick, roofed over by immense slabs of granite, made waterproof by a covering of cement and asphalt. Six inches within this is a room of asphalted galvanized iron to eliminate frost and moisture from the granite, and six inches within this room is the white-pine interior, painted white and faced with black walnut. The two interspaces, separating the enclosures, are cleverly ventilated, so that no mustiness or mold (the bane of all archives and vaults) is noticeable therein, such as has ruined the contents of nearly every other such structure in New England.

At the cost of thousands of dollars and thirty-five years intensive search, the owner has collected and preserved (by interviews, copies, reprints, photographs, or purchases) everything extant that bears on the early history of the region of Penobscot Bay and River — especially the territory on the east of the same. Ancient Deer Isle, including Little Deer Island, Great Deer Island, Isle au Haut, and all adjacent islands, is the nucleus of the undertaking. Either the originals, or true copies thereof, of every town, church, state, court, colonial, or other document, map, or print known to exist, concerning this nucleus, have been collected, indexed, and preserved in these archives. All interested parties are welcome, and reciprocative favors are extended to those delving in the same realm of thought in regions apart from this.

For thirty-five years Dr. Noyes has also been collecting the genealogical history of every Lake (Lak, Leak, or Leake) family in America, and a great mass of Lake materials is preserved herein. He still solicits Lake items from those who have not already sent in their family pedigrees.

A New Set of Genealogical Forms. — Under the title "The Family Tree" a set of blanks in loose-leaf form, admirably designed for preserving the record of the various lines of one's ancestry, with plenty of space for biographical information, has been published by Wright & Company, Union Trust Building, Cleveland, Ohio.

Genealogies in Preparation. — Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the United States Government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, and occupation, with places and dates of birth, marriage, residence, and death. All names should be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full name is known.

Bragdon. — Arthur, born in England about 1597, died at York, Me., between 25 May 1678 and 2 Oct. 1678, by Lester M. Bragdon, York Village, Me.

Glazier. — John, born, probably in England, about 1638, died at Lancaster, Mass., in 1688, by Prentiss Cummings Glazier, 798 Centre Street, Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Robinson. — George, perhaps born in Scotland, died at Rehoboth, Mass., 9 Nov. 1699, by The Robinson Genealogical Society, 242 Savin Hill Avenue, Dorchester, Mass.

Rust. — William, died in Westmoreland Co., Va., in 1698, by E. Marshall Rust, 502 District National Bank Building, Washington, D. C.

Tracy. — Stephen, who came to Plymouth in New England in the Ann, in 1623, by S. W. Tracy, 754 West Jackson Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.

HON. JOHN WINGATE WEEKS, LL.D.

By Hon. Charles Grenfill Washburn, S.B., A.B., of Worcester, Mass.

John Wingate Weeks, of Newton, Mass., former United States Senator and Secretary of War, elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1915 and made a life member in 1919, was born at Lancaster, N. H., 11 April 1860, the son of William Dennis and Mary Helen (Fowler) Weeks, and died at his summer home in Lancaster 12 July 1926.

One of the original grantees of the town of Lancaster was, as his name appears, "Reverend Mr. Joshua Wingate Weeks," brother of Capt. John and son of Dr. John Weeks. His great-grandfather, Leonard Weeks, the immigrant, first of the line in this country, came to America about 1650 from Wells, Somerset, England, and settled in or near Portsmouth, N. H. In 1660 he received grants of land in what is now Greenland, N. H., near Portsmouth, where he settled with his family of eight children. He was selectman of Portsmouth, constable, and sheriff. He died in 1707.

One of the sons of Leonard Weeks was Joshua, who was born in 1674 and died in 1758. He lived in Greenland, N. H. In 1699 he married Comfort Hubbard, sister of Thomas Hubbard, a prosperous Boston merchant and at one time treasurer of Harvard College. One of their ten children was Dr. John Weeks (1716–1763).

Dr. John Weeks studied medicine in this country and in England, and practised in Greenland and Hampton, N. H. He is spoken of as a popular physician, colonel of a militia regiment, and justice of the peace. In 1737 he married Martha Wingate, daughter of Col. Joshua Wingate, a prominent resident of Hampton. The latter was a selectman, a member of the Legislature, and active in military affairs. He commanded a company at the siege of Louisburg (1745). Of the ten children born of this marriage, Capt. John Weeks (1749–1818) was one.

As a young man Capt. John Weeks had hunted on the Kennebec River, and on one of his trips was so attracted by the upper Connecticut River valley that he moved from Greenland, N. H., to Lancaster in 1786. He left his wife behind until he could get settled, but brought with him his son John Wingate, a boy of six, and his daughter Patty. Mrs. Weeks followed her husband in the autumn of that year, making the journey on horseback through the White Mountain Notch, and carrying her seven-months-old daughter in her arms while her younger son, James Brackett Weeks, rode behind her on the same horse. Capt. John was spoken of as a "zealous patriot." During the Revolution he was a second lieutenant in Capt. Jonathan Robinson's company, which reinforced the army at New York. He became one of the most influential citizens of Lancaster, and was selectman, representative in the General Court, and a delegate to the New Hampshire Convention, in which he was one of fifty-seven to vote to ratify the Federal Constitution, forty-six being recorded in the negative.

Maj. John Wingate Weeks (1781–1853), who came to Lancaster with his father, Capt. John, in 1786, had a distinguished career. In the War of 1812 he held a commission as captain in the Eleventh United States Infantry, and had a part in nearly all the hard fighting on the northern frontier. He was promoted to the rank of major for gallantry in action at the Battle of Chippewa. In politics he was a Jacksonian Democrat and a man of great influence. He held many offices: he was selectman of Lancaster for ten years, town moderator, sheriff, representative in the General Court, one of the commissioners appointed to survey the Maine-New Hampshire boundary in 1828, and a member of Congress for two terms, 1829–1833, a man, as one of his contemporaries wrote, "whose opinions upon public questions were respected in State and Nation."

James Brackett Weeks (1784–1858), a younger son of Capt. John and brother of Maj. John Wingate Weeks, was a farmer, and settled on the south slope of Mount Prospect, which lies in the valley to the south of the village of Lancaster. He cleared the land, and built the house which is still standing. It was on this farm that he shot fifteen deer in one season. He was one of the founders of the First Congregational Society in 1854.

He had seven children. The oldest one, James W. Weeks, had a long and useful career. He was a land surveyor, manufacturer, and public official. Under Major Pope, later General Pope (of Bull Run fame), he helped survey, in 1845, from Hall's Stream to Lake Champlain, and personally made the preliminary sketches and surveys for the topographical maps of the entire line. He was a school-teacher, selectman, town moderator, judge of probate, and member of the Board of County Commissioners and of the State Board of Agriculture. He was also one of the incorporators of the White Mountain Railroad in 1848, a member of the first Board of Directors of the White Mountain Bank, chartered in 1852, president and trustee of the Savings Bank of Coos County, and president and treasurer of the Lancaster Academy.

The second son of James Brackett Weeks was William Dennis Weeks (1818–1885), spoken of as "one of Lancaster's most honorable men." Although a farmer, he had many other interests. He was a selectman, judge of probate for many years, deputy collector of internal revenue, and first president of the Coos and Essex Agricultural Society. In 1844, at the age of twenty-six, he was sent, as a Whig, to the General Court at Concord. He was lieutenant and then lieutenant colonel in the Twenty-fourth and Forty-second Regiments of the New Hampshire Militia.

Of this long line of ancestors, prominent in the service of the Nation, State, county, and town, John Wingate Weeks, the subject of this biography, named for his great-uncle, Maj. John Wingate Weeks, was born on 11 April 1860, the male line of his descent running as follows: Leonard[1] Weeks, who died in 1707, Joshua,[2] 1674–1758, Dr. John,[3] 1716–1763, Capt. John,[4] 1749–1818, James Brackett,[5] 1784–1858, William Dennis,[6] 1818–1885, and John Wingate,[7] 1860–1926. In the maternal line his great-great-grandfather, Maj. Earl Clapp, served with the Colonial troops at Louisburg, N. S., in 1758. Later he was the seven thcaptain in the Twenty-first Regiment of Foot, Col. Jonathan Ward commanding, under Washington, at Cambridge, and third captain of the same regiment, at the close of the campaign, in 1776. Later he was promoted to the rank of major. Amos Fowler, great-grandfather of John Wingate Weeks, was a member of Washington's Life Guard. He was in the retreat from Long Island, and served throughout the War.

The farm in Lancaster where John Wingate Weeks was born and where his earlier days were spent was situated on the bank of the Connecticut River. Financial conditions were such that the family, consisting of parents, two brothers, and one sister, was obliged to practise the strictest economy. At the age of eight or nine years John went to the district school, about half a mile from home, where, with the other boys, he took his turn in building a fire in the big box stove to make the room comfortable for the morning session. We can imagine the little fellow, trudging along the road, in all kinds of weather, carrying from home a bundle of kindling wood under his arm, with which to start the fire at school. In addition, of course, were the necessary chores, incident to a New England farm, to be performed before and after school hours. Later he went to the Lancaster Academy, autumn, winter, and spring, generally walking two miles each way, excepting when the weather was the coldest, when he would drive in a buggy or a sleigh.

When John was about sixteen years old, Dr. Harrington, the Congregational minister of the town, asked him if he would like an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. The matter was carefully considered by the family, and John's only doubt seemed to be as to whether his father could spare him from the farm; finally, however, it was decided that he should go.

He entered the Naval Academy in 1877 and graduated in 1881. From what his classmates have told me, I get the impression of a good-natured, rather easy-going boy, perhaps somewhat immature when he entered, but who steadily developed, manifesting many of the qualities which were so conspicuous later in his life. He was physically the largest and also the strongest boy in his class, and was considered the "best balanced." He was always a peacemaker, and adjusted the differences between his fellow men, throughout his life. His interest in national politics became evident in his student days.

After graduating from the Academy, Weeks served in the Navy as midshipman until 1883, when, there being a surplus of officers, he and others were legislated out of the service under the terms of an act passed 5 August 1882. He then decided to go to Florida, with an ex-Navy friend, where he filled the position of land surveyor for Orange County, with headquarters at Orlando. In the autumn of 1886 he became land commissioner for the Florida Southern Railroad, and lived in Jacksonville for a year and a half, during which he surveyed most of southern Florida.

On 7 October 1885 Mr. Weeks married, in Haverhill, Mass., Martha A. Sinclair, who survives him, daughter of John G. Sinclair, Esq., of Littleton, N. H., whom he had previously met in Florida. They had two children: Katherine Sinclair Weeks, now Mrs. John Washington Davidge of Washington, D. C., and Charles Sinclair Weeks, A.B. (Harvard, 1914), now a resident of Newton, Mass.

As the climate of Florida did not agree with Mrs. Weeks, a change was sought. In August 1888 a partnership association was made with Mr. Henry Hornblower of Boston, in the banking business, under the name of Hornblower & Weeks. In his career as a banker Mr. Weeks had an important part in establishing the First National Bank of Boston, the result of an earlier association, as president, with the Massachusetts National Bank.

He served in the Massachusetts Naval Brigade for ten years and in the volunteer Navy during the Spanish-American War, when he was a member of Gov. Roger Wolcott's Military Advisory Board. He was president of the Wardroom Club, which was organized, after the War with Spain, with some of the officers of the old Naval Militia as a nucleus. At the earnest solicitation of his fellow citizens Mr. Weeks served as an alderman and then as mayor of the City of Newton from 1900 until 1904.

It came about naturally that he became a Republican candidate for Congress, to succeed Hon. Samuel L. Powers, who chose to retire at the end of his second term. Mr. Weeks was elected in November 1904. During his first session he attracted notice by reason of a speech on the subject of hazing at the Naval Academy.

In that same year, 1906, Mr. Weeks presented a library building to Lancaster, a memorial to his father, of whom he said:

" I have never met or known a man who seemed to me to so thoroughly deserve the respect and admiration of mankind as did he."

Mr. Weeks was reëlected to Congress in November 1906. He came into especial prominence in this Congress by reason of the part he took in the preparation of the so-called Aldrich-Vreeland Bill, legislation which led to the creation of the Monetary Commission, which blazed the way for the creation of the Federal Reserve Banking System. He was prominent also, and perhaps in larger measure, in inaugurating legislation providing for the Appalachian-White Mountain Forest Reservation.

Mr. Weeks was reëlected to Congress in November 1908, and was made chairman of the Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, one of the great committees of the House. He had not previously been a member of the Committee. It is very unusual to disregard the rule of seniority in appointing the chairman of a major committee, but Mr. Weeks possessed Speaker Cannon's confidence in a very high degree. His name was identified with a bill, which he introduced in May 1909, to protect migratory birds of the United States. This legislation is generally known as the Weeks-McLean Act, and has been of the very greatest value in protecting bird life. He had also a very influential part in shaping the legislation establishing postal savings banks.

He was reëlected in November 1910 to the Congress in which the Democrats controlled the House. He was again reëlected, and for the last time, in November 1912.

Upon the retirement from the United States Senate of Winthrop Murray Crane, Mr. Weeks was elected by the Massachusetts Legislature to succeed him, for the term beginning 4 March 1913. Perhaps his greatest service in the Senate was in perfecting and in aiding in the passage of the legislation establishing the Federal Reserve System, in the inception of which he was concerned as a member of the National Monetary Commission, of which Senator Aldrich of Rhode Island was chairman.

During 1915 Senator Weeks was mentioned quite widely for the Presidency, and was a candidate in the Republican National Convention of June 1916, in which Mr. Hughes was nominated. Mr. Weeks had a larger number of pledged delegates than any other candidate.

He was opposed to the constitutional amendment providing for nation-wide prohibition, believing that this was a subject better dealt with by the people of the several States. He was also opposed to the constitutional amendment extending the suffrage to women. His action was probably responsible for his defeat by David I. Walsh, when Mr. Weeks was a candidate before the voters of the State for reëlection to the Senate in 1918.

His service in the Senate ended on 4 March 1919. After an interval of two years he became a member of President Harding's Cabinet as Secretary of War, and continued to serve in this office in President Coolidge's Cabinet. During this period he received the degree of Doctor of Laws from New York University, Rutgers College, Tufts College, the Pennsylvania Military College, and Brown University. He was also a member of the New Hampshire Society of the Cincinnati.

In October 1925 he resigned his office, because of ill health. After less than a year, spent largely in travel to South America and the Hawaiian Islands, Mr. Weeks found himself in a constantly weakening physical condition. He had a very strong desire to reach his home in Lancaster, whither he went with members of his family and an attending physician on 26 June 1926. He died early in the morning of Monday, 12 July. The funeral services were held at the First Unitarian Church, in West Newton, and an address was given by Rev. George A. Gordon, D.D., LL.D., minister of the Old South Church, Boston.

Mr. Weeks rests in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

A DEPOSITION BY GOV. EDWARD WINSLOW OF THE PLYMOUTH COLONY*

Communicated by G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., of Newport, R. I.

For many years the valuable records of the High Court of Admiralty, from the time of Queen Elizabeth to that of George I, were supposed to be lost, but about twelve years ago they were discovered in one of the towers of the Public Record Office in London. They contain a vast amount of valuable information relating to New England and Virginia in the early seventeenth century.

For the following deposition by Gov. Edward Winslow of the Plymouth Colony I am indebted to my friend, Richard Holworthy, Esq., the well-known London genealogist and antiquary and the last descendant of Sir Matthew Holworthy, the early benefactor of Harvard. Mr. Holworthy came across this document while searching the Admiralty books, made a note of it, and most generously brought it to my attention.

This document should be of great interest and value to New England historians. Not only is it a deposition by one of the most important of the Mayflower passengers, a fact which alone would make it of great interest, but it relates to a very important episode in the history of early New England, the struggle between the Huguenot Monsieur de la Tour and the papist Sieur d'Aulney for the mastery of Acadia (New Brunswick). Monsieur de la Tour, the Huguenot, had received from the French King a patent to plant a colony on the St. John River. Some time afterwards the Jesuits secured a grant for the Sieur d'Aulney for the same purpose, and the ensuing struggle between the two rivals affected the foreign relations of the infant colony on Massachusetts Bay. The English founders of New England naturally supported their fellow Protestant, Monsieur de la Tour, and, as there was peace at the time between France and England, the matter was fraught with difficulties. Winthrop in his Journal has much to say about this episode.

This deposition of Gov. Edward Winslow throws much light upon the struggle of the two Frenchmen. Maj. Edward Gibbons, who complained to the Admiralty Court at London in order to enlist the British Government's aid against the French papists, was a famous figure in early Boston. He was a rich merchant, privateer, and soldier, and was one of the early commanders of Boston's Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company. This deposition should be of interest to my brother antiquaries in New England.

From the Records of the High Court of Admiralty*

7 May 1651. On the behalf of Edward Gibbons touching a losse which he sustained by ye ffrench.

Upon the Alliegacon on behalf of the said Gibbons examined:

Edward Winslow of Marshfield in ye Government of New Plymouth in New England Esq^re^ aged 56 years or thereabouts sworne and examined deposeth as followeth viz.

To the first article he saith and deposeth that whereas in the tyme allegate the articulated Monsieur de la Tour, whom this deponent well knewe, was possessed of a certain fort in the Northerne parts of New England which either hee or his father in the said tyme at their owne proper costs and charges did build from the ground upon ye River of St. Johns; therefor for ye doing whereof the said la Tour had not only his patents from ye French King, but also from the late King of England as this deponent hath credibly bin informed as ye said la Tour told this deponent being then Governour of ye Province of New Plymouth hee was in those parts when ye said fort was soe built as is there reported and well knoweth that it was done by and at ye proper costs and charges of ye said la Tour. And further, referring himself to his former deposition, he saith he cannot depose.

To the second article of the said allegacon he saith and deposeth that while in the tyme articulated and while that the said De la Tour (after such his building of the said Fort) was in full and quiet possession of the same he did come unto the provenant Major Generall Gibbons and others of the principall of the Englishe in those parts and Plantations and did there desire succour and ayde as a man distressed by one Monsieur de Aulney, a ffrenchman, who then strove to take the said Fort from him. And saith that he, the said de la Tour, did in this deponents presence and having promised that if either this deponent or any other of the English Nation would afford him any succour or relief in his distresse that in consideration thereof he would mortgage the said Fort unto him or them that should be soo assistant unto him whereupon hee saith the said Gibbons in consideration of his promise did lend him diverse sommes of money and yielded him all the assistance he could for which dooing the said De la Tour bound himself as aforesaid and, as the said Major Ginerall Gibbons did afterwards tell this deponent, did mortgage and make over the said ffort unto the said Gibbons for security of eighteene hundred pounds or some such like some wh. he had so lent unto him. And so much hee saith is publique and notorious to all the English men of quality that lived in New England within the time articulate and this is, for this reason, of his knowledge as aforesaid. And further he saith he cannot depose.

To the third article of the said Allegation he saith and deposeth that in or about the years 1640, 1641 and 1642 articulate and after the said fort was so made over unto the said Major Generall Gibbons for ye reliefe and assistance which he had afforded the said De la Tour, the articulate Monsieur de Auiney upon his suggestion that the said De la Tour was an heretique and that he did joyne with the English in the Protestant worship of God and by this meanes did stirre up ye French in those parts against him in so much that at length the said De Aulney and his Complices by force of armes and by assault did surprise and take the said Fort and did then put all the English (which the provenent and others had sent to his relief) to ye sword and the said de Aulney did both then and afterwards much violence and injuries to ye English as fell into his hands. And since the said tyme of surprisell of the said Fort the said De Aulney hath possessed the same and doth still hold and detaine it from the said Major Gibbons and without giving him the least satisfaction for what interest he hath therein. For as much that he saith that the said provenant and company are (as he verily believeth and in his judgment doth estimate) damnified to ye vallue of ye summe of three thousand pounds and upwards, partly for the money by him lent and delivered and partly for shipping and goods and other things which in order for the said de la Tour's use and relief were by him and them laid out expended and afterwards . . . and which they lost by reason of the said taking of the said fort. And that much he saith is true and notorious in New England to and amongst the best sort of the English nation there dwelling, and further he saith he cannot depose.

To the last he saith that what he hath deposed is true.

A ROLL OF ARMS
REGISTERED BY THE COMMITTEE ON HERALDRY OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Communicated by the Committee on Heraldry

Introduction

By G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., of the Committee on Heraldry

In presenting the following roll of arms registered by the Committee on Heraldry a few observations regarding the history and use of arms in general and regarding the rules followed by the Committee in making this roll may be useful.

Arms first came into use at the end of the twelfth century. They then served a very practical purpose. They enabled the great tenants and their followers to distinguish one another in time of war. There is no evidence that arms in the early days were granted by the Crown. They were adopted much as a tradesman adopts a trade-mark, and, like trade-marks, were regarded as a species of private property. Their use was governed by custom rather than by rule, and the rules, if any, were very elastic. A group of great families, including those of Fiennes and De Vere, connected with the great Geoffrey de Mandeville, used variants of a quartered coat that is described as "quarterly gules and or." As time went on, the mesne tenants used coats often displaying the badges or devices taken from the shields of their overlords. A man whose wife or mother was a great heiress would often abandon his ancient coat and assume hers. Sometimes he would abandon his ancient coat for a new one granted to him by some great noble, for as late as the fourteenth century great nobles would grant arms to their retainers. This seems strange to us, because the right to grant arms has for many centuries been exercised exclusively by the Crown, acting through its heralds. In the beginning cadency was indicated by differencing coats in a variety of ways. These differences were not governed by any rules, and were made by changing the colors or introducing ordinaries or charges. The common origin of coats differenced in these ways is often obscure. The little marks of cadency which were used later and which, theoretically, should be used to-day would have been regarded as absurdly inadequate when a shield of arms was supposed to show at a distance exactly who the bearer was. At the same time the character of the devices displayed on shields and banners was determined not by rule but by the purpose they were designed to serve, namely, to distinguish the bearer from everybody else, including his father, brothers, uncles, and cousins, and to distinguish him afar off. Hence the old coats were all very simple. He who ran could read them. Hence, too, they never put silver (white) on gold (yellow), or put color on color, because to do either would have rendered the devices hard to distinguish. To be sure the heralds under the Earl Marshal exercised some sort of supervision over the use of arms. For instance, a man who had an ancient coat could have others restrained from using it. This supervision, however, was very loose. Curiously enough the Heralds' College was not incorporated until the reign of Richard III (1483–1485), when the introduction of gunpowder had reduced heraldry almost to a lifeless anachronism.

In the early days the heraldic artists, unfettered by useless and pedantic rules, illuminated shields and banners and carved arms on seals and monuments with boldness, strength, and great artistic skill. This early heraldic work is as much superior to most modern work as the architecture of Salisbury Cathedral is superior to that of Harvard's Memorial Hall. The heralds' art ranks high among the decorative arts of the Middle Ages, and is exhibited at its best in the noble Garter stall plates of St. George's Chapel.

During the Tudor and Stuart periods the art of heraldry degenerated, and the so-called science of heraldry was invented. The simple, beautiful forms disappeared. The decorative Gothic lions were replaced by fat natural beasts. Heraldic art lost its beauty and its charm. Complicated new coats were granted, and old coats were spoiled by the addition of unnecessary and unmeaning charges. In blazoning arms a mysterious-sounding jargon was employed, and a lot of pedantic rules were devised to govern the use of this jargon, like the rule that the name of a color shall never be repeated, but, having been mentioned once, shall afterwards be referred to as "the first," "second," or "third," as the case may be. Such rules were made by men who delighted in ciphers, anagrams, euphuisms, and quaint conceits.

The social revolution of the first half of the sixteenth century produced a great number of new families, whose unauthorized use of coats led to the establishment of the so-called "Visitations," which extended from Elizabeth's time to the reign of Charles II. These Visitations did something towards keeping the use of coat armor within the proper limits. Unfortunately the Elizabethan heralds left much to be desired, and, provided the necessary fees were forthcoming, would assent to almost anything. By the time of Charles II the appropriation of arms had become so common that the heralds admitted that they were unable to cope with the situation; and ever since that time, both in England and America, especially during the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries, the appropriation of arms by persons with no right to them has gone on practically unchecked and furnishes a striking example of the silly snobbery of mankind.

Taking into consideration the early history of coat armor, there seems to be no reason, in this country at least, why any one, provided he observes the simple rules of blazon and does not appropriate the arms of another, may not assume and use any coat he desires. But to use the arms of another family simply because that family happens to have the same name is, to say the least, in very bad taste. It asserts a relationship to the family and a property in the arms that cannot be substantiated. Such misappropriations are vain and dishonest, yet they are made very often, and after they have been made the wrongful use of the arms is persisted in with an amazing degree of obstinacy. There are many families in this country, some of them not a thousand miles from the State House in Boston, who have pirated and are now displaying arms to which they have no shadow of right.

The late William Sumner Appleton, Sr., and the Committee on Heraldry of his day, of which he was chairman, seeing this constant misuse of arms, laid down the rules that the Committee would not recognize any arms that had not been granted or confirmed by the Heralds' College and would not admit the right of any one to use arms unless he could prove absolutely his descent from the family whose arms had thus been granted or confirmed. In view of the history of heraldry in England, these rules were too rigid. Many an ancient coat was never confirmed or granted, and the right to use arms is not of sufficient importance to require proof beyond the possibility of a doubt.

The present Committee is as strongly opposed as was Mr. Appleton to the misappropriation and misuse of arms, but, in view of the history of heraldry, it has laid down broader rules regarding the recognition of coats. Its position is clearly stated in its special report submitted to the Council of the New England Historic Genealogical Society on 6 May 1914 and to the Society on 4 Nov. 1914 and printed as a part of the report of the Committee on Heraldry for the year 1914 (REGISTER, vol. 69, Supplement, pp. xvi–xxiii). The Committee now registers all coats that come under one of the following heads:

1. All coats that have been used time out of mind, regardless of whether or not they are registered at the College of Arms. This refers to coats that have been used by a family since the Middle Ages, and such coats are, of course, the blue-ribbon coats among those registered.

2. Coats that have been granted or confirmed by the College of Arms.

3. Coats that were brought over by an emigrant or first settler. The proof of such user establishes a prima facie case, but only a prima facie case; and the Committee reserves the right to disallow such a coat if hereafter proof be produced that the emigrant had no right to it. In registering such a coat, proof that the emigrant brought it over with him and used or claimed the coat is deemed sufficient. In each case what amounts to such proof is decided by the Committee.

A good example of the first class of coat is that of Throckmorton, which has been borne by the family since the time of Sir John Throckmorton of Coughton, Warwickshire, Under Treasurer of England in 1441. The Winthrop coat granted in 1594 by the Garter, Dethick, is a good example of the second, while the Sanford coat, which was used on a seal by John Sanford, Secretary of the Rhode Island Colony in 1675, is an example of the third, under the most liberal interpretation of the rule.

In applying its rules the Committee recognizes various methods of proof and decides each case upon its own merits.

A word should be said here regarding crests, as there is much misapprehension upon the subject. The crest is an unimportant adjunct of the arms, and it was often changed or varied by the same person, and different branches of the same family often used different crests. Consequently, in view of their minor importance, the Committee makes no attempt to register crests, but only the important thing, namely, the arms themselves.

A nominal fee of three dollars is charged after a coat has been accepted for registration, to cover the cost of lettering and engrossing. The work of painting the coats is a labor of love contributed by two members of the Committee, the chairman, Robert Dickson Weston, Esq., and Dr. Harold Bowditch, while the genealogical problems arising are usually referred to Professor Arthur Adams and to the writer of this introduction.

This roll, probably the first of its kind that has appeared in America since the famous Gore Roll (which was in no way accurate or authoritative), compiled at the close of the seventeenth and beginning of the eighteenth centuries, by no means exhausts the large number of coats entitled to registration. No applications have yet been filed for the registration of many coats which are well known and which can easily be proved, and new coats are constantly coming to light. The Committee expects to register many more and to publish, from time to time, rolls like the one now presented. An applicant need not be descended from the family that used the coat. Any one interested in a particular coat may apply for its registration. And it should be noted that, if the wife of an emigrant belonged to a family that used a coat of arms, the Committee will register it, as it has registered those of Marshall and Latham which appear in this roll.

The Committee wishes further to bring to the attention of those interested that the College of Arms in London will confirm coats to those entitled to them or issue new grants to Americans of English descent upon the payment of proper fees.

The science of the shield is ancient and honorable and not without pleasure and profit to those who make it an object of serious study. In the words of one who has no equal among the students of mediæval England, Dr. J. Horace Round, "to them it speaks from church and manor house, it illumines those documents and parchments already dusty with age, and makes the storied past live and move before their eyes. They think on Evesham and the Great Earl anxiously scanning the tumult of banners before that advancing host, his life hanging on the arms they bore. He saw at last the leopards of England, the chevrons of the House of Clare, and cried, as the fatal coats told him that all was over, 'let us commend our souls to God, for our bodies are the foe's.'"

Alphabetical List of Surnames

The following is an alphabetical list of the surnames of those who bore the arms included in the present roll. The numerals after the names indicate the order in which the arms were registered. In this order the blazons and the black and white drawings which make up the roll are both arranged, and any coat can readily be found by its appropriate number.

For a few years after his first marriage Frederick Williamson lived at Pomfret, but moved to Danville about 1818 and occupied one of three farms owned by himself and his two brothers. On 4 May 1832 he was admitted to full communion in the First Congregational Church at Danville.

*Prior to the establishment of the Danville Congregational Church, couples desiring to be married were obliged to go to Trois Rivières (Three Rivers) for the ceremony. In 1832 the First Church of Christ (now Congregational) was formed in Danville, and Frederick Williamson was one of the pewholders. The condition of the records of the Congregational Church, when examined by the compiler about 1912, was truly lamentable; by this time (1928) there are probably few left. The parish seemed falling into desuetude.

On 20 Oct. 1832 Henry C. Dennison was appointed guardian of Elvira E. Williamson, a minor over 14, and of Verona K., Alonzo B., Eleutheria H., Lenora N., and Orwell C. Williamson, minors under 14, heirs of Polly Williamson, late of Shipton, P. Q. Her parents' estate was settled at that date (Pomfret Probate Proceedings). The death of Frederick Williamson's second wife in 1840, while the two youngest children, Lenora and Orwell, were still of an age to need a mother's care, probably led to the breaking up of the family.

From early childhood it was his ambition to become an artist, but his father preferred that he should be a farmer. His mother sympathized with her son's ambition, and, being a skillful needlewoman, earned $75, with which he set forth for Boston. There he obtained a situation as assistant in a studio, and in the evening studied at the Lowell Institute, where his instructors were at once impressed with the wonderful accuracy of his eye. He attained success as a portrait painter, and after his marriage went to Paris, where he studied under Boulanger and Bougereau. He has excelled as a painter and sculptor of animals, especially of cats, and his work has been extensively exhibited at the Pennsylvania Academy, the New York Academy, and the New York Century Club. When no longer young he met with illness and reverses which deprived him of the money necessary to devote himself wholly to his art. Nothing daunted, however, he applied for a situation as one of the attendants at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York City, and devoted all his leisure to the pursuit of his beloved calling.

GENEALOGICAL RESEARCH IN ENGLAND

Contributed by G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., of Newport, R. I., and communicated by the Committee on English and Foreign Research

Garde (Correction)

The attention of the Chairman of the Committee on English and Foreign Research has been called by Col. Charles Edward Banks, M.D., to the fact that Roger Garde, although he was mayor of Gorgeana (York) in 1644–45, was not "the first mayor in New England," as was stated on page 69 of the present volume of the Register. In this matter Colonel Banks is quite correct. The article published in the Register was written in the country, without books of reference at hand; hence the misstatement. Roger Garde was, however, recorder of York and one of the first aldermen of Gorgeana, Thomas Gorges, nephew of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, being the first mayor. (Cf. Moody's History of the Town of York, p. 22.)

It may be stated also that Charles Thornton Libby, Esq., of Yarmouth, Me., the leading authority on early Maine genealogy, thinks that Roger Garde of Bideford in Devon was identical with the York recorder; and this opinion, from such an eminent antiquary as Mr. Libby, is entitled to great weight.

Gorton

Although the birthplace of the redoubtable Samuel Gorton of Warwick, R. I., has always been known (for in his letter to Nathaniel Morton, printed in Force's Tracts, vol. 4, he states that he was born at Gorton, a chapelry within the parish of Manchester [co. Lancaster, England], where the "fathers of my body have dwelt for many generations"), no effort has been made hitherto to establish his ancestry. The present article is an effort in that direction, but the result is not very satisfactory, owing to the late date for the beginning of the Manchester registers, the fact that the Gortons had, apparently, been long settled in that vicinity, and the paucity of wills — circumstances that combine to make the tracing of the pedigree a difficult matter.

In a letter to John Winthrop, Jr., dated 11 Aug. 1674, Samuel Gorton gives his age as "four score and two years," and there can, therefore, be little doubt that he was the Samuel Gorton, son of Thomas, who was baptized at Manchester 12 Feb. 1592/3, and that the record of the burial there, 2 Nov. 1616, of Samuel, son of Thomas Gorton of Gorton, does not refer to him, but to a child of Thomas and Agnes (Grimshaw) Gorton (who were married at Manchester, 14 Sept. 1612), whose baptism is not recorded. The Thomas Gorton who married Agnes Grimshaw was apparently a brother of Samuel Gorton of Rhode Island, and was baptized at Manchester 17 Nov. 1588. He seems to have accompanied his younger brother to New England, as he appears with him in Plymouth in 1637 and later in Portsmouth, R. I., where, apparently, he died between 16 July and 21 Nov. 1649.

Samuel Gorton boasts that his family "was not unknown in the heraldry of England," and at a later time the Gortons of Gorton appear to have used as arms Gules, ten billets or, a chief indented of the last, and as a crest *A goat's head erased argent, ducally gorged or. Samuel Gorton also, on the title page of his book, describes himself as "Samuel Gorton gent." The facts appear to be that an ancient family, with some pretensions to gentility, was settled in and about Gorton and the neighboring parish of Atherton as early as 1332, but that by the latter half of the sixteenth century the race had multiplied and the members of the family settled at Gorton had sunk to the position of small tenant farmers. Samuel Gorton went early to London, became a clothier, married Mary Maplett, the daughter of a well-to-do merchant (cf. REGISTER, vol. 70, pp. 115–118), and appears to have raised himself considerably in the social scale. In the eighteenth century some members of the family in Gorton rose through trade at Manchester, acquired considerable wealth, and once more styled themselves Gorton of Gorton; but financial disaster overtook them early in the nineteenth century, and they disappeared from that vicinity.†

The Will of Raphe Shelmerdyne the Elder of Gorton, co. Lancaster, yeoman, dated 29 May 1639. My body to be buried in Christian manner in the parish church or churchyard of Manchester, near to the place where my late loving wife, Anne Shelmerdyne, lieth interred, or elsewhere where the Lord shall appoint. My debts and funeral expenses shall be paid out of my whole goods. I devise all my messuage, land, and tenement called the Greene Head, with the appurtenances, situate in Gorton aforesaid, to my eldest son, Raphe Shelmerdyne, his heirs and assigns for ever. And for default of such issue to Thomas Shelmerdyne, my second son, and his heirs and assigns for ever. And for default of such issue to my six daughters, Jane Shelmerdyne, Elizabeth, Anne, Margaret, Alice, and Marie Shelmerdyne, their heirs and assigns for ever. My said son Raphe Shelmerdyne shall, in consideration that I do give him my said lands and tenements at the Greene Heade, pay to his sister Jane Shelmerdyne the yearly rent of 40s. during the term of sixty years, if she shall so long live, with power to distrain for the same upon the closes called the Intake and Pingotte. Thomas Shelmerdyne shall, in consideration that I have given him all my lands, messuage, and tenement at Banke Topp in Gorton, pay to his sister Jane Shelmerdyne the yearly rent of 20s. during the term of sixty years, if she so long live, with power to distrain for the same on the close called the Barley Croft, being parcel of my messuage and tenement at Banke Topp aforesaid. To my daughter Ann Shelmerdyne £30. To my son-in-law James Thorpe £10, to be paid within one month after the decease of Widow Thorpe of Newton. To three of the youngest children of my son-in-law James Thorpe 33s. 4d. apiece, when twenty-one years of age. My said son Thomas Shelmerdyne shall have the use and benefit of the said three children's legacies, to be employed for their best commodity and profit, and he shall pay the same, with the advantage thereof, when they attain the said age; and, if my son Thomas shall depart this life before the said sums of money be paid to my said grandchildren, the said lands at the Banketopp shall be charged with the payment thereof. Also, my said son Thomas Shelmerdyne shall pay to my three daughters, Margaret, Alice, and Marie, £20 apiece out of my land at Banketopp. It is my will that my son-in-law James Thorpe and Elizabeth, his wife, my daughter, shall hold them[selves] satisfied in regard I have given them sufficient portions formerly. To my said son Thomas Shelmerdyne these parcels of goods hereafter named remaining in my said house at Bank Topp, viz., the greatest coffer, two tables in the house, a cubboard and dishboard, a great swine trough and cheese press, in consideration whereof he shall give to his three sisters, Margaret, Alice, and Marie, £3 equally amongst them. All the residue of my goods, etc., I give to my said three daughters, Margaret, Alice, and Marie, equally amongst them. I make my said son Thomas Shelmerdyne sole executor of this my last will. Also, I desire my loving neighbors, Thomas Jackson, clerk, and Raphe Wood the Younger, to be overseers. [Signed] Raphe Shelmyerdyne, his × marke. Witnesses: Tho. Jackson, John Cocke, his marke, John Jacksonn.

Inventory, taken by Thomas Grauer the Elder of Gorton, Raph Wood the Younger, William Berkinshaw, and John Cocke, 1 November 1639, mentions farming stock, household goods, etc., contains the expressions "in the little house," "in the loom house," "in the parlor at the west end of the house," "in the north side of the house," "in the west end of the house," "in the west chamber," and "in the kitchen chamber," and appraises one musket at 13s. 4d., bills, bonds, and debts at £8. 6s., and "more in bonds" at £40, no total valuation being given.

MEMOIRS OF DECEASED MEMBERS OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Edward Augustus Hatch, of Brookline, Mass., a resident member since 1895, was born at Roxbury, Mass., 8 December 1842, the son of Edward and Rhoda Ann (Danforth) Hatch, and died in Boston 22 June 1926.

He was a descendant of Philip[1] Hatch, who was at Richmond Island, Me., as early as 1638 and was later of York, through Samuel,[2] 1660–1752, of Wells, Me., who married Mary Littlefield, Benjamin[3] of Wells, who married Elizabeth Credifer, Jonathan,[4] who married Priscilla Storer, David,[5] who married Anna Littlefield, Edward,[6] who married Sally Stewart, and Edward,[7] his father, who was born at Wells 6 August 1817 and married Rhoda Ann Danforth, born at Roxbury 7 March 1817, daughter of Thomas and Rhoda (Shepard) Danforth and a descendant of Nicholas[1] Danforth of Cambridge, Mass., who came to New England in 1634.

He was educated in the public schools, and was graduated at the Roxbury High School in 1859. He became a bookkeeper, and in 1895 was treasurer of the Allen Lane Company, dry-goods commission merchants in Boston, the Georges River Mills of Warren, Me., the Dumshire Mills of Goffs Falls, N. H., and the Walker Mills of East Wilton, Me.

He married 12 July 1872 Ella Frances Snelling, who died 21 January 1892, daughter of Josiah and Eleanor (Danforth) Snelling. They had two children, Percival Snelling Hatch and Lincoln Danforth Hatch, of whom the latter survives his parents.

Cleveland Hoadley Dodge, A.B., A.M., of Riverdale-on-Hudson, N. Y., financier, philanthropist, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 26 January 1860, the son of William Earl[7] Dodge, Jr., and Sarah (Hoadley) Dodge, and died at Riverdale 24 June 1926.

His grandfather, Hon. William Earl[7] Dodge, 1805–1883, a well-known merchant of New York City, was a descendant of Richard[1] Dodge of Salem, Mass., and the line of descent is given in the memoir of Francis Phelps Dodge (vide supra, p. 101), a cousin of the subject of this memoir.

Cleveland Hoadley Dodge received his academic education at Princeton University, where he was admitted to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1879 and to that of Master of Arts in 1882, and began his business career in New York City with the Phelps Dodge Corporation, of which he became a director and president. He was connected also, as a director or executive officer, with many other business enterprises, including railways, coal companies, copper companies, manufacturing companies, banks, and insurance companies.

His counsel, sound judgment, and financial support were also at the service of many educational, scientific, and charitable organizations: he was vice president of the American Museum of Natural History, president of the Board of Trustees of Robert College, Constantinople, and a trustee of Princeton University, the Carnegie Institution of Washington, the John F. Slater Fund, the New York Public Library, the New York Zoölogical Society, and the American Committee of Near East Relief.

He was a member of the Century, Union, University, New York Yacht, and National Arts Clubs. His religious affiliations were with the Presbyterian Church, and in his will he bequeathed to his son, Cleveland Earl Dodge, in trust, a fund of $5,000 which was originally bequeathed by his great-grandfather, Anson G. Phelps, to his father, William Earl Dodge, as "a sacred deposit," the income of which was to be "devoted to the spread of the Gospel and to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom on earth and to be transmitted unimpaired to his descendants."

Mr. Dodge married at Irvington-on-Hudson, N. Y., 11 October 1883, Grace Parish, who survives him, together with their twin sons, Cleveland Earl Dodge of Riverdale, a prominent financier of New York City, and Bayard Dodge, A.B. (Princeton, 1909), A.M. (Columbia, 1913), B.D. (Union Theological Seminary, 1913), president of the American University of Beirut, Syria.

Mr. Dodge's estate, which amounted to about fifteen millions, was left by his will to his widow and two sons, with generous bequests to grandchildren, friends, neighbors, and employees. In this document the testator wrote: "Believing it wiser to give liberally during my life to religious and charitable objects, I make no bequest of that character, knowing the hearty sympathy of my dear wife and children in such objects, and feeling sure that they will use the property entrusted to them liberally for humane and benevolent objects."

Samuel Ward Boocock, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born in Brooklyn 20 January 1837, the son of John and Susan (Ross) Boocock, and died there 13 July 1926, in his 90th year.

His father was born in England, and was in business in New York City as far back as 1845. His mother was a native of Scotland.

As early as 1865 Mr. Boocock was a broker and banker in New York City, and later was at the head of the banking house of S. W. Boocock. At the time of his death he was the second oldest member of the New York Stock Exchange, but had retired from active business life some years earlier. He was a trustee of the Brooklyn Trust Company, and was a contributor, usually anonymously, to many charities in Brooklyn and Manhattan. He was a member of the Hamilton Club of Brooklyn, the Tuxedo Club, and the Rockaway Hunting Club. His religious affiliations were with the Protestant Episcopal Church, his funeral service was held in Grace Church, Brooklyn, and he was buried in the family mausoleum in Greenwood Cemetery.

He married Mary Carpenter Underhill, who died in 1897. A son, Howard, B.A. (Yale, 1900), died in 1915, and another son, Murray, of "Castalia," Keswick, Albemarle Co., Va., survives his father.

Mrs. Mary Catherine (Prime) Scrymser, of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 4 June 1841, the daughter of Edward and Charlotte Wilkins (Hoffman) Prime, and died there 16 July 1926.

She was a descendant of Mark[1] Prime, who was in Rowley, Mass., before 1645 and was buried there in 1683, through his only son, Samuel,[2] 1649–1683/4, of Rowley, Samuel,[3] 1675–1718, of Rowley, Joshua,[4] who was born at Rowley in 1712 and died at Sutton, Mass., in 1770, Nathaniel,[5] founder of the New York banking firm of Prime, Ward & Sands and reputed in 1832 to be the third richest man in New York City, who was born at Rowley 30 January 1768, married Cornelia Sands, daughter of Comfort and Sarah (Dodge) Sands, and died in New York City 26 November 1840, and Edward,[6] her father, who was born in New York City 10 December 1801, married Charlotte Wilkins Hoffman (who died 29 May 1892, in her 85th year, daughter of William Hoffman, M.D.), and died at Riverdale, N. Y., 21 August 1883.

She was married to James Alexander Scrymser, whom she outlived. He was president of the Mexican Telegraph Company, the Pacific Cable Company, and the Central & South American Telegraph Company, and was also one of the vice presidents of the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor of New York City.

Their home, an old-fashioned house on East 21st Street, was noted for its hospitality; and for many years their entertainments during the winter season assumed the novel form of taking large parties of young people to the ice carnivals in Montreal and to the winter sports in other nearer regions.

Mrs. Scrymser was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church; and her funeral took place at Grace Church, where she had been baptized many years previously.

Helen Leah Reed, A.B., of Cambridge, Mass., a resident member since 1918, was born at St. John, N. B., 13 March 1861, the daughter of Dr. Guilford Shaw and Ella (Berryman) Reed, and died at Manchester, Mass., at the summer home of her sister, Mrs. Everett Morss, 21 July 1926.

Her father was born at Wilmot, N. S., and died at Cambridge, Mass., 2 December 1908, aged 71 years, 2 months, 15 days, the son of Granville Bevil and Leah (Green) Reed of Nova Scotia. He was of New England ancestry, and his Reed forbears, who were Loyalists, had migrated to Nova Scotia in the epoch of the Revolution. Miss Reed traced her ancestry also to Roger Williams and to the Greene family of Rhode Island and other well-known Colonial families. Her mother was the daughter of John Berryman of St. John.

Miss Reed's parents came to Boston in 1865, and she was a student at Radcliffe College in its early days and was admitted there to the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1890. She was an earnest student of Latin and Greek, and in 1890 was the first woman to win the Sargent Prize, offered by Harvard University for a metrical translation from Horace.

She was an essayist, a contributor to periodical literature, and the author of a volume of poems, a novel, and a series of historical stories (the Brenda Stories) for girls. Her published works, in addition to the Brenda Stories, include "Serbia, a Sketch," "Memorial Day and Other Verse," and "Miss Theodora." She was greatly interested in education and philanthropy, was a member and officer of the Folk Lore Society for a number of years, and belonged also to the Authors' Club, the Circolo Italiano, and various other organizations here and abroad.

Besides her sister, Mrs. Everett Morss (Ethel Reed), a niece and two nephews, children of Mrs. Morss, survive her.

George Thurston Spicer, A.B., A.M., M.D., of Providence, R. I., a life member since 1923, was born at Cranston, R. I., 28 July 1874, the son of William Arnold and Anna Eliza (Carpenter) Spicer, and died at Providence 26 July 1926.

He traced his descent from Peter[1] Spicer, a soldier in King Philip's War, who was at New London, Conn., in 1666, and died there in 1694, through Edward[2] of New London, born about 1674, John[3] of New London, 1698–1753, Edward[4] of Groton, Conn., 1722–1797, Joseph,[5] 1765–1842, a captain in the Rhode Island Militia, who settled at Hopkinton, R. I., George Thurston,[6] 1802–1879, whose wife was Mary Sheldon Arnold, and William Arnold,[7] his father, a soldier in the Civil War and head of the Spicer Stove Company of Providence, R. I., who was born at Warwick, R. I., 2 April 1845, married 18 October 1871 Anna Eliza Carpenter (born at Providence 9 September 1848, the daughter of Joseph and Ann Eliza (Clark) Carpenter), and died in 1913.

He was prepared for college in the public schools, and, entering Brown University, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1897 and that of Master of Arts in 1901. He then studied medicine, and in 1903 received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Harvard.

Dr. Spicer specialized in pediatrics, and was a valuable member of the medical profession, acting as chief of the Department for Infants at the Rhode Island Hospital (Providence), visiting physician of the Department of Pediatrics of the Providence City Hospital, visiting physician of the Providence Floating Hospital, and physician of the Providence Day Nursery Association.

His services on various boards and in the Volunteer Medical Service Corps in the World War were recognized by the bestowal upon him of the Victory Medal of the United States Government, the Service Medal of the Sons of the American Revolution and the Sons of Veterans, and a diploma of the State of Rhode Island.

Besides his membership in several medical societies, he was a member of many historical and patriotic associations, among them the Rhode Island Historical Society, the Rhode Island Society of the Cincinnati, the Rhode Island Society of Colonial Wars, the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Huguenot Society of America, and the Sons of the American Revolution, and he held office in most of them. To these was added an interest in various social clubs and religious organizations, together with life membership in the American Home Missionary Association and the secretaryship of the Beneficent Congregational Church Society. He also found time to serve as treasurer and director of the Providence Land and Wharf Company.

He married 15 December 1909 Harriet Hopkins Sessions, who survived him, daughter of Stephen Williams and Ella Maria (Hopkins) Sessions of Providence and a descendant of Hon. Henry Marchant of Newport, R. I., a delegate to the Continental Congress and the first United States district judge for Rhode Island, of Deputy Governor Darius Sessions, incorporator and trustee of Brown University, and of Roger Williams. Their two children, Eleanor Spicer and George Thurston Spicer, Jr., also survived their father.

Edward Page Fairbanks, of Terre Haute, Ind., elected a life member 2 February 1926, was born at Terre Haute 3 January 1850, the son of Hon. Henry and Emeline (Crawford) Fairbanks, and died there 6 August 1926.

He was seventh in descent from Jonathan[1] Fairbanks of Dedham, Mass., who was in Boston in 1633, moved to Dedham three years later, where he built the dwelling house that is still one of the landmarks of that ancient town, and died at Dedham 5 December 1668, through Capt. George,[2] Eliezur[3] of Sherborn, Mass., Capt. Eleazur,[4] 1690–1741, Ebenezer,[5] 1734–1818, a soldier of the Revolution, Henry,[6] 1770–1827, and Hon. Henry,[7] his father, who was born at Brimfield, Mass., 3 February 1814, married Emeline Crawford (born at Terre Haute 10 September 1821, daughter of Caleb and Phœbe (Crawford) Crawford), and died at Terre Haute 8 April 1878. Henry[7] Fairbanks migrated from Massachusetts to Indiana in 1835, became a successful farmer, and settled later in Terre Haute, where he was one of the most prominent of the early business men of the city and was mayor at the time of his death.

Edward Page Fairbanks was educated in the public schools of Terre Haute, and became a railway employee. He held a number of important railway positions, including that of general freight agent of the Illinois Midland Railroad. After resigning this office he became associated with his brother, the late Crawford Fairbanks, in various business enterprises. He was connected with the Chicago Board of Trade in his earlier business career, and at the time of his death, although he had retired from active business some fifteen years previously, he was a director of the Terre Haute National Bank, the Wabash Realty & Loan Association, and the Terre Haute Brewing Company, a director and vice president of the Terre Haute House, and president of the Terre Haute Hotel Company. His interest in his home city was unfailing, and in the early nineties he was associated with a group of men who sought to foster its industrial development. For forty years he was one of the substantial business leaders of the community, one of the builders of Terre Haute.

He was always a generous benefactor of the city, and among his gifts was the Fairbanks Memorial Park, of forty acres, given jointly by himself and his brother Crawford, in commemoration of the soldiers of Vigo County who fought in defense of their country. After laying down the burdens of active business Mr. Fairbanks, with his wife, travelled extensively in the United States and in Europe.

Mr. Fairbanks married Helen Gray, daughter of Albert Gray of Terre Haute. Mrs. Fairbanks survives her husband, together with their only child, Helen Pauline, now Mrs. Burch Ijams.

Mrs. Mary Jackson (May) Eliot, of Boston, a resident member since 1923, was born at Dorchester, Mass., 7 December 1859, the daughter of Frederick Warren Goddard and Martha Rand (Morse) May, and died at Lake Memphremagog, Canada, where she and her husband were spending the summer, 21 August 1926.

She was a descendant of John[1] May, who was master of a vessel and sailed between London and New England as early as 1635, but about 1649 settled in that part of Roxbury, Mass., which is known as Jamaica Plain, through John,[2] 1631–1671, John,[3] 1663–1730, Ebenezer,[4] 1692–1752, Samuel,[5] 1723–1794, Samuel,[6] 1776–1870, who married Mary Goddard, and Frederick Warren Goddard[7] May, her father, who was born 4 December 1821, married, as his second wife, Martha Rand Morse (born 21 September 1827, died 23 April 1894), and died 28 May 1904.

Mary Jackson May was educated in the schools of her native town, and received much of her religious training under the guidance of Rev. James Freeman Clarke, D.D., of the Church of the Disciples in Boston. She was married at Dorchester, in 1888, to Rev. Christopher Rhodes Eliot, A.B. (Washington University, St. Louis, Mo., 1876), A.M. (ib., 1881), S.T.B. (Harvard, 1881), son of Rev. William Greenleaf and Abbie Adams (Cranch) Eliot. Rev. William Greenleaf Eliot, A.B. (Columbian University, District of Columbia, 1831), S.T.D. (Harvard, 1854), was chancellor of Washington University, 1871–1887; and the son, who was ordained in 1882, was for many years minister of the First Parish in Dorchester and from 1894 on of the Bulfinch Place (Boston) Unitarian Church.

It was natural that Mrs. Eliot should be deeply interested in the Unitarian Church and its varied activities, and, as a minister's wife, she was greatly honored and loved for her services of sacrifice and devotion. She organized, in 1894, the Bulfinch Place Branch of the Women's Alliance, and was its president until her death, and she also served, for a year or two, as a director in the National Alliance. She was an advocate of woman suffrage, temperance, and the promotion of international freedom, justice, and friendship, and for eighteen years she was one of the Unitarian representatives on the Interdenominational Committee on Missions. The breadth of her sympathies included educational and humanitarian causes of wide scope. She was a member for nineteen years of the Executive Committee of the New England Labrador Branch of the Needlework Guild of America, which worked for Dr.

Grenfell's mission, a director in the Boston Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, an active worker in the Boston Committee of the Calhoun Industrial School, a leader in the Benevolent Fraternity Fruit and Flower Mission and in the Lend a Hand Society, and a helpful member of the House Committee of the Tuckerman School.

Her husband, who lives in Cambridge, Mass., survives her, together with a son, Rev. Frederick May Eliot, A.B. (Harvard, 1911), A.M. (ib., 1912), S.T.B. (ib., 1915), minister of Unity Church, St. Paul, Minn., and two daughters, Dr. Martha May Eliot, director of the Division of Child Hygiene of the Federal Children's Bureau, and Abigail Adams Eliot, director of the Ruggles Street Nursery School and Training Centre of Roxbury, both of Cambridge.

Frederick E. Atteaux, of Brookline, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Lennoxville, Province of Quebec, Canada, 27 November 1852, the son of Robert and Mary A. (Wiggett) Atteaux, and died at Brookline 25 August 1926.

His parents were married in or near Manchester, co. Lancaster, England. His father was a brewer in his English home, and, migrating to Canada, established a brewery in Lennoxville, where the subject of this memoir was born and spent his early years. He received his elementary education in the public schools of Lennoxville, and was graduated in 1871 at Bishop's College, situated in the same place. Soon afterwards he came to Lawrence, Mass., where he was employed for a short time by a dry-goods firm, and then moved to Brooklyn, N. Y., where he continued in the same line of work. His next move was to Boston, where he was employed in the glove and carpet departments of the Jordan Marsh Company for a few years. Then he became a salesman of dyestuffs, first with the firm of Slade and Company and then with O. S. Jenny & Company, and several years later he became the Boston manager of Beach & Company, a Hartford (Conn.) house. In the dyestuffs business he found his life work. In 1887 he organized the firm of F. E. Atteaux & Company, in Boston, which was incorporated in 1901 with Mr. Atteaux as president; and in this business and in this position he remained until his death. "All through his career," said one of the leading Boston newspapers, "he was an enthusiastic supporter of the principle that America should produce its own dyestuffs," but he was also "a keen student of European conditions, and made frequent trips abroad in connection with his business interests."

For almost forty years Mr. Atteaux was a conspicuous figure in the civic and commercial life of Boston. He was a member and first president of the Drysalters' Club and a member of the Algonquin, Boston City, and Engineers' Clubs and of the Boston Athletic Association. His will contained several bequests to relatives and to employees in his business, the residue of the estate being left to his widow.

He married in Boston, 12 May 1885, Caroline Eliza Willard, only child of Henry Clay and Lucy R. (Davis) Willard and a descendant of Maj. Simon[1] Willard of Concord, Mass. His wife survived him, but died at her home, 740 Newton Street, in the Chestnut Hill district of Brookline, 16 December 1927. Two brothers, William Elmer Atteaux of Sherbrooke, Province of Quebec, Canada, and Augustus Charles Atteaux of Bethlehem, N. H., and a nephew, Harold E. Stuart of Dorchester, Mass., survive him.

Mrs. Jane (Jennings) Eldredge, of Woods Cross, Utah, a resident member since 1919, was born at Salt Lake City, Utah, 19 March 1856, the daughter of William and Jane (Walker) Jennings, and died about 17 September 1926.

Both her parents were born in England and migrated to the United States. Her great-grandfather, William Jennings, was of King's-Norton, co. Worcester, England, and married 12 January 1770 Ann Woolledge. Her grandfather, Isaac Jennings, of Yardley, co. Worcester, was born 5 November 1792 and married 24 January 1814 Jane Thornton, who was born 19 June 1788 and died 21 June 1878. Her father, William Jennings, was born at Yardley 13 September 1823, was at one time of St. Louis, Mo., and died 15 January 1886. He married 2 July 1851 Jane Walker, who was born at Gringley-on-the-Hill, co. Nottingham, 5 September 1835, and died 10 May 1871, daughter of John and Mary (Gorril) Walker of Gringley-on-the-Hill and granddaughter of Thomas Walker of Clayworth, co. Nottingham.

She received her early education in private schools in Salt Lake City and later under private tutors, and in the fall of 1874 entered a seminary for girls at Benicia, Calif. In 1876 her father took her and her sister to Philadelphia, where they saw the Centennial Exposition, and to other eastern cities of the United States and thence to Great Britain and the Continent, and on this tour they visited her Grandmother Jennings at Yardley. On 23 June 1879 she was married to James Alanson Eldredge, son of Horace Sunderlin and Hannah (Adams) Eldredge. For ten years they lived on a cattle ranch in the wilds of Idaho, and then settled at Woods Cross, where they built a large and comfortable home. There Mrs. Eldredge gave her support to benevolent enterprises and societies, and employed her spare time in gathering and arranging materials for the genealogies of her own and her husband's families. She compiled the "Eldredge Genealogy," which was published in the Utah Genealogical and Historical Magazine, vol. 4 (1913), and the "Descendants of John Walker, of Gringley, Notts, England," which appeared in vol. 10 (1919) of the same magazine; and she had prepared, in manuscript, accounts of the Jennings of England and of the Thorntons of England.

Mr. Eldredge survives his wife and continues to reside at Woods Cross, while, of their two adopted daughters, the elder, Susan Ethel, born 30 August 1879, died 29 November 1913, and the younger, Afton, born 9 January 1892, is now Mrs. Moss of Bountiful, Utah.

Hon. Otis Wells Johnson, of Racine, Wis., manufacturer and banker, elected a life member 17 August 1926, was born at Saugatuck, Mich., 12 March 1855, the son of Otis Russell and Emily (Wells) Johnson, and died at Racine 27 September 1926.

His descent has been traced from Capt. John[1] Johnson, who came from Yorkshire, England, to New Haven, and went thence to Rowley, Mass., where he married in 1655 Hannah Crosby and died in 1685/6, through Samuel,[2] 1671–1750, Ensign Samuel,[3] 1699–1773, Dea. Samuel,[4] 1748–1814, Moses,[5] 1787–1821, and Otis Russell,[6] his father, who was born at Winthrop, Me., 2 April 1815, and married Emily Wells, who was born at Henrietta, N. Y., 6 April 1833, the daughter of Andrew Shelton and Mary (Warner) Wells.

He was educated at "Little Blue," a well-known boys' school in Farmington, Me., and on attaining manhood lived for a time at St. Ignace, Mich., and afterwards spent several years in Chicago, Ill. He then engaged in the lumber business, with his father and brother, in Wisconsin, Michigan, and California, establishing his own residence at Racine. For a number of years (1890–1912) he was president of the Fish Brothers Wagon Company of Racine, and for another long period (1912–1924) he was at the head of the Manufacturer's National Bank, retiring from the presidency of that institution only a short time before his death. He had been president of the Mackinac Lumber Company of St. Ignace, Mich., since 1885, and vice president of the Racine Tool & Machine Company.

He was a Republican, and served as a member of the Wisconsin Senate, 1902–1904. He was especially interested and well informed in American history, and had a noteworthy collection of works of art.

He married 3 June 1890 Ella Jeanette Vennum, daughter of Thomas and Lucia Ann (Tullar) Vennum, who survives him, together with four daughters, Mrs. Melvin A. Hall (Josephine Wells Johnson) of Persia, Mrs. David S. Foster (Mary Jeanette Johnson) of Wilmington, Del., and Helene Vennum Johnson and Catherine Jewett Johnson of Racine, and also two brothers and two sisters.

Thomas Williams Baldwin, A.B., S.B., of Hardwick, Mass., a resident member since 1906, was born at Bangor, Me., 27 December 1849, the son of Thomas Williams and Margaret Josephine (Bacon) Baldwin, and died at Hardwick 29 September 1926.

He was a descendant of Henry[1] Baldwin, who was in Woburn (then a part of Charlestown), Mass., in 1640 and died there 14 February 1697/8, through Henry,[2] 1664–1739, of Woburn, Dea. Isaac,[3] 1699/1700–1759, of Woburn, Jeduthan,[4] 1731/2–1788, of Brookfield, Mass., a colonel of Engineers in the Revolution, Luke,[5] who was born at Brookfield and settled in Boston, where he died, and Thomas Williams,[6] his father, who was born at West Brookfield, Mass., 18 March 1805, married 13 November 1834 Margaret Josephine Bacon, and died in Boston 1 November 1874. Mr. Baldwin's mother, Margaret Josephine Bacon, was born in Boston 23 January 1814 and died at Bangor 29 May 1882, the daughter of John Arno and Margaret (Hopkins) Bacon, seventh in descent from Michael[1] Bacon of Dedham, Mass., who died in 1648, and a descendant also of Stephen Hopkins of the Mayflower. Mr. Baldwin's grandfather, Luke[5] Baldwin, married Mary Avery, daughter of John Avery, who was a Son of Liberty and was Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts for twenty-six years; and John Avery's wife was a daughter of Thomas Cushing, a distinguished Massachusetts Patriot, a member of the Provincial Congress in 1774 and of the Continental Congress, Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts from 1780 until his death (28 February 1788), and Acting Governor in 1785.

Thomas Williams Baldwin, the subject of this memoir, was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., entered Harvard in 1869, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1873. In 1874 he entered the Junior class of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and, after devoting two years to the study of civil engineering, was admitted there to the degree of Bachelor of Science in 1876.

In his vacations in 1874 and 1875 Mr. Baldwin was employed on surveys for the European & North American and the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroads, and in 1878 he entered on the practice of his profession at Bangor. There he served as acting city engineer until March 1879, and was then made city engineer, holding this position until 1883. He was also, for one year, superintendent of sewers at Bangor, but declined reappointment to this position. After his withdrawal from the work of city engineer he was for a few months a division engineer on the Bangor & Piscataquis Railroad, but illness forced him to give up this position and after a while he resumed private practice in Bangor.

In 1895 Mr. Baldwin moved to Boothbay Harbor, Me., where he became a member of the firm of F. C. Littlefield & Company, which was engaged in supplying ice and bait to the New England fishing vessels. In 1903 he became president of the Baldwin Fish Company, and held this position until he moved to Boston in 1908. He was one of the founders of the First National Bank of Boothbay Harbor, served as its assistant cashier for its first year and also as a director, and was a member of the Board of Corporators of the Boothbay Savings Bank. He was a member of the School Committee of Boothbay Harbor for ten years, was secretary of the Republican Town Committee, and represented his district in the Maine House of Representatives for two terms, 1905–06 and 1907–08.

In 1908 he moved to Boston, in 1910 he went to Wellesley, Mass., to reside, in 1915 he established his home in Cambridge, Mass., and in the spring of 1918 he moved thence to Hardwick. He took the clerical examinations of the Massachusetts Civil Service Commission in 1911, held a temporary clerkship in the office of this Commission in the winter of 1912–13, and in the spring of 1913 was appointed to a position in the automobile department of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, which, however, he resigned in 1914, in order to give all his time to the work of genealogical compiling, editing, and publishing, in which he had been interested for several years. His published works in this field include a genealogy of the descendants of William Patten, who was at Cambridge, Mass., in 1635/6, an account of the descendants of Michael Bacon, who was at Dedham, Mass., in 1640, and the vital records, down to 1850, of twenty-one Massachusetts towns, which were compiled and published in conformity with the provisions of the Massachusetts law and were accepted by the Commonwealth for distribution among the libraries, historical societies, and public offices designated by law to receive them. He also edited and published the "Revolutionary Journal" of his great-grandfather, Col. Jeduthan Baldwin, with a memoir of that worthy ancestor.

In his more active years Mr. Baldwin travelled extensively in the United States and Canada. Since 1884 he had been a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers, and he was enrolled also in the Massachusetts Society of the Cincinnati and the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the American Revolution. His religious affiliations were with the Unitarian Church, and he was a life member of the American Unitarian Association.

Mr. Baldwin married 8 December 1880 Maud Patten, daughter of John and Emeline (Young) Patten of Bangor, who survives her husband, together with two daughters, Mrs. Chalmers Stevens Clapp (Gladys Williams Baldwin) of Abington, Mass., and Dorothy Arno Baldwin of Hardwick.

Cf. the Fiftieth Anniversary Report of the Class of 1873, Harvard College, and the memoir of Mr. Baldwin prepared by John Carroll Chase, Esq., and published by the American Society of Civil Engineers.

Rufus William Sprague, M.D., of Boston, a resident member since 1910, was born at Charlestown, Mass., 29 August 1847, the son of Rufus William and Mary (Ford) Sprague, and died in Boston 1 October 1926.

He traced his descent from William[1] Sprague, who was among the first settlers of Charlestown and Hingham, Mass., through John,[2] 1638–1683, Ebenezer,[3] 1682–1731/2, of Providence, R. I., Daniel[4] of Johnston, R. I., Rufus,[5] Archibald,[6] and Rufus William,[7] his father, who was born in Boston 15 November 1820 and married Mary Ford (born at Lowell, Mass., 21 July 1818, daughter of John and Jane (Farmer) Ford).

He attended the public schools of Charlestown, studied medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and received the degree of Doctor of Medicine from Harvard in 1871. He continued his medical studies at the University of Vienna, and practised his profession in Charlestown and Boston for many years. From 1883 to 1904 he was visiting physician at the Charlestown Almshouse, from 1884 to 1906 he was the city physician of the Charlestown District, and at one time he was medical examiner for the Fire Department of Boston and was connected with the Board of Health.

He was deeply interested in genealogical research, and was a member of many hereditary-patriotic organizations, among them the Old Planters' Society, of which he was vice president, the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars, and the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the American Revolution. He was also a member of the Harvard Club of Boston, of the Boston Press Club, and of the Masonic fraternity, being enrolled among the Knights Templars and in the Boston Square and Compass Club. He was fond of outdoor sports, was an ardent fisherman, and, in his youth, had been an oarsman of some fame.

He married 16 February 1874 Katharine Maude Donovan, daughter of Michael and Susan (Bossom) Donovan, who survived him, together with their eldest son, Rufus William, A.B. (Harvard, 1896), LL.B. (ib., 1900), who resides at Montclair, N. J., and practises law in New York City. Two other sons, James Herbert and Alfred, died before their father.

Mrs. Julia Edgar (Le Roy) Thacher, of Morristown, N. J., a life member since 1907, was born in New York City 24 August 1845, the daughter of Rear Admiral William Edgar Le Roy and his first wife, Elizabeth Nicoll (Wyckoff) Le Roy, and died at Morristown 10 November 1926.

She was a descendant of Jacob[1] Le Roy, 1727–1793, born in Holland but of French ancestry, who came to New York from Holland, through Herman,[2] 1758–1841, the first consul of the Netherlands at New York, whose daughter Caroline was the second wife of Daniel Webster, Herman,[3] 1791–1869, of New York City, who married Juliet Edgar, and Rear Admiral William Edgar,[4] her father, who was born at Pelham, N. Y., 24 March 1818 and married Elizabeth Nicoll Wyckoff, born in New York City 29 November 1821, the daughter of Henry and Eliza Ann (Nicoll) Wyckoff.

When the subject of this memoir was very young, her mother took her to her Grandmother Wyckoff's, where mother and child made their home; and after the mother's death, on 27 February 1851, the little girl continued to live with her grandmother. Her Grandfather Wyckoff died 22 January 1866, and his widow died two years later, 10 January 1868; but their granddaughter remained at the old home, where also her grandfather's brother, William Wyckoff, lived until his death in 1878. She visited Cuba with her brother, and in 1877 went to Europe, where she spent several years. At Florence she met George Winslow Thacher, and, returning to New York in 1884, was married to him 25 November 1884, at the Church of the Transfiguration ("the Little Church around the Corner") in New York City, the rector of this church, Rev. George Hendric Houghton, officiating. Mr. Thacher was born in Boston 27 September 1848, the son of Thomas and Mary Gorham (Hallet) Thacher and a member of the well-known Thacher family of Yarmouth, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Thacher travelled much in the United States, Canada, Europe, and Japan, and spent many summers at Mr. Thacher's cottage in Yarmouthport, Mass., situated on land that had descended to him from his early ancestors. In 1918 they took possession of a house which they had bought at Morristown, and made their permanent home there.

While she lived with her grandmother, Mrs. Thacher attended the Dutch Reformed Church at Newburgh, N. Y., and later became a communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church there. In Morristown she was a member of St. Peter's Church (Protestant Episcopal). She was connected with several historical and genealogical societies, being a life member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Historical Society of Newburgh Bay and the Highlands, and the Bostonian Society, and a member of the Daughters of the Holland Dames. She belonged also to the New York Zoölogical Society and the New York Altar Guild, Inc. She was the compiler of a genealogy, which was published in 1914 under the title: "Joshua Gray of Yarmouth, Massachusetts, and His Descendants."

Mrs. Thacher was especially interested in charitable work and in the education of the young, and gave her support to several organizations in the Protestant Episcopal Church that were active in these fields. At Newburgh she aided the work of St. Luke's Hospital, the Home of the Friendless, and the Associated Charities, and, when she disposed of her part in the Newburgh property of the Wyckoffs, which had been acquired about the middle of the nineteenth century by her grandfather, Henry Wyckoff, she established Le Roy Park, from which Le Roy Avenue leads to the Hudson River. She was an associate of the Sisterhood of St. Mary, at Peekskill, N. Y., helped it in raising money for the guest house and infirmary, when the convent was built in 1903, and for many years paid for the education of a girl at St. Mary's-in-the-Mountains, a training school for mountain girls at Sewanee, Tenn.

In her will she made bequests to many of the organizations in which she had shown her interest in her lifetime. She left $500 to the Sisterhood of St. Mary, for the education of a girl at St. Mary's-in-the-Mountains, $500 to St. Andrew's School for Mountain Boys in Tennessee, $500 to St. Peter's Church in Morristown, $500 to the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and $500 to the New York Zoölogical Society. Her will contained a number of personal bequests, created two life interests, and provided that the residue of her estate should be divided equally between the Cathedral of St. John the Divine in New York City and the Sisterhood of St. Mary.

Mr. Thacher survives his wife. They had no children, and her nearest surviving blood relatives are her brother, Henry Wyckoff Le Roy of Hollywood, Calif., his daughter Cornelia, who lives in New York City, and several cousins.

PROCEEDINGS AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Communicated by HENRY EDWARDS SCOTT, Recording Secretary

THE eighty-fourth annual meeting of the Society was held on Wednesday, 1 February 1928, at 2.30 P. M., in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, President CHASE presiding and a quorum being present.

The minutes of the meeting of 4 January 1928 were read and approved.

The Council reported that since the January meeting members of the Society had been elected as follows:

Annual Members

Mrs. Alfred Patterson of St. Paul, Minn.
Mrs. J. W. T. Davis of Amherst, Mass.
Francis Jay Underhill of New York City.
Mrs. William Alfred Johnson of Lynn, Mass.
John Howard Hayes of Arlington, Mass.
Joel Audubon Webb of Upper Montclair, N. J.
Frank S. Reynolds of Asbury Park, N. J.
Mrs. Leverett T. Newton of Portland, Oreg.
Marion Stimpson Kittredge of Everett, Mass.
Mrs. Carroll H. White of Galeton, Pa.
Frederick Silsbee Whitwell of Boston, Mass.
William H. Fancher of Danbury, Conn.
Cyrus Tourtellotte Eddy of Providence, R. I.
Elizabeth Dennie Boardman of Boston, Mass.
Edward L. Richards of Union, N. H.
Mrs. Charles Doty of Roswell, N. Mex.

The Council also reported that since the January meeting the following Life Members had been transferred to Colonial Membership, being the first to be enrolled in this new class of membership established by the revised By-Laws:

Mrs. Arthur White Tedcastle (Agnes Beville Vaughan) of Milton, Mass.
Mrs. Charles Edward Campbell (Lura Chellis) of Lynn, Mass.

The Council also reported that the following had become Pilgrim Tercentenary Members by succession:

Roger Deering of Miami, Fla., in succession to his father, the late Charles Deering.

Mrs. Robert Ashton Macready (Louise May Kemp) of New York City, formerly an Annual Member, in succession to her brother, the late Edward Kemp.

Isaac Blaine Stevens of Nashua, N. H., in succession to his mother, the late Mrs. Mabel (Ellis) Stevens.

The Recording Secretary reported that since the January meeting the deaths of the following members of the Society had come to his knowledge:

Pilgrim Tercentenary Members

Mrs. Mabel (Ellis) Stevens of Nashua, N. H., died 2 January 1928.
William du Pont of Wilmington, Del., died 20 January 1928.

Annual Members

Roger Sherman of Chicago, Ill., died in June 1927.
Samuel Mitchell Child of Boston, Mass., died 17 January 1928.
Jessie Fremont Emery of Roxbury, Mass., died 18 January 1928.
Edwin Tyler Shaw of Lowell, Mass., died ———.

The Librarian reported that during the month of January 1928 there had been added to the Library and Cabinet of the Society, by gift, fourteen volumes, twenty-nine pamphlets, and twenty-eight miscellaneous articles, and that among the donations were genealogies of Adams, Casey, Clark, Huntington, Lord, Tilton, and Williams.

These reports were accepted; and then, on motion, it was Voted, That the annual reports of the Council, including its committees, the Librarian, the Corresponding Secretary, the Treasurer, the Trustees of the Kidder Fund, and the Historian, being presented in print and now in the hands of the meeting, be accepted and ordered filed.

On motion it was Voted, That the Society proceed to the election of officers and councillors, agreeable to the provisions of the By-Laws.

That three tellers be appointed by the Chair, and that said tellers shall distribute, receive, sort, and count the ballots, and make a report to this meeting,

That the polls be now opened, and stand open until every member present has had opportunity to vote.

The Chair appointed as tellers Messrs. Howard Dakin French, Walter Kendall Watkins, and Frank Willard Tucker, and the election by ballot of officers and councillors took place.

After the polls had been closed, the President called on George Andrews Moriarty, Jr., Vice President of the Society for Rhode Island and Chairman of the Committee on English Research, who read to the Society a deposition by Gov. Edward Winslow of the Plymouth Colony, the original manuscript of which was discovered not long ago among the records of the High Court of Admiralty in the Public Record Office in London. The importance of this deposition to historians and antiquaries was clearly set forth by Mr. Moriarty in a brief introductory statement before the reading of the deposition.*

The Chair then presented Mrs. G. Frederick Pierce of Dorchester, Mass., who read an extremely interesting paper prepared by Mrs. William Brisbane Rand of Newton, Mass., on Shawls, in which the process of manufacture and the designs of the famous Cashmere, Paisley, and other shawls were described. To illustrate the various sections of the paper many exquisite samples of costly shawls loaned by members and friends of the Society were displayed, under the direction of Mrs. Rand, by twelve ladies who marched across the stage and through the hall arrayed in the costumes of former days. The use of shawls by men was illustrated by Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse, who wore a shawl formerly owned by Gov. William Sprague of Rhode Island and worn by him at the Battle of Bull Run.

On motion of the Chairman of the Committee on Papers and Essays the thanks of the Society were extended to Mrs. Rand, Mrs. Pierce, and to all others who had helped in the entertainment of the afternoon.

The tellers then made their report, which showed that officers and councillors had been elected as follows:

President

John Carroll Chase, of Derry, N. H.

Vice Presidents

James Parker Parmenter, of Arlington, Mass.

Alfred Johnson, of Belfast, Me.

Albert Henry Lamson, of New London, N. H.

William Wallace Stickney, of Ludlow, Vt.

George Andrews Moriarty, Jr., of Newport, R. I.

George Seymour Godard, of Hartford, Conn.

Treasurer

James Melville Hunnewell, of Boston, Mass.

Librarian

William Prescott Greenlaw, of Winthrop, Mass.

Recording Secretary

Henry Edwards Scott, of Medford, Mass.

Corresponding Secretary

Thornton Kirkland Lothrop, of Boston, Mass.

Councillors for the term of three years, 1928, 1929, 1930

Charles Knowles Bolton, of Shirley, Mass.

Mrs. Harriette (Merrifield) Forbes, of Worcester, Mass.

Arthur Winslow Peirce, of Franklin, Mass.

President Chase, in a few appropriate words, accepted the office of President to which he had been reëlected, and called attention to the growing activities of the Society as shown in the annual reports and to the gratifying prospect of a continued increase in the membership of the Society in the coming year. Then, on motion, it was Voted, That the New England Historic Genealogical Society enters on its records at this time its appreciation of the services rendered by the retiring Councillors, Charles Eliot Goodspeed, George Arthur King, and Mrs. Grace (Hackett) Thorndike, who during their terms of office have given of their time, their thought, and their counsel that the broad purposes of the Society, the collection and preservation of genealogical records for the public benefit, might be attained.

The Recording Secretary then stated that, in accordance with a vote of the Society of 1 April 1914, the late President Baxter had appointed, as members of a Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws, Charles Sidney Ensign (Chairman), Waldo Lincoln, John Carroll Chase, James Parker Parmenter, and William Prescott Greenlaw, that on the death of Mr. Ensign, which occurred on 17 April 1917, when he was Vice President of the Society for Massachusetts, Judge Parmenter had been appointed to succeed him as Chairman and Samuel Mitchell Child, whose recent death had been reported to the Society this day, had been added to the Committee, to fill the vacancy caused by Mr. Ensign's death, and that, from the first appointment of the Committee in 1914 until the present, it had served the Society most efficiently in considering and making recommendations on all proposals for revision or amendment of the By-Laws that had been referred to it by the Society. It was this Committee that unanimously recommended the adoption of the present complete revision of the By-Laws, which went into effect on 3 January of the current year. Since under these new By-Laws a committee to consider proposed amendments to the By-Laws is no longer required, it was, on motion,

Voted, That the New England Historic Genealogical Society hereby enters in its records its appreciation of the valuable service rendered to the Society, from 1914 to the present day, by the members of the Special Committee on Revision of the By-Laws, including the two members who are now deceased, and, in declaring the Committee dissolved, expresses to the four living members its sincere thanks for their loyal and helpful coöperation in the work of the Society.

On motion it was Voted, That the proceedings of this meeting, with the annual reports accepted and the list of officers and committees for the current year, be printed in The New England Historical and Genealogical Register for April, 1928, that a copy of the annual reports presented in print at this meeting be mailed to every life and annual member of the Society not receiving the Register, that biographical notices of deceased members be printed in the various quarterly numbers of the Register, and that the Council be charged with the execution of this order.

No further business being presented, the Chair, at 4.20 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved.

[The reports presented in print at the annual meeting of the Society and the list of officers and committees for the current year are given in the following addenda to this article. — Editor.]

ADDENDUM I

REPORTS FOR THE YEAR 1927

REPORT OF THE COUNCIL

Prepared by GEORGE ARTHUR KING

IN accordance with the requirements of the By-Laws we present a review of the work of the Council for the year 1927.

A large part of the work of the Council is done through its committees, and you are referred to their reports for details of their activities.

The various purposes of the Society cannot be efficiently promoted unless its finances are in a sound condition. The reports of the Treasurer and of the Committee on Finance are commended to your careful consideration. The securities of the Society have been kept in excellent condition under the efficient management of the Treasurer and the Committee on Finance. A handsome profit has been realized during the year in the exchange of securities.

The Society's annual maintenance expenses are under a budget system. The foresight and efficiency of the Treasurer and his staff in making up that budget are proved by the results attained.

The remodelling of 7 Ashburton Place, purchased last year, has been completed, and an attractive store is the result. The property is on a good revenue-producing basis.

The Society has received from the estate of Amanda E. Dwight $3,000 and from the estate of Edmund Dana Barbour $2,000. The late Charles Deering bequeathed to the Society $25,000.

All but one of the Pilgrim Tercentenary tablets have been put in place, and the American Independence Sesquicentennial memorials, including stained-glass windows, tables, and chairs, are to be completed before the end of 1929.

Work on the publication of vital records has progressed. Two more volumes of Nantucket records have been completed, and the fifth and last volume is in the printer's hands. Early in the year the number of pages in the REGISTER was increased.

The books and manuscripts of the Society have been placed in the stacks erected last year, making them easily accessible and thus materially increasing the value of the Library to its users.

The By-Laws of the Society have been revised during the year. The last thorough revision previous to this was made in 1902. Among the changes noted is the addition of a new class of members called Colonial Members, these being of the same type as the Pilgrim Tercentenary members, the Committee on Finance has been given more complete control of the securities, and several of the committees have been consolidated.

Near the close of the year the Society lost by death its Vice President for Massachusetts, Hon. Nathan Matthews. He was a valued and valuable member of the Council, and had rendered good service in real-estate matters on a number of occasions during the last five years.

There has been a net gain in the membership during the year of 81. The number of visitors registered as using the Library continues to increase, the present seating capacity was taxed to the limit a number of times during the year, and it will be necessary soon to replace the smaller tables with larger ones to accommodate this increased use of the Library.

Report of the Committee on Finance

By John Carroll Chase, Chairman ex officio

Last year this Committee reported the purchase of the property numbered 7 Ashburton Place and the leasing of it to the proprietors of Goodspeed's Book Shop for a period of ten years. This purchase was made to enable the Society to extend its House through to Ashburton Place at some future time, when additional accommodations will be needed for its growing Library. During the past winter the building on this lot was remodelled into a very attractive store to suit the tenants, who also occupy the Society's building on the adjoining lot, which was remodelled into a store in 1921. This transaction not only insures space for the future growth of the Society, but also will yield a satisfactory return on the money invested until these two lots are needed for the use of the Society. The location of the Society's House is ideal for its purposes. The value of land in its vicinity has been increasing steadily ever since the site was purchased some twenty-five years ago. There seems to be no reason why the Society may not continue to remain for many years in the neighborhood where it has been domiciled for nearly sixty years.

In financing the purchase and the remodelling of No. 7 Ashburton Place, a profit of over eight thousand dollars was obtained this year on securities sold.

During the year 1927 the $2,000 legacy of the late Edmund Dana Barbour, with interest amounting to $95.78, was received, and $3,000 on account of the legacy of the late Amanda E. Dwight, with interest amounting to $130.33. In February Mr. Charles Deering, one of the Society's most generous benefactors, died at Miami, Fla., leaving a bequest of $25,000, which probably will be received early in 1928.*

The Committee has held regular meetings throughout the year, with nearly all of its members present at each meeting. All of its members are thoroughly acquainted with the work of the Society and with its needs. Believing that in a membership of over twenty-four hundred there are some who may be willing to establish special funds to provide for some of these needs, the Committee invites correspondence on this subject.

Report of the Committee on Ways and Means

By Mrs. Florence Reynolds (Conant) Howes, Secretary

The Committee on Ways and Means has seen no occasion for changing its policy of the last few years, and has continued to respect the active work of other committees in similar fields.

Report of the Committee on Increase of Membership

By Mrs. Florence Reynolds (Conant) Howes, Secretary

Pursuing the same course as in the preceding year, the Committee on Increase of Membership has left the weight of soliciting members to another committee, but by means of its previous methods it has procured 125 new members during the year 1927.

*This legacy was received 9 January 1928.

Report of the Committee on Publications

By James Parker Parmenter, A.M., LL.B., Chairman

The Committee on Publications reports that the work of preparing for publication the vital records of Massachusetts towns has been continued during the year 1927, that the third and fourth volumes of the Vital Records of Nantucket, comprising 1,109 pages and containing the Nantucket marriages, have been published, and that the fifth and concluding volume of the Nantucket records, a book of 626 pages, containing the Nantucket deaths, is now on the press and will be ready for distribution early in 1928.

The number of pages of text in each quarterly number of the Register, beginning with the April issue, has been increased from 112 to 128, in order, without encroaching on the space devoted to genealogical articles, to provide room for the larger number of memoirs of deceased members which must now be published. The growth of the Society in membership since the early days of 1919 has been accompanied by a considerable lengthening of the annual list of deaths, for many of the members who joined the Society in the last eight years, especially those who accepted Pilgrim Tercentenary membership, were advanced in years, and the number of deaths reported each year now ranges from sixty to seventy or more.

The Committee has suffered a serious loss by the death, on 11 November 1927, of Joseph Gardner Bartlett, who had served as a member of the Committee since October 1923. Mr. Bartlett was a recognized authority on matters relating to the English ancestry of the early settlers of New England, and his advice on papers offered for publication in the Register, independently of the Committee on English Research, was especially helpful to the Editor.

Report of the Committee to Assist the Historian

By Andrew Fiske, Ph.D., LL.B., Chairman

The Committee to Assist the Historian reports that during the past year it has received from the Historian no request for assistance, and therefore it has held no meetings and rendered no assistance.

Report of the Committee on English Research

By George Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., Chairman

During the past year the Committee has communicated to the Register articles on several English ancestral lines of a very distinguished New England family, the Derby family of Salem, Mass. These lines include a number of very important families in the West of England, of which the most important is that of the Mohuns of Fleet, a very prominent house in the time of Queen Elizabeth. In the January issue of the Register the last instalment of this search will appear.

The Committee has on hand a large amount of English records, and it intends to communicate to the Register in the near future the English ancestry of Samuel Morse, an early settler of Dedham, Mass., and of his wife, Elizabeth Jasper, as well as further records relating to the Gilbert family of Clare, co. Suffolk, ancestors of the Rhode Island Rays, the Hasketts of Henstridge, co. Somerset, and Salem, Mass., Gorton of Rhode Island, Borden of Rhode Island, Woodman of Newbury, Mass., and numerous notes upon various other New England settlers.

Researches are now in progress relating to the ancestry of Michael Metcalf of Dedham, Phineas Fiske of Wenham and Chelmsford, Mass., John Coggeshall of Newport, R. I., in addition to what has already been printed about this family, Roger Goodspeed of Barnstable, in the Plymouth Colony, and a number of other families.

The Committee wishes to point out that money is urgently needed for carrying on English research, which involves large expense, and it is its hope that any persons who have profited by its research will contribute to its funds. For the past ten years the Committee has endeavored to supply the REGISTER with valuable information regarding the English homes of a large number of important early settlers of New England, and accordingly it feels justified in asking people who are interested in this phase of genealogy to assist it in keeping up the good work. A fund of five thousand dollars, which can be invested and the income applied to the work, is greatly needed. In this way the future investigations of the Committee can be assured. Any contribution, however small, will be gratefully received and applied to such a fund. It is proposed to extend the work of the Committee to other countries besides England.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON HERALDRY

By ROBERT DICKSON WESTON, A.B., Chairman

The Committee on Heraldry reports that its activities in 1927 were a little greater than in 1926. In 1926 it dealt with twenty-six applications for the registration of arms, granted twenty-one, respited three for further proof, and rejected two. In 1927 the Committee dealt with thirty-two applications, granted twenty-six, respited three, and rejected three. Our roll of arms will appear very soon in the REGISTER.

A great many questions relating to heraldry have, as usual, been addressed to the Committee. Not infrequently these questions have put us to much trouble, but all have been answered cheerfully and, we hope, with reasonable intelligence.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON THE LIBRARY

Members are referred to the Report of the Librarian for information relating to the growth, use, condition, and needs of the Library.

Besides the above-mentioned material over eighty genealogical accounts have been obtained by gift, purchase, or deposit.

Report of the Committee on Epitaphs

By George Arthur King, Chairman

The Council appropriated $500 for the use of the Committee in copying cemetery inscriptions in New England. In planning for this work it was found that the State of Vermont, by statute, in 1919, had directed the clerks of the cities and towns to file with the Secretary of State copies of the cemetery inscriptions up to 1870, and that between 125,000 and 150,000 had been filed. In April of this year the Legislature of the State of Maine passed a statute requiring the filing of the cemetery inscriptions in the cities, towns, and plantations of the State, before 1892, with the State Registrar of Vital Statistics, the work to be completed within ten years.

By the courtesy of the Water Supply Board of Providence, R. I., the Committee has procured photostatic copies of the records of inscriptions in cemeteries in Scituate and Foster, R. I., from which the bodies were removed by the City of Providence.

The Committee has also been assured that the Society will receive from the Metropolitan District Water Commission of Boston copies of the inscriptions in the cemeteries to be obliterated in the extension of the Metropolitan Water Supply at Ware and Swift Rivers.

An index of the towns of which the epitaphs of one or more cemeteries are on file in the Library is in process of compilation.

During the year 1927 the following collections of epitaphs were received by the Society:

28 January. — Inscriptions from the Mayville (N. Y.) Cemetery. 1926. 34 pp., manuscript. Given by Frank B. Lamb of Westfield, N. Y.

2 February. — Inscriptions from Barnard, Windsor Co., Vt., containing Inscriptions in the Nye, Perkins, Moore, Chamberlin, and Townsend Cemeteries, 9 pp., typewritten; Inscriptions in the Methodist Cemetery, 1916, 14 pp., typewritten; Inscriptions in the Center Barnard Cemetery, 1917, 52 pp., manuscript; Inscriptions in the East Barnard Cemeteries, 13 pp., typewritten, 5 pp., manuscript (1917); and Inscriptions in the South Barnard Cemetery, 11 pp., typewritten. Given by Rev. W. M. Newton of Cotuit, Mass.

5 April. — Inscriptions from a group of cemeteries in the town of Rutland. 1926. 30 pp., manuscript. Given by Julia E. Willard of Watertown, N. Y.

13 April. — The Old Dutch Burying Ground of Sleepy Hollow. 1926. 87 pp. Given by Clarence A. Torrey of Dorchester, Mass.

6 September. — Epitaphs from the Cemetery at Kearsarge, N. H. 1927. 28 pp., typewritten. Given by Florence MacLea of Boston, Mass.

1 October. — Old Town Cemetery, Hampton Falls, N. H. 1927. 105 epitaphs, manuscript.

1 October. — New Yard, adjoining the Old Town Cemetery, Hampton Falls, N. H. 1927. 46 epitaphs, manuscript.

1 October. — Small Cemetery adjoining the Baptist Church, Hampton Falls, N. H. 1927. 177 epitaphs, manuscript.

1 October. — Smithtown Cemetery, Seabrook, N. H. 1927. 498 epitaphs, manuscript.

The four last-named collections were given by Mrs. Harry F. Lovering of Reading, Mass.

26 October. — Inscriptions in Ronaldson's Philadelphia Cemetery Company. 1926. 48 pp. Given by M. Atherton Leach of Philadelphia, Pa.

7 November. — Crossroad Cemetery, Hampton Falls, N. H. 178 inscriptions, manuscript. Given by Mrs. Harry F. Lovering of Reading, Mass.

19 November. — Inscriptions from nineteen cemeteries in Raynham, Mass. 1927. 1924 inscriptions, on cards.

22 December. — Inscriptions from Cemeteries at Stockbridge, Mass., viz., from the Catholic Cemetery, 375 cards, typewritten; the Stockbridge Cemetery (new section), 225 cards, typewritten; the Indian Monument and Curtisville Cemetery, 23 cards, typewritten; the Sedgwick Cemetery, 100 cards, typewritten; the Stockbridge Cemetery (oldest section) and the Curtisville (now called Interlaken) and Glendale Cemetery, 2049 cards.

28 December. — Branch Bridge Cemetery, New Salem, Mass., and Holton Cemetery (between Farley, Mass., and Erving, on the Millers Falls side). 1927. 8 pp., typewritten. Given by Mrs. Fred S. Weymouth of Orange, Mass.

28 December. — Inscriptions from the 119 stones that now remain in the oldest cemetery in Colrain, Mass., known as the Chandler Hill Cemetery. 1927. 18 pp., typewritten. Given by Mrs. John W. Cram of Colrain, Mass.

22 June, 24 August, 1 November. — Inscriptions from cemeteries in Dartmouth, Mass., to be used by the Society in preparing for publication the Vital Records of Dartmouth. 1328 cards.

The Committee has paid for inscriptions from Dartmouth, Mass., 1328 cards, $66.40; for inscriptions from Raynham, Mass., 1924 cards, $96.20; for inscriptions from Stockbridge, Mass., 2772 cards, $138.60; and for inscriptions from Scituate, R. I., 241 pp., photostat blueprints, $12.20 — a total of $313.40.

During the past year there were published in the REGISTER (in January and July) the inscriptions from a number of graveyards at East Haddam, Conn., taken from a manuscript copy purchased by the Society several years ago and forming the concluding instalments of an article that was begun in the previous volume. There were also published in the REGISTER (in July and October) inscriptions from cemeteries at Canton, Conn., which were communicated by Lucius Barnes Barbour of Hartford, Conn., a member of the Committee on Epitaphs.

The Society received from Mrs. William T. Forbes (Harriette Merrifield) of Worcester, Mass., a copy of her interesting book entitled "Gravestones of Early New England And the Men who made them," containing 141 pages and published in 1927.

Under the new By-Laws the Committee on Epitaphs is united with the former Committee on Collection of Records. It is hoped that the Council may appropriate for the new committee funds for continuing the copying of epitaphs.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON PAPERS AND ESSAYS

By Rev. GLENN TILLEY MORSE, A.B., S.T.B., Chairman

The Committee on Papers and Essays provided eight lectures for the stated meetings of the year 1927, as follows:

5 January. — "The Assimilation of the Foreign Born," by Clementina De Rocco of the North Bennet Street Industrial School Camp.

2 February. — "Untamed America," an author's reading, by Percy Mackaye of Cornish, N. H.

6 April. — "The Men of To-morrow," by Charles C. Keith of Boston, Mass.

4 May. — "A Practical Talk on the Design of Gardens," illustrated, by Arthur A. Shurtleff of Boston.

5 October. — "Early New England Gravestones and the Men who made Them," illustrated, by Mrs. Harriette Merrifield Forbes of Worcester, Mass.

2 November. — "Who have had the Greater Influence in the Development of Our Nation, the Pilgrims or the Puritans?" A discussion led by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Cambridge and Reverend Carroll Perry of Ipswich, Mass.

7 December. — "Beacon Hill in the Past," illustrated, by Walter Kendall Watkins of Wakefield, Mass.

The Committee also arranged for three extra meetings: A round-table discussion on January 19 with the subject "Are we what we are because of where we are, or are we where we are because of what we are?" drew such a responsive audience that the Committee prepared a similar programme for the stated meeting in November. A plan to print abstracts from the discussions could not be carried out. On April 20 a Colonial musicale and tea added a distinctive note to the character of the meetings. Forefathers' Day, December 21, marked the fifteenth anniversary of the occupation of the Society's House, which was open from three to five for the inspection of all rooms and departments. A large group of hostesses helped the Committee in greeting the many who brought to the Society their congratulations on its growth and success.

Report of the Special Committee on Mural Memorials

By Robert Dickson Weston, A.B., Chairman

The Committee on Mural Memorials is glad to report that its work is substantially finished. All the tablets for which it has been able to obtain instructions from the donors are in place with the exception of a single tablet which is now in the making. The tablets which have been on the walls for some time have recently been cleaned and touched up, so that all are now in good condition.

Report of the Special Committee on Rolls of Membership

By Myles Standish, A.M., M.D., S.D., Chairman

With this report the Special Committee on Rolls of Membership ceases its activities. Under the revised By-Laws, recently adopted, its duties are merged with those of the Committee on Increase of Membership, and the work formerly performed by these two committees will hereafter be carried on by a Committee on Membership.

Again there has been an increase in the number of persons on the Rolls. The increase in the number of members has averaged about one hundred annually for the last six years.

The older classes of three-dollar and five-dollar Resident Members are gradually diminishing, while the new class of ten-dollar Resident Members is rapidly increasing. The result of this transition from the older classes to the new is a decided addition to the income derived from annual dues, which is very helpful in carrying on the work of the Society.

The Society begins the year 1928 with a total of 2438 members, a net gain of 81 members in 1927. This total consists of 12 Honorary, 45 Corresponding, 441 Pilgrim Tercentenary, 675 Life, and 1277 Resident Members. Of the Life Members, 48 are in the thirty-dollar, 264 in the fifty-dollar, and 363 in the hundred-dollar class. Of the Resident Members, 44 are in the three-dollar, 400 in the five-dollar, and 833 in the ten-dollar class.

For the enlightenment of recent members to whom these various classes of Life and Resident Members may be confusing, the explanation appearing in previous reports is again repeated:

"On 1 January 1903 the annual dues of Resident Members were increased from three to five dollars per year and the Life Membership fee from thirty to fifty dollars, and these members were to receive THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER free. These increases applied only to members elected after that date, but the old members had the privilege of paying the differences in fees and receiving the REGISTER. . . .

"On 5 February 1919 the annual dues of Resident Members were increased from five to ten dollars and the Life Membership fee was increased from fifty to one hundred dollars, but these increases applied only to members elected after 28 February of that year."

The relative standing of the older members of the Society is frequently a matter of interest, and therefore a list of the Resident and Life Members who were elected before 1890 and whose names are still on the Rolls, with the date of election of each, is given below:

George William Baldwin . . . 7 June 1865
Lemuel Pope . . . . . 3 April 1867; Life Member 1874
Arthur French Towne . . . 1 April 1868; Life Member 1870
Thomas Dennie Quincy, Jr. . . 7 September 1870; Life Member 1870
Theodore Parker Adams . . . 1 October 1873
William Thomas Lambert . . . 2 June 1875; Life Member 1875
Charles Wells Hubbard . . . 2 February 1876; Life Member 1912
Sidney Perley . . . . . 6 February 1878
George Kuhn Clarke . . . . 4 September 1878; Life Member 1883
William Francis Crafts . . . 6 November 1878
Anson Titus . . . . . 6 November 1878; Life Member 1887
Grenville Howland Norcross . . 1 January 1879; Life Member 1885
Robert Maurice Bailey, Jr. . . 5 February 1879
John Whittemore Farwell . . . 3 September 1879; Life Member 1901
Walter Eliot Thwing . . . . 7 January 1880; Life Member 1880
Walter Hamlet Faunce . . . 6 April 1881
Ralph Wood Kenyon . . . . 4 May 1881; Corresponding Member 1882
Henry Pickering Walcott . . . 1 February 1882
Frank Farnsworth Starr . . . 3 September 1884; Life Member 1884
Waldo Burnett . . . . . 7 January 1885; Life Member 1885
Myles Standish . . . . . 7 January 1885
George Theodore Cruft . . . 4 March 1885
Harry Fairfield Hamilton . . . 3 February 1886; Life Member 1887
Eben Putnam . . . . . 6 October 1886; Life Member 1886
William Ward Wight . . . 6 April 1887; Life Member 1887
William Lawrence . . . . 4 May 1887; Life Member 1887
Arthur Wentworth Hamilton Eaton . 4 May 1887; Life Member 1896
Walter Frederic Brooks . . . 6 June 1888; Life Member 1902
Fiske Warren . . . . . 3 October 1888; Life Member 1891
Charles Knowles Bolton . . . 3 October 1888; resigned 28 January 1896; reëlected 3 March 1897; Life Member 1897
Frank Mortimer Hawes . . . 2 January 1889
Samuel Merrill . . . . . 3 April 1889; Life Member 1891
Richard Walden Hale . . . 3 April 1889; Life Member 1889
Lloyd Vernon Briggs . . . . 6 November 1889; Life Member 1890
Walter Kendall Watkins . . . 4 December 1889; Life Member 1889

As far as known to the Committee, the oldest living members of the Society are the following:

1. Edward Wilmot Barber, born 3 July 1828.
2. George Augustus Peabody, born 23 August 1831.
3. George William Baldwin, born 24 August 1832.
4. Walter Hamlet Faunce, born 16 November 1832.
5. Levi Badger Chase, born 24 October 1833.
6. Mrs. Harriet (Hodges) Stone, born 31 October 1834.
7. Maj. Gen. Adelbert Ames, born 31 October 1835.
8. Mrs. Anna Wallace (Wilson) Hardon, born 1 January 1836.
9. [Omitted by request.]
10.
11. Charles Briggs, born 12 November 1837.
12. Henry Nichols Blake, born 5 June 1838.

Four consecutive generations of one family are now recorded on the Rolls of Membership, as follows:

1. Ralph Haskins, elected 7 April 1847, died 9 November 1852.
2. David Greene Haskins, A.M., S.T.D., elected 6 January 1869, died 11 May 1896.
3. David Greene Haskins, Jr., A.M., LL.B., elected 6 January 1869, died 23 September 1926.
4. David Greene Haskins, 3d, elected 1 November 1927.

REPORT OF THE LIBRARIAN

Prepared by Miss Josephine Elizabeth Rayne, Assistant Librarian, and presented by the Librarian

The total accessions for the year 1927 number 1342 volumes, 397 pamphlets, and 172 miscellaneous articles. Of these, 435 volumes, 120 pamphlets, and 23 miscellaneous articles were purchased; 846 volumes, 268 pamphlets, and 149 miscellaneous articles were given or deposited; and 61 volumes and 9 pamphlets were received in exchange. Three hundred and sixty genealogies were acquired during the year.

The revised By-Laws require, as formerly, that the Librarian shall report the condition and needs of the Library at the Annual Meeting of the Society. It gives him much pleasure to report that its condition has been much improved through the installation of the three-tier stack in one of the huge fireproof vaults and the additional tier in the reference room. It has been possible for the first time in many years to arrange the books and manuscripts so that they are easily accessible, with space for shelving additions in their proper places in all departments. This enables the members of the staff to render greater service to members and visitors at less expense of muscles and nerves.

There has been a marked increase in the use of the Library in 1927. On several occasions the seating capacity has been taxed to the limit. If interest in genealogy keeps on increasing, as it undoubtedly will, it will be necessary to discard the old library tables which were brought from the old building and replace them with longer ones, for which provision was made when the building was planned.

The most important need, other than the equipment mentioned above, is the need of guides to information of a genealogical nature in miscellaneous publications, which is now practically of little use for lack of indexes. The data relating to families are being slowly made available through the genealogical index now in progress, but there is a vast amount of vital records, epitaphs, and church records buried in miscellaneous publications which ought to be catalogued. It is recommended that an appropriation from the growing surplus account be made for this purpose.

The binding fund needs to be increased again, to care for the binding, rebinding, and repairing of books, pamphlets, and manuscripts. To obtain uniform results in the color, weight, and texture of the binding material an order has been placed for a supply of canvas which should suffice for several years.

The Librarian reported to the Annual Meeting of the Society on 4 February 1925 the gift of "Godard's Digest Analytical and Chronological of Connecticut Probate Papers," consisting of 105,335 index cards, representing approximately that number of estates, and 14,729 cross-reference cards (see REGISTER, vol. 79, pp. 197–200). A detailed list of the probate districts included in this first instalment of the work, with the periods covered, was there given.

A second instalment of this very important Digest was received this year and has been prepared and added to the first. The additions are as follows:

BROOKLYN, 1836–1908. 321 folders,* 28 cross references.
CANTERBURY, 1873–1923. 393 folders, 23 cross references.
HARTLAND, 1836–1921. 444 folders, 71 cross references.
LEDYARD, 1837–1920. 1027 folders, 179 cross references.
MANSFIELD, 1831–1924. 369 folders, 52 cross references.
NEW HAVEN, 11,813 folders.
NORTH STONINGTON, 1005 folders, 195 cross references.
NORWICH, 4 folders.
OLD LYME, 245 folders, 23 cross references.
POMFRET, 1752–1919. 282 folders, 50 cross references.
SOMERS, 1810–1921. 71 folders, 6 cross references.
WALLINGFORD, 1776–1854. 1682 folders, 145 cross references.

The Connecticut General Assembly of 1927 provided for the making of a general index of all probate records in Connecticut, by districts and under the supervision of the Examiner of Public Records.

To the collection of city and town directories in the Library 419 have been added this year. This division, which is arranged in the new upper stack, is frequently consulted by our members and the public.

By vote of the Council thirty-five parcels of manuscript business letters of John, Thomas, and Ebenezer Hancock were deposited in December 1927 in the Baker Library, at the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, Soldiers Field, Boston, Mass. These letters will be mounted and arranged in book form, and thus this interesting collection will be accessible to the many research students who visit the Baker Library. The New England Historic Genealogical Society maintains a special library for the purpose of collecting and preserving genealogical, historical, and biographical material, and the Librarian endeavors to hold it extremely close to its incorporated purpose. The Hancock business letters were seldom used at the Society's Library, but they will be a valuable and useful addition to the Baker Library.

The walls of the entrance corridor and stair hall and the mural memorial tablets have been cleaned, a process which has added very much to the attractiveness of this part of the building.

"Since I began to take charge of this library — nearly a year and a half ago — I have been surprised at the number of gentlemen who have come here to look up their pedigrees. One from Oregon, another from California, another from Illinois, and numbers from the middle states, and different parts of New England, have called and spent hours and some few even days, in searching genealogy and heraldry, taking minutes, and pondering over the faint or certain traces of their ancestors. Not long since two very civil and intelligent Mormons from Utah spent some hours in searching their progenitors and went away somewhat pleased at the information they obtained. Letters of inquiry, touching this subject are not unfrequent. It shows the value of our association, and the increasing spread of its influence; and let it be our grand object and untiring effort to obtain every book of pedigree, and everything touching this subject in New England, that our Genealogical Society may be the HEAD-QUARTERS, from which shall issue all true knowledge of New England ancestry."

The above statement, written in 1862 by John Hannibal Sheppard, A.M., Librarian of this Society, describes quite accurately present conditions on a minute scale. It is still surprising — the number of persons who come here from all sections of the country in search of information about their ancestors and the number of letters of inquiry that are received. The usefulness of the institution is manifest from this ever-increasing number of visitors and correspondents seeking genealogical information.

It can be said truthfully that the untiring efforts of the Librarian and his staff are directed to the task of obtaining genealogical data for the Library; and such a degree of success has been attained that the dream of Mr. Sheppard seems to have come true, and the Library of the Genealogical Society has become the headquarters for the collection of records not only of New England but also of all American families.

During the year 1927 one Corresponding Member joined the Society. Eight Pilgrim Tercentenary Members were added to the rolls of the Society by succession, and one Corresponding Member and two Resident Members were transferred to Life Membership. Eleven new Life Members and two hundred and thirteen new Resident Members were added to the membership rolls during the year. Besides the three transfers to other classes of membership, two hundred and thirty-three new members joined during the year 1927. The two hundred and thirteen new Resident Members make the largest number joining in one year in that class of membership for a long time, if not in the whole history of the Society, excepting only in the year 1923, when two hundred and seventy-five Resident Members joined. This shows the year 1927 to have been a very prosperous year in the growth of the Society.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Communicated by HENRY EDWARDS SCOTT, Recording Secretary

Boston, Massachusetts, 4 January 1928. A stated meeting of the Society was held in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, at 2.30 P.M., President Chase presiding.

The minutes of the meeting of 7 December 1927 were read and approved.

The regular order of business having been suspended by unanimous consent, it was, on motion,

Voted, That the New England Historic Genealogical Society hereby enters in its records its appreciation of the great loss that it has sustained in the death, on 11 December 1927, of Hon. Nathan Matthews, Vice President of the Society for Massachusetts and a member of the Council ex officio. Elected a resident member of the Society 2 April 1884 and made a life member in 1915, Mr. Matthews for more than forty-three years was loyal and helpful in all his relations with the Society. He served on the Committee on Finance for five consecutive years (1917–1921), filled a three-years term as Councillor (1917–1919), and since December 1921 had held, by successive elections, the important office of Vice President of the Society for Massachusetts. His profound knowledge of the law and his ability as an advocate enabled him on several occasions to render lasting service to the Society; when called occasionally to the chair, either of the Council or of the Society, he presided with courtesy, dignity, and good judgment; and the eminent position which he had held in the public life of Boston reflected honor on the Society whose officer he was and in whose work and success he was always deeply interested. In recording this tribute to its late Vice President the Society extends to his widow, children, brother, and sisters its heartfelt sympathy in their affliction.

The Council reported that at its stated meeting on 3 January 1928, acting under authority conferred on it by the last paragraph of Section 1 of Article V of the By-Laws, it had unanimously elected Hon. James Parker Parmenter of Arlington, Mass., as Vice President for Massachusetts, to fill the vacancy in that office caused by the death of Hon. Nathan Matthews, who was serving as Vice President for the year extending from February 1927 to February 1928.

The Council also reported that since the December meeting members of the Society had been elected as follows:

Annual Members

Edward E. Ashley, Jr., of New York City.
Charles A. Perkins of Hoopeston, Ill.
Mrs. F. A. Sawyer of Waverly, N. Y.
George Tryon of Anaconda, Mont.
Mrs. Eugene W. Rogers of Chicago, Ill.
Tracy Campbell Dickson of Watertown, Mass.
Byron Ray Lewis of Bridgeport, Ill.
Mrs. Claude Hamilton of Grand Rapids, Mich.
Warren J. Davis of Racine, Wis.
Sudie Bates of Birmingham, Ala.
Mrs. James J. Jennings of Sacramento, Calif.
Mrs. Marie M. Adams of Austin, Tex.
Mrs. F. W. Herrick of Lexington, Mass.
Mrs. F. G. Kellogg of Omaha, Nebr.
Elmer E. Silver of Woburn, Mass.
Mrs. Charles A. Draper of Palo Alto, Calif.
Mrs. E. H. Darrach of Indianapolis, Ind.
William E. Sherman of Fulton, Ky.
James C. Brown of Painesville, Ohio.
Albion Lord Danforth of Winchester, Mass.
John P. Wright of Keene, N. H.
L. Lincoln Rogers of Medina, N. Y.
Mrs. John Cleworth of Winchester, Mass.
Elizabeth Emerson Manson of Cambridge, Mass.
Ervin Wilbur Hodsdon of Center Ossipee, N. H.
Weyburn Samuel Fletcher of Scranton, Pa.

The Council also reported that since the December meeting the following Resident (now called Annual) Members had been transferred to Life Membership:

George Ritchie Marvin of Brookline, Mass.
Maude Jewett of Ravinia, Ill.

The Recording Secretary reported that since the December meeting the deaths of the following members of the Society had come to his knowledge:

Resident Members

Walter Bemis Mossman of Brookline, Mass., died 25 December 1927.

The Librarian reported that during the month of December 1927 there had been added to the Library and Cabinet of the Society, by gift, seven volumes, one pamphlet, and three miscellaneous articles, and that among the donations were genealogies of Kirkpatrick and Palmer.

After these reports had been accepted, the Chair introduced Mr. and Mrs. Walter Everett Corbin of Florence, Mass., whose topic, Glimpses of the Connecticut Valley, was presented by Mrs. Corbin in an interesting and instructive lecture, which included bits of geology, history, poetry, and natural history, and was illustrated by Mr. Corbin in a series of lantern slides, many of them colored, which pictured places of beauty and interest in the Connecticut Valley, especially the Mount Tom and the Mount Holyoke Ranges, Mount Sugar Loaf, Mount Toby, and the Dinosaur Ledge.

No further business being presented, President Chase, at 4.10 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and the members of the Society and their friends enjoyed the usual social hour in the adjoining tea room.

1 February. The annual meeting of the Society was held this day, for a report of which see pages 219 and following of the present number of the REGISTER.

7 March. A stated meeting of the Society was held in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, at 2.30 P.M., President Chase presiding.

Charles Henry Pearson of Brookline, Mass., died in February 1928.

Mary Pratt Sears of Boston, Mass., died 14 February 1928.
Arthur Edward Gage of Woburn, Mass., died 24 February 1928.

The Librarian reported that during the month of February 1928 there had been added to the Library and Cabinet of the Society, by gift, twenty-two volumes, nineteen pamphlets, and three miscellaneous articles, and that among the donations were genealogies of Van Cleve and Welles and Allied Families.

After these reports had been accepted, the Chair presented, as the speaker of the afternoon, Randall Jones of Cedar City, Utah, who told to a large and appreciative audience the story of Zion National Park, illustrating his remarks with a series of moving pictures and beautifully colored lantern slides.

No further business being presented, President Chase, at 4.15 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and the members of the Society and their friends were hospitably entertained in the adjoining tea room.

NOTES

It having come to the attention of this Society that certain genealogists and publishers have used the name of the Society in connection with their own enterprises, the Society again desires to state that it has NO genealogical representatives in this country or in England, nor is it in any way connected with any publications other than those that it issues over its own name at 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

It has also been reported to the Society that certain paper salesmen have been telling members of the Society who were seeking durable paper for their publications that the paper used in this periodical is "one hundred per cent wood."

For more than fifty years the paper used for this magazine has been made to order by the same manufacturer, and since 1907 it has been made on the Society's formula and watermarked "N. E. H. G. S. Standard." Sample sheets, selected at random, have been examined by a competent chemist, whose certificates have shown that the paper complies with the requirements of the formula. This formula is in substantial agreement with the recommendations of the Committee on Deterioration of Paper, appointed by the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, & Commerce, whose report (London, 1898) shows an exhaustive study of the subject. The leading German, English, and American chemists who have made a study of the manufacture of paper believe that paper properly made on such specifications will prove sufficiently lasting for publications of permanent value. This Society requires not less than 75% rag fibre, not over 25% wood fibre, freedom from all but the merest trace of chemicals used in the manufacture, and not over 10% clay filler.

The new By-Laws of the Society, which were adopted at the stated meeting of 7 December 1927 and took effect 3 January 1928, have been printed, and members may obtain copies by applying to the Recording Secretary, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

JULY, 1928

HON. NATHAN MATTHEWS, LL.D.

By Henry Edwards Scott, A.B., of Medford, Mass.

Nathan Matthews, former Mayor of Boston, an eminent lawyer, an upright and vigorous public servant, an authority on municipal government and municipal reform, was born in Boston 28 March 1854, the eldest son of Nathan and Albertine (Bunker) Matthews, and died suddenly at the Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, where he was thought to be recovering from a surgical operation, 11 December 1927.

He was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 2 April 1884 and was made a life member in 1915, and in his membership of more than forty-three years was loyal and helpful in all his relations with the Society. He served on its Committee on Finance for five consecutive years (1917–1921), was one of its Councillors for a three-years term (1917–1919), and from December 1921 until his death held, by successive elections, the important office of Vice President of the Society for Massachusetts, which made him again a member of the Council. At its stated meeting on 4 January 1928 the Society entered in its records its appreciation of the great loss that it had sustained in the death of Mr. Matthews, and paid tribute to him in these words: "His profound knowledge of the law and his ability as an advocate enabled him on several occasions to render lasting service to the Society; when called occasionally to the chair, either of the Council or of the Society, he presided with courtesy, dignity, and good judgment; and the eminent position which he had held in the public life of Boston reflected honor on the Society whose officer he was and in whose work and success he was always deeply interested."*

Nathan Matthews, known during the greater part of his life, until the death of his father, as Nathan Matthews, Jr., belonged to a Cape Cod family which for five generations — almost two centuries — before his father's time had lived in the ancient town of Yarmouth. James[1] Matthews, the immigrant ancestor of the family, after a brief stay at Charlestown in the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, where he appears in 1634, moved on in 1639 or earlier to Yarmouth in the Plymouth Colony, a town of which he was a founder, in which he held various local offices, including that of selectman, and from which he was sent in 1664 as a representative to the General Court of the Colony. He died in January 1685/6. He was the father of two or more daughters and of at least seven sons, from the youngest of whom, Benjamin[2] Matthews, who married Hannah Ryder and held a few minor town offices, Nathan Matthews, Jr., traced his descent through James,[3] who married Dorcas Howes, Isaac,[4] who lived in the period of the Revolution, married Phebe Howes, and was a lieutenant in a Barnstable County regiment, a selectman of Yarmouth for twelve years, a member of the Committee of Safety of the town in 1775 and 1776, and one of the committee of the town to see that the resolves of the Continental Congress were carried out, James,[5] who was born at Yarmouth 12 June 1779, married Sarah Hallett (born at Yarmouth 18 June 1784), and was still more prominent in town affairs, serving as selectman for twenty-five years, as moderator at many town meetings, and as town clerk for several years, and Nathan,[6] his father, who was born at Yarmouth 15 September 1814.

Nathan[6] Matthews and his brothers, as they grew to manhood, left their ancestral home and sought broader fields of useful activity. In 1833, when the father of the subject of this memoir was nineteen years old, he came to Boston, and there engaged in business, with a capital of four thousand dollars, which was furnished by his father. At first he was unsuccessful, and in 1837, a year marked by one of the great financial panics of our history, he failed, making a settlement with his creditors for fifty cents on a dollar. Fourteen years later, however, he paid in full the balance of his indebtedness. About 1852 he began operations in real estate; for many years, as president of the Winnisimmet Company, he bought and sold large tracts of land in Chelsea; and in the sixties, as president of the Boston Water Power Company, he developed the Back Bay section of Boston. His large fortune was, however, swept away in 1878, when, as a result of losses caused by the great Boston fire of 1872, the financial panic of 1873, and the failure of the Boston Water Power Company, he was again driven into insolvency; but again, by successful real-estate transactions, he recovered part of what he had lost in the preceding years. To his generosity in the days of his prosperity Harvard College is indebted for Matthews Hall and the Matthews Scholarships and the town of Yarmouth for a memorial building for its Free Library, while many other worthy religious and charitable causes were aided by his judicious support. Interested in historical and antiquarian subjects, he made possible, by his financial help, the publication of the second volume of Freeman's "History of Cape Cod," and from 1870 on he was a life member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society. His religious affiliations were with the Protestant Episcopal Church, in his earlier years in Boston he was a vestryman of St. Paul's Church, and afterwards he was a communicant at Emmanuel Church and still later, for over thirty years, at the Church of the Advent. He died at his summer home at Bar Harbor, Me., 29 August 1904.

Nathan[6] Matthews married, 9 September 1851, Albertine Bunker, who was born in New York City 9 November 1828 and survived her husband, daughter of William Jenkins and Ann (Southworth) Bunker of New York City and a descendant of Constant[1] Southworth of Duxbury in the Plymouth Colony, whose mother, Alice (Carpenter) Southworth, widow of Edward Southworth, became the second wife of Gov. William Bradford. Mr. and Mrs. Matthews had seven children, of whom a daughter, Alice Southworth, was born 4 May 1866 and died in infancy, and a son, Constant Southworth, A.B. (Harvard, 1890), was born in Boston 25 September 1869 and died there 30 July 1893. The other five children survived their parents, and four of them are still living, namely, Caroline, Sarah Hallett (now Sister Paula of St. Margaret's Convent, Boston), Albert, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1882), a well-known antiquarian, who was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1900 and became a life member in 1902, and is also a member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the American Antiquarian Society, and the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and Elizabeth (now Mrs. Henry La Barre Jayne of Philadelphia, Pa.).*

Nathan Matthews, Jr., the eldest son of Nathan[6] Matthews, was prepared for college at the well-known school of Epes Sargent Dixwell, A.M., in Boston, took the regular four-years academic course at Harvard, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1875. He then spent two years in study and travel in Europe, in the course of which he pursued for two semesters courses in political economy and jurisprudence at the University of Leipzig, and on his return home entered, in 1877, the Harvard Law School, where he was a student until 1880. In that year he was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, and thenceforth practised his profession in Boston until his death. In 1893 the University gave to him the degree of Bachelor of Laws, as of the Law School Class of 1880, and in 1909 it conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

For the first two years of his professional career Mr. Matthews was in partnership with the late Charles Maynard Barnes, A.B. (Harvard, 1877), LL.B. (ib., 1880); then for several years he practised law by himself; from 1896 to 1910 he had as partners William Goodrich Thompson, A.B. (Harvard, 1888), A.M. and LL.B. (ib., 1891), and Samuel Romney Spring (now called Romney Spring), B.A. (Williams, 1894), LL.B. (Harvard, 1897); and then again, for the rest of his life, he carried on his legal work without partners. He attained great distinction in his chosen profession, was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, and in the World War was special counsel for the United States Railroad Administration. Equity cases claimed a large share of his attention; conveyancing and searching among ancient records for titles had an especial attraction for him and quickened his interest in antiquarian and historical studies; and his knowledge of legal history was recognized by his appointment as a member of the Council of the American Law Institute. Many trust funds were administered by him; and his acquaintance with real-estate conditions in Boston and his sound judgment in real-estate dealings were unrivalled.

It was, however, in his career as a public servant, in the part that he played in purifying and reforming the municipal government of Boston, that Nathan Matthews, Jr., rendered his most conspicuous service to the community in which he lived. He was among the young men who were aroused to enthusiastic support of the Democratic Party by the issues involved in the exciting presidential campaign of 1884, and who were confirmed in their political faith by the courage, vigorous leadership, and high ideals of public duty exhibited by Grover Cleveland in his administration of the Presidency. In 1888 Mr. Matthews was one of the founders of the Young Men's Democratic Club of Massachusetts; in 1889 he was chairman of the Democratic State Convention; from 1889 to 1896 he was a member of the Democratic State Committee; and in 1890, as chairman of the State Committee, he conducted the successful campaign that resulted in the election of William Eustis Russell as Governor of Massachusetts. In December 1890 he was elected Mayor of Boston, and was thrice reëlected to this office, holding it for four consecutive terms, 1891–1894.

As Mayor of Boston he exercised in a most vigorous fashion the full executive power that had been conferred on the Mayor by the amendments made in the City Charter in 1885. Members of the City Council, who had practically controlled some of the former incumbents of the mayoralty, found that Mr. Matthews was Mayor in fact as well as in name. City departments were consolidated and reformed; able men were selected for important administrative positions; mere politicians lost their influence at City Hall; and Mayor Matthews was faithful to his solemn promise, "to give the people of Boston an honest business administration of their affairs." The voters of Boston showed their approval of the accomplishments of his first year as Mayor by reëlecting him by an increased majority; but the enemies that he had made in the early part of his administration were able to reduce his majorities in the two subsequent elections. On 5 January 1895, at the close of his fourth term as Mayor, he delivered to the City Council a farewell address, in which he reviewed the progress that had been made during the past four years and pointed out various important changes that, in his opinion, were necessary to make the city government still more efficient and to enable it to be of still greater benefit to the inhabitants of Boston. Several years later, 1907–1909, as chairman of the newly established Finance Commission of Boston, Mr. Matthews was influential in securing the adoption of many of these changes, which were embodied in a new city charter.*

*An appreciative review of Mr. Matthews's part in reforming the municipal government of Boston, both as Mayor of Boston and as Chairman of the Finance Commission, may be found in the admirable memoir by George R. Nutter, Esq., in The Harvard Graduates' Magazine for March, 1928, to which the reader is referred for further details of his public service.

In 1888 Mr. Matthews had been a Democratic candidate for presidential elector in Massachusetts. In 1892 he was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention. In 1896 he was chairman of the National (Sound Money) Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts. In 1899 he delivered the Fourth of July oration in Boston, under the auspices of the city government. In 1904 he was again chairman of the Democratic State Convention. In addition to his service on the Finance Commission he was called on, from time to time, to serve as chairman of various other Boston commissions, such as the Height of Buildings Commission, 1904 and 1905, the Commission on a Segregated Budget, 1915, and the Commission on New Sources of Revenue, 1920–21. He was also chairman of the Salem and Beverly Water Supply Board, from 1913 to 1923. In 1895 he published a "History of the City Government of Boston," and, as a recognized authority and expert in municipal government, he was appointed lecturer on municipal government at Harvard for the academic years 1909–10 and 1911–12, and again for the years 1914–1917, and he was lecturer on city charters at Harvard in the years 1913–1915.

But Mr. Matthews's interests were by no means confined to the fields of law, politics, and municipal government. He found much pleasure in antiquarian and historical researches, and he had assembled an abundant store of information, gained for the most part from his studies in land records, about the old houses and estates of Essex County, in which (at Hamilton) he had established a country home. In an illuminating address, a year or two ago, before the Bar Association of Boston, he described the laws and lawyers in the Massachusetts Bay Colony in the seventeenth century; and at the time of his death he had almost ready for publication an article on the history and genealogy of the Matthews family. He was the author of many newspaper and magazine articles on historical, legal, and economic topics, and his book entitled "Municipal Charters" was published in 1914 by the Bureau for Research in Municipal Government at Harvard University. He was often seen pursuing his researches in the Library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, and he was a member also of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, and the American Statistical Society. In the last years of his life he was chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Massachusetts State Library, and he was also president of the Franklin Foundation. Always fond of out-of-door life, he was especially interested in forestry, and on his estate at Hamilton he established an arboretum of his own, where he spent much time in the scientific practice of arboriculture. This forest at Hamilton he gave by his will to Harvard College. In all that he undertook Mr. Matthews exhibited tireless activity, inexhaustible energy, and indomitable driving power.

His clubs included several athletic organizations, such as the Union Boat Club, the Boston Athletic Association, of which he was one of the founders, the Country Club, the Myopia Hunt Club, and the Tennis and Racquet Club; and he was a member also of the Union, Algonquin, Somerset, Exchange, and University Clubs of Boston and of the Metropolitan Club of Washington, D. C.

Mr. Matthews married at Newport, R. I., 5 April 1883, Ellen Bacon Sargent, daughter of Lucius Manlius Sargent of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1859, as of 1848), M.D. (ib., 1857), who was killed near Bellfield, Va., 9 December 1864, while serving in the Civil War as lieutenant colonel of the First Massachusetts Cavalry, and his wife, Letitia Sullivan (Amory) Sargent. Mrs. Matthews survives her husband, together with their two children, Ellen Natalie Matthews of Washington, D.C., A.B. (Radcliffe, 1907), and Sullivan Amory Matthews. Mr. Matthews's brother Albert and three of his sisters also survive him, as has been stated above, on page 261.

TIMOTHY WILLIAMSON OF MARSHFIELD, MASS., AND HIS DESCENDANTS

48. Eliphaz Miller[6] Williamson (Ransom,[5] Caleb,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), of Pomfret, Hartford, and (after 1875) Sharon, Vt., school-teacher, carpenter, and farmer, born at Pomfret, Vt.,* 4 Dec. 1798, died at Sharon, Vt., 29 Sept. 1884. He married first, at Pomfret, 21 Dec. 1820, Doris Winslow, born at Pomfret 18 Sept. 1802, died at Hartford, Vt., 16 Jan. 1866, where she was buried; and secondly, at Sharon, Vt., 2 Sept. 1868, Harmony Page Holt, born at Sharon 24 Aug. 1830, died there 26 Jan. 1900, daughter of Ferrman and Lucy (Page) Holt.

Mr. Williamson's first wife was a member of the Pomfret Congregational Church in July 1828, but was excommunicated 4 Oct. 1833, being, doubtless, one of the Unitarian seceders. As in other cases, the church records erroneously give this date as the date of death.

Children by first wife:

86. i. Albert Eliphaz,[7] b. at Pomfret 21 July 1822.
    ii. Nancy Minerva, b. at Pomfret 23 Feb. 1825; d. at Hartford, Vt., 25 Apr. 1914 and bur. there; m. at Woodstock, Vt., 27 Apr. 1845, George Emerson Wood of Hartford, farmer, b. at Hartford in 1823, d. there 3 Feb. 1870, son of Ira and Rebecka (Christie) Wood.

        Child (surname Wood):

        1. Catherine Christie, b. at Hartford 12 Aug. 1850; d. unm. 13 May 1913. She was confined to her bed for many years.

    iii. Lucy, b. and d. 27 Apr. 1832.
    iv. Welthania Dorothy, b. 26 Sept. 1834; d. s.p. 5 Feb. 1915; m. 14 June 1863 Francis Ferrman Holt, merchant, b. at Sharon, Vt., 26 July 1824, d. at West Hartford, Vt., 4 Sept. 1903, son of Ferrman and Lucy (Page) Holt of West Hartford.

*Family Bible record. The Winslow Memorial, by Parson Holton, vol. 1, p. 488, gives the place of birth as Granville, Mass.

v. Egbert Van Schaick (or Van Schaack), of Boston, pawnbroker, b. 15 Sept. 1839; d. in Boston 12 Dec. 1883; m. at Nashua, N. H., 18 Mar. 1863, Helen Thompson, b. at Lowell, Mass., in Dec. 1841, d. at Oakland, Calif., 12 Feb. 1908, daughter of Charles Boodah and Fanny Thompson. Mr. Williamson was named for his Aunt Jerusha's husband. (Vide supra, 17, vii.)

Children:

1. Helen Maud,[8] b. 19 Feb. 1865; m. at Oakland, Calif., 5 Dec. 1900, William Henry Richardson, carpenter, b. at Sacramento, Calif., son of ——— and Amada (Rocksand) Richardson of Flintville, Calif. One child.
2. Blanche Doris, b. 20 May 1866; m. at Honolulu, Hawaii, 10 Nov. 1897, John Drew of Honolulu, manager of the steamship department of Castle & Cook, Ltd., b. at Farmingdale, Me., 21 Aug. 1870, son of John Henry and Louise (Lancaster) Drew. One child.

Child by second wife:

vi. Carrie, b. at Sharon, Vt., 14 May 1871; living there in 1925; m. 6 Apr. 1900 Edgar Chillson of Sharon, laborer, b. at Massinippi, P. Q., 12 Nov. 1852, d. s.p. at West Hartford, Vt., 21 Feb. 1897, son of George Washington and Sarah (Mosher) Chillson.

49. Robert Ransom[6] Williamson (Ransom,[5] Caleb,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), of Pomfret, Vt., shoemaker, born at Woodstock, Vt., 22 July 1805; d. at Amesbury, Mass., 9 July 1870. He married, 12 Oct. 1828, Lucinda E. French, born 9 Aug. 1808, died at Woodstock, Vt., 9 Apr. 1883.*

In Feb. 1824 Robert Williamson and Miss Lucinda French of Pomfret joined the Congregational Church of the town, but were excommunicated by vote of the church on 4 Oct. 1833, although they had been married by the pastor of the society, Rev. Joseph Marsh.

Robert Ransom Williamson passed his last years with his son Henry at Amesbury. His wife remained in Vermont, living for a long time at Woodstock. Her estate was settled by her son Isaac (Woodstock Probate Files).

Children:

i. Jerusha H.,[7] b. in 1830; d. 9 Apr. 1832, aged 1 year, 10 months.†

88. vi. Henry, b. at Pomfret 10 Apr. 1838.

50. Rev. Isaac Dowd[6] Williamson, D.D. (Ransom,[5] Caleb,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), Universalist minister, editor, and author,

*The North Pomfret church records give her death as occurring on 10 Sept. 1856, the mistake being corrected in an entry dated June 1867 (p. 41), where her name is included in the roll of membership, with a reference to her excommunication (pp. 90 and 34), and again (p. 49): "Present members of the church Lucinda Williamson of Hartford or Woodstock 1862." The original records of the church (now the North Pomfret church) were in 1919 in the custody of Miss Persis D. Hewitt of North Pomfret. The strange errors in the entries about the Williamsons have been disentangled and corrected in this article.

†The first three children are buried in the Burns Cemetery at Pomfret, their gravestone having been "erected by I. D. Williamson."

born at Pomfret, Vt., 14 Apr. 1807, died at Ingleside, near Cincinnati, Ohio, 26 Nov. 1876. He married at Mount Holly, Vt., ADELINE ELIZA GUERNSEY, born at Mount Holly 13 Sept. 1809, died in Chicago, Ill., 9 Aug. 1891, where she was buried.

Rev. Isaac Dowd Williamson attained some eminence as a Universalist preacher. He received only a common-school education, but nevertheless he preached his first sermon when but twenty years old, at Springfield, Vt., 10 Oct. 1827. He was ordained at Townshend, Vt., 10 Sept. 1827, by the Franklin Assembly. His different pastorates were at Jaffrey, N. H., Albany, N. Y., Mobile, Ala., Cincinnati, Ohio, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., New York City, Lowell, Mass., Louisville, Ky., and Philadelphia, Pa. He travelled extensively as an evangelist and missionary, and was very prominent as an Odd Fellow of the Grand Chapter of the Odd Fellows' Lodge of the United States. He was long its chaplain, and was the author of the ritual of the society and one of the editors of its official organ, The Covenant. With Horace Greeley he was sent to England to establish more intimate relations with the English Odd Fellows. He was one of the first to advocate the establishment of the Order of Rebecca, although the plan was not carried out until later. By his efforts the Odd Fellows' Library, the first library in Baltimore, Md., was founded, and he contributed to it from his own collection of books. He was editor of The Herald and The Star in the West, two denominational papers, and was a logical, forceful, and convincing writer. His "Rudiments of Theological and Moral Science" was considered his masterpiece, and contained an affectionate and appreciative dedication to his wife. He received the degree of Doctor of Divinity from Norwich University in 1850.

ADDITIONAL RECORDS RELATING TO THE ENGLISH ANCESTRY OF THE BOWDITCH FAMILY OF SALEM, MASS.

By G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., of Newport, R. I.

In July 1918 the Committee on English Research communicated to the Register (vol. 72, pp. 223–240) an article by the Chairman of the Committee, the contributor of the present article, in which it was shown that the William Bowditch who died at Salem, Mass., in 1681 and was the ancestor of the well-known Bowditch family of Salem and Boston was not, as had been supposed, a son of the William Bowditch who was at Salem in 1639, but was a son of William Bowditch of Thorncombe, then in co. Devon but now in co. Dorset, and a great-great-grandson of John Bowditch of Thorncombe, who was buried there 17 May 1563. In that article the contributor wrote (p. 236) in regard to John Bowditch of Thorncombe: "It is not unlikely that he was a member of the ancient and gentle family of Bowdich of Chardstock, a neighboring parish in Dorset, about eight miles from Thorncombe, whose pedigree for sixteen generations is entered in the Visitation of Dorsetshire for 1623; and further research might bring to light the exact connection between John Bowditch of Thorncombe and the Chardstock family."

In April 1924, under the title of "Genealogical Gleanings in England," the Committee on English Research communicated to the Register (vol. 78, pp. 144–146) additional English records relating to this Bowditch family, collected by the contributor of the present article, some of which, as stated in a note by the contributor, made it "almost certain that the father of John Bowditch of Thorncombe, who died in 1563 . . . , was named Robert, and perhaps his grandfather also had the same Christian name." "It is clear," continued the writer in his note, "that this Thorncombe family originated in the neighboring parish of Chardstock, co. Dorset, where the Bowditches or Bowdiches had been settled from very early times as a family of small gentry."

In recent years the further research suggested in the article published in 1918 has been carried on — under the direction of the writer and with funds secured by Dr. Harold Bowditch of Brookline, Mass., a member of the Committee on English and Foreign Research — by Maj. Alfred Trego Butler, Portcullis Pursuivant at the College of Arms, London, and a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, who has succeeded in tracing the Bowditch ancestry back for one and possibly two generations beyond the John Bowditch who was buried in 1563. He has proved that this John Bowditch was a "gentleman" and the son of Robert Bowditch (or Boudyche) of Holditch Court, a manor in the parish of Thorncombe, and that this Robert was, in all probability, the son of an earlier Robert Bowditch (or Boudyche), who was born about

1460 and, as Robert Boudyche, Sen., was assessed at Thorncombe in the subsidy of 1524/5. Furthermore, it has been found that John Bowditch, the eldest son of the John Bowditch who was buried in 1563, held half of Holditch Court and used the crest of the ancient family of Chardstock; and there can be little doubt that the Thorncombe family was a cadet branch of the gentle family settled at Bowditch, a capital messuage in Chardstock. The descendants of John Bowditch, the eldest son of the John who was buried in 1563, eventually acquired the whole of the manor of Holditch Court, of which they became the lords, which they held until 1718, when they sold it to the present owners. George Bowditch of Thorncombe, the youngest son of the John who was buried in 1563, was the ancestor of the Bowditch family of Salem; and both he and his descendants appear to have engaged in the then lucrative business of clothiers, i.e., cloth manufacturers. (Cf. pedigree in REGISTER, vol. 72, pp. 236–240, with additions and corrections given at the end of the present article.)

Through the courtesy of Dr. Harold Bowditch abstracts of the records that have been found by Major Butler and that support the statements given above are herewith presented.

Mathewe Bragge et al. to Robert Bowdedge, 20 April 1605.

This Indenture, made 20 April, 3 James [I] [1605], between Mathewe Bragge, Rycharde Bragge, Alexander Walker, Abraham Downe, and John Edgar, gentlemen, of the one party, and Robert Bowdedge of Thornecombe, co. Devon, yeoman, of the other party, witnesseth that, whereas our late Sovereign Lady of famous memory, Queen Elizabeth, by Her Highness's Letters Patent under the Great Seal of England, dated at Westminster 2 July, in the four and fortieth year of Her Majesty's reign [1602], for the consideration therein expressed, hath given and granted to the said Mathewe Bragge, Rycharde Bragge, Alexander Walker, Abraham Downe, and John Edgar all Her Highness's manor of Thornecombe, co. Devon, together with all messuages [etc.] to the same manor belonging, to have and to hold to the said Mathewe Bragge [et. al.], as by the said Letters Patent more at large doth appear, now the said Mathewe Bragge [et al.], in consideration of a certain sum of lawful money of England to them in hand paid before the ensealing and delivery hereof by the said Roberte Bowredge, as also for divers other good causes and considerations, have demised, leased, granted, and to farm let unto the said Roberte Bowredge all the western part of the house or tenement wherein he now dwelleth, with a barn and an orchard called the over Orchard in the western side, containing by estimation one rod of ground, and also one wood, lying against Sinderforde way on the north part thereof, called Bowredge wood, lying to the lands of Nychollas

*Thomas Bowditch [of Chardstock, co. Dorset] and William Bowdich were brothers.

Bowdedche, the east part containing twenty acres, and also one close of arable ground called Roadeclose, containing by estimation nine acres, and also one other close of arable ground called lyttle Heathe, containing by estimation eleven acres, lying to the lands in the holding of John Pinnye on the south and to the lands of Sir Ames Pawlette, Knight, and Alexander Hichcocke on the west parts, and also six seams and a half of underwood, to be yearly taken by the said Roberte Bowredge, during the term hereunder written, within the wood or woody grounds called Chettmore and Gribbemore or either of them, all which said premises are situate within the parish of Thornecombe, co. Devon, and now or late were in the tenure or occupation of the said Roberte Bowredge, and also all woods, underwoods, and trees growing and being and which hereafter shall grow and be upon the demised premises, and all other appurtenances to the said premises belonging, and also the reversion and reversions of all the same premises and of every parcel thereof, to have and to hold the said western part of the said house and all the premises before demised unto the said Roberte Bowredge from the Feast of Saint Michael the Archangel, 19 Elizabeth [29 September 1577], unto the end of the term of two thousand years from thence next ensuing, yielding and paying therefor yearly during the said term unto the said Richard Bragge, his heirs and assigns, 16d. of lawful money of England at the Feast of Saint Michael the Archangel only, and doing suit to the court and courts of the manor of Thornecombe aforesaid twice in every year, upon reasonable warning. And the said Mathewe Bragge [et al.], each of them severally and respectively only for himself and for his own wife and for his own heirs, covenanteth to and with the said Roberte Bowredge at all time during the three years now next ensuing, upon reasonable request, to make, do, acknowledge, [and] execute all and every such further act in the law, at the costs and charges of the said Roberte Bowredge, so that the same assurances do not bind them to any further warranty, and so that none of them be compelled to travel from the places where they shall be dwelling above twenty and four miles. And also the said Mathew Bragge [et al.] covenanteth to and with the said Roberte Bowredge that he, the said Roberte Bowredge, from henceforth shall peaceably and quietly have the western part of the said house, with the said lands before by these presents demised, or otherwise [be] sufficiently saved and kept harmless by each of them, the said Mathewe Bragge [et al.], of and for their own acts, bargains, sales, and demands whatsoever. And he, the said Rychard Bragge, doth covenant with the said Roberte Bowredge that he, the said Rycharde Bragge, will at all times acquit the said Roberte Bowredge from the payment of the yearly rent or tenth of £9. 5s. 4½d. reserved by the said Letters Patent to the Queen's Majesty aforesaid out of the demised premises and other lands (the rents and services other than the £9. 5s. 4½d. from henceforth to become due and payable to the chief lord or lords of the premises always excepted).

In witness whereof the parties aforesaid to these present indentures interchangeably have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written. Mathewe Bragge. Roberte Bowdege [seal].

William Hallett to Richard Bragge, 28 February 1612/13.

To all Christian people to whom this present writing shall come William Hallett of Thornecombe, co. Devon, yeoman, sendeth greeting. Whereas John Bowredge of Thornecombe aforesaid, weaver, did by his deed indented, dated 7 August, 6 James [I] [1608], for the considerations therein expressed, demise unto the said William Hallett all that messuage or cottage wherein he, the said William Hallett, and one William Sprake then dwelled, together with the two gardens and one orchard thereunto adjoining, the barns newly erected in the said orchard, one little parcel of ground (sometimes on earth pit) lying between the said two gardens, and two other little parcels of ground lying in the east part of the said messuage, to have and to hold all the said messuage unto the said William Hallett, his executors, administrators, and assigns, from the day of the date thereof unto the end and term of one thousand and two hundred years from thenceforth next ensuing, yielding and paying therefor yearly during the said term unto the said John Bowredge, his executors, or assigns, 4d. of lawful money of England at the Feast of Saint Michael the Archangel [29 September], upon lawful demand of the same, as in and by the said deed indented more at large it doth appear, now know ye that the said William Hallett, in consideration of the sum of threescore pounds to him in hand paid before the ensealing and delivery hereof by Richard Bragge of Sadburrough, within the parish of Thornecombe aforesaid, gentleman, hath granted and doth grant unto the said Richard Bragge all that messuage or cottage, together with all his estate, right, title, and interest therein, all which premises are situate within the parish of Thornecombe and are now in the tenure of the said William Hallett, to have and to hold all the said messuage unto the said Richard Bragge from the Feast Day of the Annunciation of our Lady, Saint Mary the Virgin, next ensuing the date hereof [25 March 1613] during all the residue of the said term of one thousand and two hundred years, yielding and paying therefor yearly during the said term unto the said John Bowredge 4d. at the Feast of Saint Michael the Archangel. And the said William Hallett, for himself, his executors, and administrators, doth covenant to and with the said Richard Bragge that he, the said William Hallett, at the time of the ensealing and delivery hereof, hath full power and lawful authority in himself and in his own right to bargain and sell all the said premises unto the said Richard Bragge in manner and form aforesaid, and that he, the said Richard Bragge, lawfully may, under the rent aforesaid, quietly and peaceably have, hold, and enjoy the same premises without any lawful let, trouble, or expulsion of or by him, the said William Hallett. And, farther, the said William Hallett doth covenant with the said Richard Bragge that he, the said William Hallett, at all times hereafter during the two years next ensuing the date hereof, will upon every reasonable request do, make knowledge, and suffer all and every such farther and other act and acts, thing and things, devise and devises in the law, be it by fine or otherwise, as shall reasonably be required by the said Richard Bragge for the better assurance of all the premises mentioned, according to the true intent and meaning of these presents, so as for the doing thereof the said William Hallett be not compelled to travel above six miles out of the place where [he] shall be dwelling.

In witness whereof the said William Hallett hath hereunto set his hand and seal, 28 February, 10 James [I], A.D. 1612 [1612/13]. The sign of William Hallett. [Tag for seal.]

Richard Bragge the Elder to Henry Rosewell et al., 16 February 1613 [1613/14].

This Indenture, made 16 February, 11 James [I] [1613/14], between Richard Bragge the Elder of Sadburrough within the parish of Thornecombe, co. Devon, gentleman, of the one party, and Henry Rosewell of Forde, co. Devon, Esq., Richard Bragge the Younger, gentleman, son and heir apparent of the aforesaid Richard Bragge the Elder, Edward Bragge of Thornecombe aforesaid, gentleman, Isaac Downe of the same, gentleman, Thomas Rocket, William Cogan, John Smith, Gyles Bragge, John Bowdich, Nicholas Rockett, and Nicholas Baker of Thornecombe aforesaid, yeomen, of the other party, [witnesseth that,] whereas the said Henry Rosewell and divers other of the persons before-named, together with others of the inhabitants of the said parish of Thornecombe, have at their own proper costs and charges, with the consent and good liking of the said Richard Bragge the Elder, erected a new house upon one plot of ground, being the inheritance of the said Richard Bragge the Elder, abutting against certain grounds now in the tenure of the aforesaid Gyles Bragge, called Okamslade, on the south part, and against the King's highway leading from Thornecombe to Hewood on the north and west parts, and certain ground now in the tenure of Alice Lane, widow, on the east part, which said plot lately was in the tenure of the said Alice Lane, and which said new house is meant to be used for a schoolhouse for the benefit of the inhabitants of Thornecombe, now the said Richard Bragge the Elder, as well for the considerations aforesaid as also for the better settling and continuance of the said new house to and for the only use of a schoolhouse, hath demised unto the said Henry Rosewell [et al.] all the said new house and also all the said plot. And also the said Richard Bragge the Elder doth grant unto the said Henry Rosewell [et al.] full license to enlarge the said house without any suit to be brought by the said Richard Bragge the Elder, and to have and to hold the said new house and also the said plot unto them, the said Henry Rosewell [et al.], from the day of the date hereof unto the end and term of two thousand years from thenceforth next ensuing, to this only intent and purpose, that they shall at all times hereafter peaceably permit the said new house and all other houses hereafter to be erected upon the said plot [words missing] for a schoolhouse and [words missing] uses for the schoolmaster and scholars there only for the good and benefit of the inhabitants of Thornecombe and all others who shall send or [words missing] be taught or brought up [words missing]. And it is agreed between the said parties that the said house shall from time to time be repaired and maintai[ned] [words missing] [Hen]ry Rosewell [et al.], provided [words missing] that all schoolmasters which from time to time during the said term shall teach in the said house shall be elected by the said Henry Rosewell, Richard Bragge the Younger, Edward Bragge, Isaac Downe, Thomas Rockett, William Cogan, John Smith, Gyles Bragg, Nicholas Baker,* and the minister of Thornecombe for the time being, their heirs and assigns, or by the greater number of them, whereof the said Henry Rosewell, Richard Bragge the Younger, the minister of Thornecombe for the time being, Edward Bragg, Thomas Rockett, and Gyles Bragge, their heirs or assigns, or four of them at least, shall be of the number.

In witness whereof the parties abovesaid to these indentures interchangeably have set their hands and seals the day and year first above written, A.D. 1613 [1613/14]. [Signed] Edward Bragge. [Tags for four seals.]

1698. John Bowdich, gentleman, mortgages Haines' Leases in Thorncombe, co. Devon, to Mr. William Bragge for £300.

From the records thus far discovered relating to the early generations of the Bowditch family of Thorncombe, co. Devon, Major Butler has constructed a tabular pedigree, the statements in which, in so far as they extend or correct the pedigree published in the Register in 1918 (vol. 72, pp. 236–240), are here given in the usual genealogical form.

1. Robert Boudyche of Thorncombe, a parish which was formerly included in co. Devon but is now in co. Dorset, England, was assessed 2s. 6d. on goods valued at £5 in the subsidy of 20 Jan. 1524/5, but does not appear in later subsidies. The name of his wife is unknown.

He was probably the father of

2. Robert Boudyche (Bodyche, Bowdyche) (? Robert), of Holditch Court, Thorncombe, co. Devon, who was assessed 2s. on goods valued at £4 in the subsidy of 20 Jan. 1524/5, 15s.

on goods valued at £30 in the subsidy of 1540–41, 13s. 4d. on goods in the subsidy of 1543–44, 18s., as a benevolence, in 1546, and 16s. on property valued at £16 in the subsidy of 24 Nov. 1548. He died before 20 Mar. 1551/2. The name of his wife is unknown.

Children:

i. ROBERT, of Thorncombe, bur. at Thorncombe 31 Mar. 1563. He was assessed 14d. on property valued at £7 in the subsidy of 1542–43, and 10s. on property valued at £10 in the subsidy of 24 Nov. 1548; and he was perhaps the man who, as Richard [sic] Bowdiche, was assessed at Thorncombe 10s. on property valued at £10 in the subsidy of 26 Feb. 1550/1. He was also assessed 10s. in the subsidy of 20 Mar. 1551/2.

3. ii. JOHN.

3. JOHN BOWDYCHE (BOWDEDGE, BOWREDGE, BODYCHE) (Robert, ? Robert), of Holditch Court, Thorncombe, co. Devon, the testator of 10 May 1563 (see will in REGISTER, vol. 72, p. 225), who is given as No. 1 in the pedigree published in 1918, was buried at Thorncombe 17 May 1563. He married MARGERY ———, who survived him and, as his widow and executrix, proved his will 11 Oct. 1568.* He was assessed 10s. in the subsidy of 20 Mar. 1551/2.

Children:

i. JOHN, of Thorncombe, Gentleman (see deed of 20 Apr. 1567), mentioned in his father's will in 1563, bought from John Freke and Matthew Bragge, on 20 Apr. 1567, the eastern half of the house and certain lands in Thorncombe. He was assessed 16d. on lands valued at 20s. in the subsidy of 4 Oct. 1592.

ii. NICHOLAS, of Thorncombe, co. Devon, and of Chaffcombe, co. Somerset, bur. at Thorncombe 14 May [? 16 Apr.] 1611; m. MARGERY ———, who survived him and was granted administration on his goods 25 Aug. 1611 (P.C.C.). He was mentioned in his father's will in 1563, was plaintiff in Chancery proceedings as to copyholds in the manor of Thorncombe, 10 Oct. 1579, and was assessed at Thorncombe 6s. on goods valued at £6 in the subsidy of 4 Aug. 1582, and 8s. on goods valued at £8 in the subsidy of 4 Oct. 1592. He probably had children, for whom see REGISTER, vol. 72, p. 236.

iii. ROBERT, of Thorncombe, yeoman, bur. at Thorncombe 10 July 1609; m. at Winsham, co. Somerset, 12 Jan. 1567/8, MARGARET SPARKE (see REGISTER, vol. 78, p. 144), who was bur. at Thorncombe 18 Apr. 1585. He was mentioned in his father's will in 1563, and on 20 Apr. 1605 bought from Matthew Bragge et al. the western part of the house and certain lands in Thorncombe. He appears as No. 2 in the pedigree published in 1918, and had issue (see REGISTER, vol. 72, p. 237).

iv. AGNES, m. at Winsham, co. Somerset, 3 Feb. 1567/8, WILLIAM HALL. She was mentioned in her father's will in 1563, and was probably then already contracted in marriage.

v. GEORGE, of Thorncombe, bapt. there 7 Sept. 1552; bur. there 8 June 1591; m. ———, who survived him and was living 20 Apr. 1637, the date of the will of her son Michael. He was mentioned in his father's will in 1563. He is given as No. 3 in the pedigree published in 1918, and was the ancestor of the Bowditch family of

*According to the parish registers of Winsham, co. Somerset (REGISTER, vol. 78, p. 144), Margery, widow of John Bowditch and daughter of William Bowditch of Chardstock, was buried at Winsham 30 Nov. 1573; but the record of this burial in the Winsham registers appears to have been changed, probably in comparatively modern times, and therefore cannot be relied upon.

Salem, Mass., as is set forth in the REGISTER, vol. 72, pp. 237–240, supplemented by additions and corrections in the REGISTER, vol. 78, pp. 144–146.

vi. ALICE, bur. at Axminster, co. Devon, 3 May 1561.*

vii. GRACE, m. at Thorncombe, 14 Oct. 1575, GEORGE LUMBARD. She was mentioned in her father's will in 1563.*

Gorton. Thomas Gorton in goods, [valuation] £4, [tax] 8d.

From Duchy of Lancaster Inquisitions Post Mortem†

Inquisition taken at Bolton, co. Lancaster, 22 April, 18 James I [1620], before the King's escheator there. The jurors [named] say that William Gorton, late of Gorton, deceased, was seised the day he died of a messuage, a garden, an orchard, and 9 acres of land, meadow, and pasture in Gorton, held in capite, by knight's tenure, of the King, as of his Duchy of Lancaster, and worth 10s. per annum.

Said William died at Gorton 24 December, 16 James I [1618], and Francis Gorton is his son and next heir, and aged 17 years, 6 months, 5 days. (Vol. 22, no. 11.)

Inquisition taken at Wigan [co. Lancaster] 9 September, 1 Charles I [1625]. The jurors [named] say that Robert Gorton was seised of a messuage, a garden, an orchard, 10 acres of land, 4 acres of meadow, and 6 acres of pasture in Aspull, bought of Thomas Lathume, late of Wolfall.

Said Robert died 10 December last past [1624], and James Gorton is his son and next heir, and is now aged 40 years and more. (Vol. 26, no. 48.)

Inquisition taken at Leigh, co. Lancaster, 17 April, 4 Charles I [1628]. The jurors [named] say that James Gorton, yeoman, was seised of a messuage, a garden, an orchard, 10 acres of land, 4 acres of meadow, and 6 acres of pasture in Aspull, late bought of Thomas Lathorne of Woofall.

Said James died 10 November, 2 Charles I [1626], and Robert Gorton is his son and next heir, and is aged 15 years. (Vol. 26, no. 11.)

FROM CHANCERY PROCEEDINGS*

Michaelmas Term, 6 Edward VI [1552]. Complaint by Robert Gorton of West Haghton, co. Lancaster, that James Browne of West Haghton, gent., James Lathemyt, and others, to the number of twenty, assembled on 3 May, 6 Edward VI at West Haghton, and with force entered complainant's house there, plucked two of his children out of their beds, tossing up the bedding and bedstraw, and telling complainant's wife that they intended to kill him. He desires that they may be called to answer for the same. (Chancery Proceedings, Duchy of Lancaster, vol. 29, no. G. 9.)

35 Elizabeth [1592–93]. [No Bill of Complaint.] Answer of Roger Fidler, in regard to property left by John Bold, states that John Bold married Grace Gorton, widow, and that after Bold's death said Fidler married her. (Chancery Proceedings, Duchy of Lancaster, vol. 160, no. B. 13.)

19 Aprîl 1594. Complaint by Henry Bolde of Northmeiles, co. Lancaster, gent., that a house in Preston, late the property of John Bold, deceased, has come into the hands of Richard Gorton of Preston, who wrongfully detains it. Richard Gorton says that by deed dated 12 October, 27 Elizabeth [1585], John Bold conveyed the same to Henry Gorton, Grace, his then wife, late mother of said Richard, and to their son, the said Richard, for one hundred years. Henry Gorton died, and Grace entered into the same, and on her death he, the said Richard, still a minor, entered into the same, as by right he was entitled to do. (Chancery Proceedings, Duchy of Lancaster, vol. 162, no. B. 18.)

Bill of Complaint (filed 18 August 1615) of Richard Clough of Gorton, co. Lancaster, yeoman, and Thomas Picroste [later written Picrofte] of the same, yeoman, states that, whereas, about five years since, complainants, together with William Whittaker, Nicolas Gorton, William Gorton, Miles Birtinshaw, John Leigh, Ambrose Birch, James Somest^{r}, and Raph Clough, all of the said town, yeomen, and others, purchased to themselves and their heirs severally, from Sir John Biron, Knight, divers lands in Gorton, and not long afterwards Rowland Moseley of Manchester, Esq., being lord of the said town of Manchester, laid claim to a rent of £30. 11s. issuing out of the said lands, and exhibited an information in the Court of Wards at Westminster against complainants and William Howarth, another purchaser, thereupon, about April, 11 James I [1613], complainants agreed with Whittaker and the rest that Whittaker and the rest should contribute towards the costs of the suit. But now Whittaker and the rest refuse to pay towards the cost of a suit brought at Westminster by Biron. (Chancery Bills in Palatinate of Lancaster, unnumbered, 6/3.)

[No answer between August 1615 and August 1616. Depositions, 10/11, contain only Moseley v. Picroft. No Gorton occurs.]

Gorton v. Foster and Lambe.

Bill of Complaint (filed 10 February 1634 [1634/5]) of Samuel Gorton of London, clothier.

Whereas complainant about January 1633 [1633/4] sold to William Lambe of London 15 score pair of "mixt" stockings at 4s. 3d. per pair, the total amounting to £63. 15s., which Lambe was to pay in ready money, and about 22 February following complainant (upon Lambe's affirming that he was possessed of certain Scotch yarn) bought from Lambe 958 small weight of Scotch yarn, viz., 618 pound weight at 17d. the lb. and 340 pound weight at 16½ d. per lb., the sum total being £67. 3s. 4d. Lambe gave complainant a bill of parcels, writ by himself, of the said yarn, making it bought of him only. The yarn was weighed at His Majesty's beam at Cornhill and entered as bought of Lambe, and of truth it was Lambe's when he sold it to complainant. Being so mutually indebted, complainant often required Lambe either to pay the £63. 15s. or to deduct it out of the £67. 3s. 4d. and complainant would pay the remainder, viz., £3. 8s. 4d. Lambe refused to take the £3. 8s. 4d. when it was tendered, or to pay the £63. 15s. Complainant, in order, therefore, to recover the £63. 15s., about May last entered a plaint into His Majesty's Court before the Mayor and Aldermen of London, in a plea of debt of £70, and (according to the custom of the City) attached the £63. 15s. in his own hands as the money of Lambe, and tendered the residue (£3. 8s. 4d.). But now (after judgment and execution upon the said attachment) Lambe, in confederacy with one Thomas Foster, a draper, has agreed to cause complainant to pay the £67. 3s. 4d., and Foster has commenced suit against complainant for 618 lb. of Scottish yarn at 17d. per lb. and 340 lb. at 16½d. (total £67. 3s. 4d.), and intends to prosecute the suit and thereby defeat the judgment in the Mayor's Court. Foster intends to produce Lambe as a witness that, when complainant bought the yarn, it was Foster's, not Lambe's, whereas in truth it was then Lambe's. Foster has often acknowledged that Lambe gave him an accompt of the yarn, which he had of the said Foster, at another rate than that which complainant agreed for for the yarn he bought of Lambe. Lambe also often required the money from complainant, saying to complainant "pay mee my money," and said withall that he would spend £100 but he would have his money, and offered complainant to refer it to arbitrement. Complainant did not know that anyone else claimed the yarn until Lambe entered an action at the suit of Foster and sent a note that complainant should either put in bail or serjeants should attend him, which was at least nine months after complainant bought the yarn from Lambe. Lambe has often acknowledged that he does not know whether he bought the yarn which he sold to complainant from Foster or from some other man. Complainant hopes to prove that Lambe had it of some other. Lambe has often confessed that Foster often called upon him for money for the yarn and never named complainant as the debtor; but Foster acknowledges that he often threatened to take some course against Lambe to recover the money; and to avoid this Lambe has now combined with him to sue complainant. Complainant prays for a writ of subpœna against Lambe and Foster.

Joint Answer of Foster and Lambe, sworn 17 February 1634 [1634/5].

Lambe for five years has been a factor in London for buying, selling, and bartering several commodities for citizens or countrymen who employ him and satisfy him for his pains. He was heretofore employed by William Mercer to buy a parcel of stockings, and, having notice of complainant's parcel, repaired to him about the time stated in the bill and bargained for the stockings for Mercer at the rate stated in the bill; but six months was limited for the time of payment for the stockings. Afterwards, long before the money was due and before Lambe had taken any of the stockings, viz., fourteen days after the bargain, Lambe, having acquainted Mercer of the agreement, who disliked thereof, repaired to complainant and desired him to release him of the bargain, because it had been made for a friend who disliked the price. Thereupon complainant (in consideration of a promise then made by Lambe to spend 5s. in a breakfast upon complainant, which Lambe is and ever since has been ready to perform) discharged Lambe of the bargain for the stockings and told him he would dispose of them otherwise. Thereupon Lambe left the stockings with complainant and never intermeddled further with them. Complainant bought the yarn of Lambe, at the time and rates stated in the bill, and all of it was owned by Foster, who employed Lambe as his factor in this and agreed to allow him 40s. in every 100 pound's worth of yarn sold. Lambe informed Foster of the sale, but admits that he used his own name in the bill and in weighing of the yarn; and this is usual among factors in London, but in their particular books they keep an account of the parcels sold for different persons. At the time of the sale of the yarn complainant further discharged Lambe of the bargain touching the stockings. After complainant had got possession of the yarn, he did most "uncontionablie" and dishonestly demand abatement of the pretended sum of £63. 15s. for the stockings; so Lambe refused to take the £3. 8s. 4d. which complainant proffered. Neither before nor after the said judgment in the Mayor's Court has Lambe acknowledged that £3. 8s. 4d. only were due for the yarn. Lambe denies that he acted otherwise than as Foster's lawful factor. Foster denies that he has threatened to sue Lambe. (Chancery Proceedings, Charles I, C. 2, G. 27/34.)

5 February 1635 [1635/6]. Complaint by Samuel Gorton of Stratfourd Langton, co. Essex, merchant, that divers bargains had been made between him and William Lambe of London, merchant, in regard to wools and merchandise, and complainant had faithfully performed his contracts. In January 1633 [1633/4] he sold Lambe 15 score pairs of stockings, at 4s. 3d. a pair, totalling £63. 15s. 0d., which he promised to pay for at certain dates, but has not done so. Complainant is now afraid that Lambe may withdraw himself to Scotland, where he was born. He attached him in April 1634 in the Lord Mayor's Court at London for the money due. But in September 1634 Lambe conspired with Thomas Forster, of London, draper, and commenced a suit against complainant in the Lord Mayor's Court for money due for yarn, and he was forced to pay it to Forster, but Lambe still refuses to pay for the stockings. Complainant begs that Lambe may be caused to appear to answer the premises. [No answer.]

Demurrer of complainant (who appeared in person), confirming his bill. (Chancery Proceedings, Charles I, C. 2, G. 4/57.)

Gorton v. Walker.

27 January 1647 [1647/8]. Bill of Samuell Gorton of New England. "Whereas your orator on or about the yeere" 1634 "had familier acquaintance with one John Duckingfeild of London Gent. and [said Duckingfeild] being a Batchellor had noe residinge place but recourse to such freinds and acquaintance as at the present gaue him hopes to be enterteyned most freely with the least charge and to draw on such familiarity and to be provided for with necessarys did use to pretend true love to the parties and would at the tyme of his death be a great advantage to such freinds or their children with whom hee sojourned . . . and would continually deposite great somes of money and divers . . . bonds . . . and writings touching his estate into the custody of such freinds . . . and being beyond measure troublesome and the burthen where he lay soe great noe freind in expectacion of his favour did admitt any long tryall of him and soe from others he came vnto your Orators then dwelling howse scituate in the parish of S^{t} Bottolphe Algate and your Orator being before acquainted with his person but knew not his Condicion vpon leaving others of his acquaintance he desired entertainem^{t} of your Orator," pretending great love for complainant and promising him what reward should be just. Continuing some time in complainant's house, he brought in several moneys and carried from complainant (with whom he had deposited writings, such as bonds, bills and accounts) other moneys, upon pretence of bartering and letting out moneys to use and receiving money from use, in all of which complainant perceived nothing but that he was a very fair dealing man. Complainant, having occasion to use money, desired Duckingfeild to lend him £100 upon bond. He consented, lent the £100, and complainant gave him a bond for payment of the same in twelve months without interest. Duckingfield, being possessed of the bond, and having obliged complainant to bear with all offences and to supply him free of charge with meat, drink, and lodging, [did] break forth openly to abuse diverse other persons, men of quality, with whom he had resided and had been freely entertained. Before the time of payment was due, Duckingfield found some new entertainment, left complainant's house, and took from him all his bonds, bills, and writings, carrying them into Cambridgeshire, and reserved his friends in London for his entertainment when he came about his business. Complainant being indebted to him, he used to take up his holding in complainant's house, and complainant, "being desired by some mutuall freinds to leave this Countrie and to live in New England acquainted the said Duckingfeild with his intention and did crave his advise therein." So soon as Duckingfeild heard this, he called in the £100, and would not continue the loan upon any conditions. Having some experience of his abusing carriage, complainant was unwilling to leave him any occasion to revile your orator in others' hearing, as he had done others. Complainant therefore paid him the money; but Duckingfield, having embursed it, pretended that the bond was with a friend in Cambridgeshire, and promised to return it cancelled, and meantime to give a release of all actions upon it. Complainant, having the release, expected the return of the bond; but Duckingfield, going down into Cambridgeshire at "some festival or Comencement," being entertained by friends, by some excess therein had a surfeit and died soon after. Complainant knew not of whom to demand the bond, and was advised by counsel that his release would be a good bar to it when produced. "And your Orators mind altering he stayed in old England a long tyme after the money was paid and after the death of the said Duckingfeild," and heard no demand made. "But in the tyme that your Orator stayed in old England there was some difference in opinion betweene your Orator and George Walter [sic] minister of Wattling streete parish Church London who preposed a Charitable contribucion to be made on or about the yeere" 1638 or 1639, "which collection was pretended to be conveyed to poore ministers in Lancasheire and the fraud being discouered by your Orator hee with drew his hand and by his example diverse others who had in that charitable pretence bin very free." This action bred great discontent in the said Walker, who, as complainant has since understood, was Duckingfield's coexecutor, with others, to dispose of his estate for charitable uses and the educating of one or more scholars at the University. Finding this bond among Duckingfield's writings and having knowledge (as complainant believes) that the money was paid, Walker did not publish the bond, and, having true knowledge that complainant was going beyond the seas to New England and being upon the said voyage, sent privately, in the same ship wherein complainant and his family passed over, to some of his brethren in New England that, so soon as complainant was seated there, they should prosecute the bond in New England, where it was hoped that complainant would get no bail, or, if he did, that the release should be left here or lost. Walker's plot was thus effectually put into action. So soon as complainant was well placed and in repute for his civil course of life and for his doctrine he there taught, Walker's agents attached his goods for £60, which was due to Walker in old England, alleging there that to avoid payment complainant came to that place; but, having obtained some good justice in that country, the defence was preferred as more honest than the accusation, and, when complainant had put in bail to answer the suit, Walker's agents declared upon the bond of £100 due to Duckingfield. Complainant pleaded the release there in New England, and was forced, at the hearing of the cause in the winter time, not only to great expense but also to the hazard of his life to travel through the wilderness sixty miles to the court of justice, where he produced his release before Sir H. Vane as Governor. The release was allowed, and the action dismissed, and complainant thought that Walker, "having his publique notice," was satisfied. Complainant, employed about some affairs for the state of New England, about 1645 coming into old England, into the Cities of London and Westminster, where Walker lived, he, having knowledge of where complainant lived for two years together, complainant being continually employed about the town, did not demand the money; but, having intelligence that complainant and his company had finished the business they had come about and were ready to depart to New England again, and that the ship and all things were ready for their passage and stayed only for opportunity of weather, Walker (endeavoring the ruin of complainant and his family) entered an action against complainant in the Counter of Woodstreet, London, for £200, by which he hopes (complainant being a stranger in the land for his habitation) that complainant should endure imprisonment or be compelled to pay. Walker caused complainant's arrest; but, contrary to expectation, some friends bailed complainant, and Walker (finding complainant had left the release behind him) prosecuted the suit with violence, endeavoring to have judgment before complainant could obtain relief. Complainant was obliged to remove the action into the King's Bench, and, not knowing the course of the court, his attorney did not inform him of any rules to make answer in the term time, nor did his attorney call for any answer, as the attorney alleges. Thereby complainant neglected to move the Court for an imparlance till complainant could send for the release, and upon this omission the attorney for the plaintiff in this vacation presseth for an answer, and complainant was forced to plead and hath given order to plead conditions performed, and Walker upon the plea purposeth to go to trial, although complainant has procured him a testimonial under Vane's hand of the trial in New England. Walker pretends not to be satisfied, and will not treat with complainant or his friends. Thereby complainant is not only kept from the company of his wife and children, who are in danger not only to lose their estates but to have their lives taken from them, and from divers others who expect his coming daily to give an account of the trust reposed in him, or else complainant must pay the whole £100 with interest and charges. Complainant prays for a writ of subpœna against Walker. [No answer here.] (Chancery Proceedings, Charles I, C. 2, G. 20/44.)

The Gorton family was a very ancient family in Lancashire. Thomas de Gorton was assessed 2s. in the parish of Atherton in the subsidy of 1332; and in 1421 another Thomas de Gorton held the manor of Aspull, near Gorton. The arms borne by the Gortons have been described in the introduction to this article (supra, p. 186). On some of the foregoing and on other English records and on sundry New England records the following outline of the English ancestry and immediate family connections of Samuel Gorton of Rhode Island is based.

1. Thomas Gorton, of Gorton, in the parish of Manchester, co. Lancaster, a descendant of the early Gortons of Gorton and of Aspull, was assessed 12d. on goods valued at 40s. in the subsidy of 1524. The name of his wife is unknown.

He was probably the father of

2. i. Thomas.
3. ii. Richard.

2. Thomas Gorton (probably a son of No. 1), of Gorton, in the parish of Manchester, co. Lancaster, was assessed 8d. on goods valued at £4 in the subsidy of 1543. The name of his wife is unknown.

He was probably the father of

i. NICHOLAS, of Gorton, living 10 July 1581, when, a tenant farmer, he surrendered his lease to the Byrons of Clayton; m. 22 Sept. 1574* ANNE GREENE, who was bur. 24 June 1608.
Child:
1. Elizabeth, bapt. 6 Dec. 1574.

4. ii. THOMAS.

iii. RICHARD. By Anne Bridge he had an illegitimate son, Thomas, bapt. 16 Sept. 1593.

iv. JAMES, m. ———.
Child:
1. James, bapt. 9 Feb. 1576/7; m. 16 Sept. 1612 Margaret Chorlton.

v. ALICE. She had an illegitimate daughter, Elizabeth, bapt. 24 Jan. 1573/4.

3. RICHARD GORTON (probably a son of No. 1), of Gorton, in the parish of Manchester, co. Lancaster, a tenant farmer, surrendered his lease to the Byrons of Clayton 10 July 1581, and was buried 23 Jan. 1588/9. He married CICELY ———, who was buried 23 Sept. 1587.

Children (the first two probably and the others certainly children of this Richard):

i. GEORGE, m. ———.
Child:
1. Ellen, bapt. 20 July 1574; m. 19 Nov. 1593 Thomas Hawle.

ii. THOMAS, d. before 11 Apr. 1586; m. ELIZABETH ———, who, as his widow, was bur. 11 Apr. 1586.
Children:

v. A SON, d. in infancy; bur. 10 Apr. 1586.

vi. WILLIAM, bapt. 30 Apr. 1587; d. young.

vii. THOMAS, bapt. 17 Nov. 1588; probably d. in New England between 16 July and 21 Nov. 1649; m. at Manchester, Eng., 14 Sept. 1612, AGNES GRIMSHAW, who may or may not have been the wife whom he had in Rhode Island about 1646 (see below).

As previously stated (supra, pp. 185–186), he seems to have accompanied his younger brother Samuel to New England, as he appears with him at Plymouth in New England in 1637 and later at Portsmouth, R. I. Among the volunteers for the Pequot War from Plymouth were "Mr. Goarton" (i.e., Samuel Gorton) and "Thomas Goarton" (Orr's Pequot War, p. xiv); in the Rhode Island Colonial Records (Chapin's Documentary History, vol. 2) it appears that Thomas Gorton was on a petit jury at the Quarter Sessions, 1 Dec. 1641 (p. 132), that he attended the General Court 16 Mar. 1641/2, being freeman and sergeant (pp. 119, 168), that at the General Court, 13, 1 mo. 1644, he was chosen ensign for Portsmouth (p. 128), and that in the suit of Richard Morris of Portsmouth against Thomas Gorton of the same place (an undated case, 1641–1648, but after 6 Oct. 1646) the plaintiff was awarded £20 as damages "for extravagancie of his [Gorton's] wive's tongue in abusing said Richard," but, the woman having acknowledged her fault, the fine was remitted (p. 161); and the printed town records of Portsmouth, R. I., show that Thomas Gorton was chosen ferryman 7 Sept. 1640, that he had land by the ferry 1 Nov. 1642, that he was present at a town meeting 29 Aug. 1644, that the town was to agree with him about the ferry (entry of 1 June 1647), that to Thomas Brooks and to Thomas Gorton 30 acres apiece were to be laid out at Wading River (entry of 25 June 1648), that on 16 July 1649 Thomas Gorton was chosen town sergeant and water "baily," and that on 21 Nov. 1649 John Albro was chosen sergeant in place of Thomas Gorton. As the entry of 21 Nov. 1649 contains the last reference to Thomas Gorton in the Portsmouth records, it is reasonable to suppose that he died shortly before this date.

Child:

1. Samuel (probably child of Thomas and Agnes), bur. at Manchester, Eng., 2 Nov. 1616.

viii. FRANCIS, bapt. 18 Dec. 1591; bur. 16 Apr. 1592.

ix. SAMUEL, of London and of New England, clothier, bapt. at Manchester, Eng., 12 Feb. 1592/3; living 11 Aug. 1674; m. before 11 Jan. 1629/30 MARY MAPLETT, bapt. in the parish of St. Lawrence Jewry, London, 12 Mar. 1608/9, a legatee in the will of her brother, John Maplett of Bath, co. Somerset, Eng., "Doctor of Physick," dated 13 Apr. 1670, daughter of John Maplett of London, haberdasher, and his second wife, Mary (———).*

Samuel Gorton, well-known in the annals of early New England, was of Plymouth in 1637, and migrated thence to Rhode Island, where he was of Portsmouth in 1639 and of Warwick in 1642. He was aged 82 in 1674.

Children:

1. Samuel, b. about 1630; m. 11 Dec. 1684 Susanna Burton, and had issue.
2. John, d. 3 Feb. 1714/15; m. 28 June 1668 Margaret Wheaton, and had issue.
3. Benjamin, m. 5 Dec. 1672 Sarah Carder, and had issue.

MEMOIRS OF DECEASED MEMBERS OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

Alfred Stevens Hall, A.B., LL.B., of Winchester, Mass., a resident member since 1898, was born at Westminster West, Vt., 14 April 1850, the son of Edward and Frances Adeline (Tuttle) Hall, and died at Winchester 11 November 1926.

He was a descendant of John[1] Hall, who was at Charlestown, Mass., in 1630, was later of Barnstable and Yarmouth in the Plymouth Colony, and died 23 July 1696, through John,[2] Joseph[3] (1663–1736/7), Daniel[4] (1699–1768), Atherton,[5] who married Ruth Crowell, Atherton,[6] who married Olive Hallett, and Edward,[7] his father, who was born at Yarmouthport, Mass., 20 December 1795, and married Frances Adeline Tuttle, born at Grafton, Vt., 15 March 1811, daughter of Daniel and Lucretia (Hapgood) Tuttle and a descendant of ancestors who settled at New Haven in 1639.

He received his early education in the public schools and two select schools at Westminster West, and was prepared for college at Williston Seminary, Easthampton, Mass., where he was a pupil in 1865, and at Kimball Union Academy, Meriden, N. H., where he was graduated in 1869. He entered Dartmouth, and received from that college the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1873. He studied law at Manchester, N. H., and at Boston University, where in 1875 he took the degree of Bachelor of Laws.

He was admitted to the bar of Suffolk County in December 1875 and practised law in Boston from 1 January 1876 until his retirement a year before his death, except for the greater part of one year, which he spent at Minneapolis, Minn., after the death of his first wife in 1887. He was associated for some time with Francis A. Brooks, who was attorney for large railroad interests. He had much to do with corporation management and litigation, was a director, trustee, and president of many corporations, and held many personal trusts.

He had resided in Winchester since 1876, and had been active in town affairs. He represented, as a Republican, his district in the General Court of Massachusetts in 1904 and 1905, and served the town as town counsel and as a member of the School Committee. He was the first president of the Home for Aged People in Winchester. He was deeply interested in Kimball Union Academy, of which he was a trustee for twenty-eight years, and for many years he was president of his Dartmouth class. His religious affiliations were with the Congregational Church, of which he was a member, and he took part in its wider denominational interests, serving as a corporate member of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions. He was also a member of the American, Middlesex, and Boston Bar Associations and of the Vermont Association.

He married first, 18 October 1876, Annette Martha Hitchcock, daughter of Josiah Hubbard and Martha Ann (Chamberlain) Hitchcock of Putney, Vt., who died 26 September 1887, leaving two children, Francis Chamberlain, B.S. (Dartmouth, 1902), rancher, who was born at Winchester 23 September 1878 and died at Marr's Camp, Me., 1 October 1912, in his 35th year, and Helen Annette, who survives her father. He married secondly, 10 April 1895, Delia Rebecca Ranney, daughter of Henry Porteus and Frances Augusta (Hamblen) Ranney of Westminster West, Vt., who died 2 February 1916.

Mrs. Maude (Cheney) Seeley, of Pasadena, Calif., a resident member since 1923, was born at Essex, Conn., 2 August 1861, the daughter of George Arthur and Sarah Bucklin (Greene) Cheney, and died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Welles, in Altadena, Calif., 12 November 1926.

She was a descendant of John[1] Cheney, who was at Roxbury, Mass., in 1635 and was a freeman at Newbury, Mass., in 1637, through Peter,[2] 1639–1694/5, John,[3] 1666–1750, Edmund,[4] 1696–1761, Moses,[5] 1715–1759, Elias,[6] 1741/2–1832, Samuel,[7] 1778–1829, of Thornton, N. H., Alfred,[8] 1804–1869, who was born at Thornton, married Harriet Crawford, and died in Boston, and George Arthur,[9] her father, who was born at Salem, N. H., 25 August 1828, and married at Providence, R. I., 22 May 1853, Sarah Bucklin Greene, daughter of Rufus and Minerva (Sutton) Greene of Providence.

She was educated at Madame de Silva's boarding school in New York City and at a school in Geneva, where she studied French; and she was married in New York City, 23 January 1884, to William Graydon Seeley, B. A. (Yale, 1879), son of George Henry and Sarah (Stevens) Seeley and a descendant of Robert Seeley, who was at Watertown, Mass., in 1630, and was later of Connecticut. Her husband was a member of the firm of Arnold, Cheney & Company, importers and East India merchants, and had previously been an agent in Chicago for a number of years for Seeley Brothers of

New York City. In 1892 Mr. and Mrs. Seeley became residents of Brookline, Mass.; and he continued in active business life until 1902 and died at Brookline 16 November 1919.

Mrs. Seeley was affiliated with the Unitarian denomination, being a member of the First Parish Church of Brookline and later of the Union Liberal Church in Pasadena, Calif., and her activities were centered largely in the church. She spent the winters in the later years of her life at Pasadena.

Her two children, George Cheney Seeley, Ph.B. (Yale, 1914), of Essex, Conn., and Muriel Seeley (Mrs. Robert Welles of Altadena, Calif.), B.A. (Smith, 1910), survive her.

Waldo Lovejoy Abbott, of Boston, a resident member since 1912, was born at Rochester, N. Y., 17 December 1836, the son of Joseph Ingalls and Phebe (Lovejoy) Abbott, and died unmarried in Boston 19 November 1926, having almost completed his ninetieth year.

His grandfather, Joseph Abbott, who was at Groton, Mass., as early as 1806 and died there in 1834, married first Prudence ———, who died at Groton 27 October 1825, aged 47. Their son, Joseph Ingalls Abbott, was born at Groton 6 June 1810, and married there, 18 May 1835, Phebe Lovejoy of Andover, Mass., who was born 1 June 1812, the daughter of Ebenezer and Phebe (Russell) Lovejoy. Joseph Ingalls Abbott was a painter by occupation, and soon after the birth of his son Waldo moved to New York City and later to Andover.

Waldo Lovejoy Abbott was educated in public and private schools in New York City and in the schools of Andover, where he entered Phillips Academy in 1854 and was graduated there in 1856. He became cashier of the Pacific Mills in Lawrence, Mass., and, while living in that city, he served on the City Council and on the School Committee. He was also treasurer of the Union Coal & Oil Company of Maysville, Ky., and for nearly forty years before he died was an auditor and expert accountant.

John Bliss Brainerd, M.D., in his latest years of Middlebury, Vt., a resident member since 1902, was born at St. Albans, Vt., 23 June 1859, the son of Lawrence Robbins and Nancy Maria (Foote) Brainerd, and died at Middlebury 21 November 1926.

He was a descendant of Dea. Daniel[1] Brainerd of Hartford and later of Haddam, Conn., who died 1 April 1715, aged 74, through William,[2] Lieut. Josiah,[3] 1711–1792, of Haddam Neck, Maj. Ezra,[4] 1744–1837, of Middle Haddam, Col. Ezra,[5] 1769–1833, Ezra,[6] who was born at East Hartford, Conn., 15 October 1787, and died 18 August 1832, whose wife was Louisa Robbins, and Lawrence Robbins,[7] his father, who was born at Martinsburg, N. Y., 20 October 1819, and married, as his second wife, Nancy Maria Foote, born at Turin, Lewis Co., N. Y., 27 May 1824, daughter of Adoniram and Emily (Brainerd) Foote. Dr. Brainerd's great-uncle, Hon. Lawrence[6] Brainerd, 1794–1870, was United States Senator from Vermont (elected as a Free-soiler) and one of the founders of the Republican Party, and Dr. Brainerd's elder half brother, the late Rev. Ezra Brainerd, LL.D., D.D., Sc.D., was for many years president of Middlebury College.

He was educated in the schools at St. Albans, including the high school, and was a member of the Class of 1879 at Middlebury College, but did not graduate. He studied medicine at the Harvard Medical School, where he obtained his degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1884.

He was house surgeon at the Boston City Hospital, 1882–1884, and then studied in London and Berlin, was for a time assistant to Dr. Adam Politzer, in Vienna, and then became surgeon for diseases for the ear, nose, and throat at St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Boston. He practised his profession in Boston for many years, but resided in the suburban municipalities.

Dr. Brainerd was an ardent ornithologist, having been a member of the Nutall Club and one of the founders of the Brookline Bird Club. He had done extensive research work in genealogy, and had virtually completed in manuscript form the genealogy of the Barron family.

He married at St. Albans, 1 October 1890, Laura Nellie Barron, daughter of John Varnum and Arrianna Smith (Hill) Barron of Concord, N. H. There were two children, Barron, who died before his father, and John Bliss, Jr., now of New York, who survives him.

Julius Levy, of Baltimore, Md., manufacturer and philanthropist, a life member since 1921, was born in Baltimore in 1868, the son of Michael S. and Betsy (Jacobs) Levy, and died there 22 November 1926.

His parents came to America from Manchester, England, and settled in Baltimore, where his father established the business of which the subject of this memoir eventually became the head.

Julius Levy received his early education in the schools of Baltimore, and at the age of sixteen became a clerk in his father's factory. To supplement his salary, however, he worked as a salesman, during the evenings, in a retail hat store, and later was a salesman for the product of his father's factory. At the age of thirty he was made superintendent of the factory, and gained the reputation of knowing everything that was to be known about straw braids. The business, as first established by his father, was the making of caps, but later it was concerned chiefly with the making of straw hats, under the name of M. S. Levy & Sons, Inc. Julius Levy became president of this corporation, and held this position at the time of his death.

His attractive personal qualities and his business ability brought him into relations with many different enterprises, and he became one of the most widely known business men of Baltimore. He was president for many years of the National Association of Men's Straw Hat Manufacturers of America, a director of the Merchants National Bank of Baltimore, and a trustee of the Baltimore Museum of Art. Outside of his business and his home Mr. Levy's chief interests lay in the fields of charity, art, and music. He was the head of what is now the Associated Jewish Charities, the Mount Pleasant Sanatorium, the Baltimore Hebrew College, and the Jewish Home for Consumptives.

His religious affiliations were with the Chizuk Amuno Synagogue, of which his father was one of the founders, and in which the son was one of the most active spirits. His charming kindliness, his far-sighted, constructive, intense interest in all causes for human betterment, and the burning love and ardor with which he upheld the standards of his people made him an example in personality, an inspirer of youth, and won for him the respect, confidence, and affection of those who knew him. With his father and brother he founded the Betsy Levy Memorial Home for Orphans, and with his brothers and sisters he erected the Michael S. Levy Memorial. He was chairman of the Maryland Jewish Relief Committee, and was associated with other prominent men and women in the United States in the work of rescuing destitute people of eastern and southern Europe who had been impoverished by the World War.

Mr. Levy married in Baltimore, 4 June 1903, Etta Guggenheimer, daughter of Frederick and Carrie Guggenheimer, who survives him. There are no children. Two brothers, William and Alfred Levy, both of Baltimore and his associates in business, and six married sisters also survive him.

Mrs. Elizabeth (Churchill) (Mayer) Spalding, of Point Loma, Calif., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919 and a benefactor of the Society, was born at Rockford, Ill., 31 July 1856, the daughter of Marcellus Chase and Abigail Bates (Page) Churchill, and died on her way homeward from a European trip, 26 November 1926.

Her immigrant ancestor of the Churchill name was Josiah[1] Churchill of Wethersfield, Conn., who married in 1638 Elizabeth Foote, daughter of Nathaniel and Elizabeth (Deming) Foote of Wethersfield and died 1 January 1685/6, the line of descent running through Joseph,[2] 1649–1699, of Wethersfield, Nathaniel[3] of Wethersfield, born in 1677, Nathaniel[4] of Wethersfield, born in 1703, Janna[5] of Huntington, Vt., born in 1731, Janna[6] of Huntington, Vt., born in 1786, and Marcellus Chase,[7] her father, who was born at St. Albans, Vt., 13 March 1814, and died at Eaton Rapids, Mich., 20 October 1879. His wife, Abigail Bates Page, whom he married at Allegan, Mich., 29 October 1850, was born at Ithaca, N. Y., 8 April 1832, and died at Rockford, Ill., 16 May 1873, daughter of Rev. William and Frances Sheldon (Durand) Page. Through Rev. William Page Mrs. Spalding was descended from Nathaniel Page, who was at Billerica, Mass., in 1687, ancestor of the Pages of Bedford, Mass., several of whose descendants fought against the British at Concord Bridge, and through her grandmother, Frances Sheldon (Durand) Page, from Dr. John Durand, of Derby, Conn., 1683, a Huguenot from La Rochelle, France.

She was educated in the Rockford public schools, graduating at the age of fifteen, then studied languages at the Rockford Female College, and completed the regular courses in piano and voice at the Conservatory of Music at Fort Wayne, Ind., to which she later returned as a teacher in those departments. She studied for grand opera in London, and took courses in theory and counterpoint there. Upon her return to America she taught singing in New York City for about ten years, but after her second marriage she discontinued all professional work of that nature.

While she was a student in London, she was brought into contact with Madame Blavatsky, whose teachings attracted her, and she became an active member of the Theosophical Society. In New York she was associated with William Q. Judge, who succeeded Madame Blavatsky as president, and later with Madame Katherine Tingley, his successor and leader of the Universal Brotherhood and Theosophical Society, with headquarters at Point Loma, Calif. Specially active in children's work in New York, she was made general superintendent of the Children's Lotus Groups throughout the world by Madame Tingley and also became president of the Woman's International Theosophical League, founded by Madame Tingley. She was also a member of the Board of Trustees of the Theosophical University at Point Loma. Among her publications were magazine articles and "A Lotus Song Book for Children."

On the wall of the stair hall of the New England Historic Genealogical Society's house in Boston a beautiful marble tablet has been placed, as a memorial to three of Mrs. Spalding's early Colonial ancestors, Josiah Churchill, Dr. John Durand, and Nathaniel Page.

She was married first, 20 January 1875, to George Mayer; and secondly, 23 June 1900, to Albert Goodwill Spalding, whom she survived, son of James Lawrence and Harriet Irene Goodwill (Wright) Spalding. By her first husband she had one son, Durand Churchill Mayer, born at Fort Wayne, Ind., 21 January 1878, who dropped the surname Mayer on his mother's second marriage and was known as Durand Churchill. She and her second husband adopted a son, Albert Goodwill Spalding, Jr., who joined the Coldstream Guards of the British Army at the outbreak of the World War and was killed in the Battle of the Somme in 1916, when he was serving as a lieutenant in the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers.

JOHN HENRY MEYER, of Canton, Mass., textile manufacturer, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919 and a benefactor of the Society, was born in Bavaria 7 February 1857, and died at Canton 30 November 1926.

At the age of fourteen he left his home, where he considered that he had been "endowed . . . with the will to do things and the ability to translate, to a happy degree, his dreams into deeds," and went to England, where, for several years, he continued his education under private tutors. Entering the textile industry, he familiarized himself with every branch of the business conducted by the cotton and worsted mills of Yorkshire, and then visited most of the business centres in Europe and America and also the markets of the East Indies and native bazaars in various parts of the world. Returning to England, he became an English subject, and gained the distinction, in the late eighties, of being the first English manufacturer to ship to America worsted coatings in the gray state, from the loom, to be dyed and finished for the American trade.

In 1895 Mr. Meyer came to the United States, bringing his family with him, with the intention of making his home here, and in 1902 he became an American citizen. At the outbreak of the War with Spain he was the only manufacturer in a position to finish the cloth used for uniforms in the mineral khaki dye, which was far superior to other dyes then in vogue and fixed a standard of quality also in shelter tentage, ducks, etc., for the War and Navy Departments of the Government. During the World War he delivered large quantities of goods to our own Government and to some of the Allies, and, after the United States entered the war, two of his mills were operated to full capacity in turning out olive-drab cotton material for uniforms. At the time of his death he was engaged in finishing a cotton uniform cloth of the fast Idanthrene dye for one of the branches of our Government. It was ever his ambition to turn out the very best class of goods obtainable for the Government branches. His house, John H. Meyer & Company, Inc., with offices in New York City, controlled the Springdale Finishing Company, Inc., of Canton, the Anco Mills, Inc., at Wilkinsonville, Mass., the John H. Meyer Tire Duck Company, Inc., of Newark, N. J., and the John H. Meyer Silk Mills Company, Inc., with mills in Pennsylvania and New Jersey, which, however, were sold before Mr. Meyer's death.

He was a member of the Congressional and Country Clubs of Washington, D. C., and of various business organizations. He was interested in numerous charities, and his religious affiliations were with the Protestant Episcopal Church.

He married in England, in 1878, Annie Elizabeth Wadsworth, a member of an old Yorkshire family, who survived her husband but died at Canton 18 January 1927, in her 71st year. There were four children, all born in England, one son, H. Frederick Meyer, who died in 1920, at the age of 26, and three daughters, who survive their parents, Rosa W. (Mrs. Ronald Crumley of New York), Anna Barbara (Mrs. Henry G. Warland of Canton), and Doris Irene (Mrs. Edward Painter McMurtry of Pasadena, Calif.), and also four grandchildren.

A marble tablet was placed by Mr. Meyer on the stair wall of the house of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston, the unique inscription on it reading as follows: "A lasting Remembrance of John Henry Meyer and George Gibson McMurtry the one a Bavarian the other a Scot and both Leaders of Industry in this the Country of their Adoption Put here for their grandson Edward Painter McMurtry, Junior In whose veins flows with theirs the blood of the Pilgrim Fathers."

WILLIAM HENRY PORTER, LL.D., of New York City, banker, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Middlebury, Vt., 3 January 1861, the son of William Trowbridge and Martha Elizabeth (Samson) Porter, and died in New York City 30 November 1926.

He was a descendant of John[1] Porter, who was among the earliest settlers of Windsor, Conn., in 1638, through John[2] of Windsor, who was born in England and died in 1688, Joseph[3] of Windsor, Joseph,[4] Joseph,[5] 1742–1778, George,[6] 1767–1855, Cyrus, [7] 1795–1857, of Farmington, Conn., and Middlebury, Vt., whose wife was Susan Trowbridge, and William Trowbridge,[8] his father, who was born at Middlebury 23 February 1833 and married Martha Elizabeth Samson, born 19 January 1837.

William Henry Porter was educated in the Middlebury public schools, including the high school, and at Saratoga Academy. At the age of seventeen years he went to New York and entered the employ of the Fifth Avenue Bank, thus starting on a career which eventually made him a prominent figure in the banking business of the metropolis. In 1886 he became cashier of the Chase National Bank, and five years later was its vice president. In 1898 he became vice president of the Chemical National Bank, a position created especially for him, and in May 1903 became its president. He was a director of the Bankers' Trust Company from its organization in 1903, and in 1906 was one of the incorporators of the New Netherlands Trust Company. He became a director of the Guaranty Trust Company in 1910, and was also a director or trustee in many banks, insurance companies, and manufacturing corporations. In October 1908 he was elected president of the New York Clearing House Association and served for two years, and since 1 January 1911 he had been a member of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Company.

He was also treasurer of the New York Chamber of Commerce, a commissioner of the Palisades Interstate Park, and a trustee of New York University and of Middlebury College, receiving from the latter institution the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1911. At Middlebury in 1925 there was dedicated a hospital which he had given in memory of his parents.

He was a member of the New England Society, the Vermont Society, the American Geographical Society, the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, the Sons of the Revolution, and the St. Nicholas Society. His clubs included the Metropolitan, Century, Republican, Union League, Piping Rock, and New York Yacht Clubs.

He married in New York City, 3 February 1887, Esther Jackson of New York City, who survives him, together with a daughter, Helen (Mrs. Richard L. Davisson of New York City). An only son, Capt. James Porter, was killed in 1918 in the Meuse-Argonne fighting, while commanding a machine-gun unit.

Eugene Winslow Durkee, of New York City, a life member since 1921, was born at Buffalo, N. Y., 6 December 1850, the son of Eugene Return and Cynthia Helen (Winslow) Durkee, and died in New York City 9 December 1926.

His paternal ancestry has been traced to Capt. Thomas Durkee of Hanover, N. H., from whom he was descended through Abijah, one of the founders of Dartmouth College, who married in 1776 Ruth Freeman, Horatio, born in 1792, who married in 1817 Mary Waldo, and Eugene Return, his father, who was born at Candor, N. Y., 18 January 1825, was for a time in the drug business in Buffalo, and moved to New York City, where he established in 1850, or a little later, what was said to be the largest drug business in the country. He died in 1903. Mr. Durkee's mother, Cynthia Helen Winslow, whom his father married in 1849, was born at Jamestown, N. Y., 17 July 1828, and died at Lugano, Switzerland, 3 March 1889, the daughter of Thomas Jefferson and Eliza (Hunt) Winslow and a descendant of Kenelm[1] Winslow of the Plymouth Colony.

After his school days were ended and after a considerable period of European travel, he entered, in 1870, the spice business of E. R. Durkee & Company, which had been established by his father in 1850, devoted to it his entire career, and succeeded to the presidency of the firm in 1884, on the retirement of his father. He made a special study of crude spices and the materials used in the preparation of the firm's products, and came to be an accepted authority on the subject of spices and the spice trade. He was one of the founders of the American Spice Trade Association, and served as its president and as chairman of the Committee on Standards.

Mr. Durkee was fond of flowers, and laid out at his country place at East Patchogue one of the finest gardens on Long Island. His clubs included the Union League, Down Town, and National Arts Clubs.

He married at the Strong Place Baptist Church in Brooklyn, N. Y., 24 April 1878, Emma Frances Brigham, daughter of Levi Henry and Zenobia (West) Brigham. Two daughters, Emma West Durkee (now Mrs. Chauncey B. Humphrey of New York City) and Helen W. Durkee (Mrs. Christopher J. Mileham of East Patchogue, Long Island, and of New York City), survive him.

Mary Susan Root, of Winthrop, Mass., a resident member since 1921, was born at Ware, Mass., 15 March 1865, the daughter of William Alanson and Cornelia (Hills) Root, and died at Winthrop 3 December 1926.

She was a descendant of Thomas[1] Root, who was born at Badby, co. Northampton, England, came to New England about 1637, and was one of the early settlers of Hartford, Conn., dying in 1694, through Jacob,[2] Nathaniel[3] of Northampton, Mass., and Hebron, Conn., Jonah[4] of Marlborough, Conn., Joel[5] of Marlborough, and William Alanson,[6] her father, who was born at Hebron, Conn., 14 June 1819, married 10 April 1842 Cornelia Hills, and died at Ware 28 December 1891. Cornelia Hills was born at East Hartford, Conn., 28 May 1823, and died at Ware 10 March 1902, daughter of Walter and Huldah Wright (Roberts) Hills.

Mary Susan Root was educated in the public schools of Ware, graduating at the high school, and afterwards studied the piano and organ, taking lessons in Boston each week. She gave music lessons and for a number of years was organist at the Unitarian Church in Ware.

Her life, however, was centered in her home, where, as the youngest member of the family, she had the care of her father and mother in their declining years and also of an older sister, who was more or less an invalid. After the deaths of her parents, she, with her sister, Ellen, continued for some years to reside at the home in Ware, but later the two sisters moved to Winthrop, to make their home with their brother, Henry Augustus Root, whose wife had died shortly before. He and another brother, William A. Root, both much older than herself, were the original founders of the firm of contractors and builders in Boston which is still doing business under the firm name of W. A. & H. A. Root. Miss Mary Root assumed charge of the household at Winthrop, and outlived both her brother and sister. Hers was a quiet life, ministering unto others.

She was a member and active worker, as far as opportunity allowed, in the Unitarian Church in Ware and also in Winthrop. At the time of her death she was a member of the Winthrop Woman's Club, the Winthrop Improvement and Historical Association, and the Deane Winthrop Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, having served in the last-named organization as corresponding secretary and as vice regent.

Karl Isburgh, of Amsterdam, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Melrose, Mass., 25 August 1878, the son of Charles H. and Ida Josephine (Kimball) Isburgh, and died at Amsterdam 1 April 1926, his death having come to the knowledge of the Historian too late for the publication of this memoir in its proper chronological place.

He was a grandson of Alexander[1] Isburgh, who came from Sweden with his wife, Mary A. (Pray) Isburgh (both were born in Stockholm), and settled in Boston, where he died in 1870. Mr. Isburgh's father, Charles H.[2] Isburgh, conducted a carriage depository in Boston, but made his home at Melrose, Mass. He died in Boston 28 May 1903. Mr. Isburgh's mother, the second wife of Charles H. Isburgh, was born in Boston 26 February 1852, and died at Newton, Mass., 30 November 1920, the daughter of Thomas J. and Sarah (Crocker) Kimball; and through her mother, who was born at Brewster, Mass., Karl Isburgh acquired eligibility for membership in the Society of Mayflower Descendants and joined the Massachusetts branch of that organization.

He was educated in private schools in Boston, including the Chauncey Hall School, and began his business career as a salesman. Soon, however, he became treasurer of a brokerage house, and in 1904 was a member of the firm of C. C. Lane & Company, cotton brokers, of Boston. The following year he moved to Amsterdam, N. Y., where he became associated with the C. Van Buren Company, which was engaged in the flour, feed, grain, and coal business. When he became a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, he was proprietor of the Amsterdam Coal Company, and was a member of the leading social organizations of Amsterdam.

He married 21 December 1901 Grace Van Buren, daughter of Cornelius and Marion B. (Gove) Van Buren and a descendant of well-known Dutch settlers of Colonial days. Mrs. Isburgh survives her husband, together with two children, Donald Isburgh and Marion Van Buren Isburgh of Amsterdam. The son has succeeded to his father's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Mrs. Amanda (Friedman) Lauterbach, of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born in New York City, the daughter of Arnold and Wilhelmine (Stroubel) Friedman, and died there 7 May 1926, aged 76 years; but the material necessary for the preparation of this brief memoir was received by the Historian too late for publication in its proper chronological place.

Her father was born in Germany, but her mother was a native of the United States.

She was married in 1870 to Edward Lauterbach, A.B. (College of the City of New York, 1864), A.M. (ib., 1867), LL.D. (Manhattan College, 1905), who was born in New York City 12 August 1844 and died 4 March 1923, the son of Solon and Mina Lauterbach. Mr. Lauterbach was a member of the law firm of Hoadly, Lauterbach & Johnson. He was counsel in various important railway, telegraph, and maritime cases, president of the Baltimore & Southern Railway Company, a director in several street railway companies, vice president and counsel of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, a director in various charitable institutions, a regent of the University of the State of New York, and chairman of the Board of Trustees of the College of the City of New York. In politics he was a Republican, and was chairman of the Republican County Committee from 1895 to 1897.

A daughter, Edith (Mrs. Clarence G. McDavitt of Newton, Mass.), whose husband is an official of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Company, survives her mother.

Gertrude Imogene Lake, of Holliston, Mass., a resident member since 1912, was born at Holliston 2 November 1850, the daughter of Dr. Hiram and Olive Fuller (Shorey) Lake, and died there 1 January 1927.

She traced her descent from Gershom Lake, 1676–1719, who was in Rehoboth, Mass., before 1707, through his son Joseph, 1709–1770, the latter's son Laban, a Revolutionary soldier, who died in 1832, Laban's son Joseph, 1777–1843, and Joseph's son Hiram Lake, M.D., her father, who was born at Rehoboth 25 August 1820 and died at Holliston 16 February 1898. Her mother, Olive Fuller Shorey, was born at Seekonk, Mass., 31 January 1820, was married to Hiram Lake in New York City, 5 May 1846, and died at Holliston 6 March 1909, the daughter of Col. Abel Shorey, an officer in the Revolution, and Nancy (Fuller) Shorey, his wife.

She was educated in the public schools of Holliston and at the Willow Park Seminary, where she was graduated in 1872. She studied music, continued her studies in art, begun at the Seminary, and also read medicine with her father. She became a teacher in the public schools, gave lessons in music and art, assisted her father, and was interested in genealogical research.

Miss Lake was an active member of the Congregational Church, a life member of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants and of the Rehoboth Antiquarian Society, a member also of the Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, and a former member of the Holliston Historical Society.

George Raymond Bunker, of Yonkers, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920 and a benefactor of the Society, was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., 4 August 1845, the son of Thomas Raymond and Emmeline (Birkbeck) Bunker, and died at Yonkers 4 January 1927.

His immigrant ancestor, George[1] Bunker of Ipswich and later of Topsfield, Mass., who married Jane Godfrey and was drowned at Topsfield 26 May 1658, is said to have been the son of a William Bon Cœur, a French Huguenot who had settled in England. Jane (Godfrey) Bunker, widow of George, was married secondly to Richard Swain, and went with him to Nantucket, taking with her the five little children of her first husband. William[2] Bunker, the only son of George,[1] was, therefore, of Nantucket, and married there, 11 April 1669, Mary Macy, whose father, Thomas Macy, was one of the founders of that settlement. From William[2] Bunker the descent of the subject of this memoir has been traced through Benjamin,[3] 1683–1721, Thomas,[4] 1719–1785, Richard,[5] 1746–1788, Richard,[6] Thomas Gorham,[7] who was captured by the British in the War of 1812 on a packet ship that he owned and was held for two years as a prisoner at Dartmoor, whose wife was Sarah Raymond, and Thomas Raymond,[8] his father, who was born in 1820 and married Emmeline Birkbeck.

George Raymond Bunker was educated in the Brooklyn public schools and the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, at which he was graduated, and began his business career in the sugar industry, being associated with his uncle, John Wilson, the head of the Delaware Sugar Refining Company of Philadelphia. On the death of Mr. Wilson Mr. Bunker succeeded him as head of this company and later sold his interests in it.

He is said to have been one of the first men to introduce modern technical methods into the refining of sugar. He was one of the organizers and a director of the Cuban-American Sugar Company and of the Guantanamo Sugar Company, both of Cuba, and also of the Fajardo Sugar Company of Porto Rico. He was one of the founders of the National Sugar Refining Company and was chairman of its Board of Directors. In 1893 he established the sugar refinery at Yonkers, and thenceforth made that city his residence. He was a director of the First National Bank of Yonkers.

He was much interested in charitable and philanthropic work, and one of his undertakings which proved to be of especial benefit to poor people was the establishment of public milk stations in Yonkers, for the distribution of pasteurized milk for young children, at a time when such stations were almost unknown in the United States. He helped to found the Charity Organization Society, of which he was one of the chief benefactors; he was a member of the Advisory Board of the Young Men's Christian Association and the Woman's Institute; for twelve years he was president of St. John's Riverside Hospital at Yonkers; and he was a vestryman and senior warden of St. John's Church (Protestant Episcopal). He never held public office nor was he ever a candidate for public office.

Mr. Bunker married first, in 1880, Katharine Lawson Uhler of Philadelphia, who died in 1886; and secondly, in 1893, Jean Polhemus Cobb of Tarrytown, N. Y., who survives him, together with his son by his first wife, Raymond Uhler Bunker, Ph.B. (Yale, 1904), of New York City and three children by his second wife, Ellsworth Bunker of Yonkers, Arthur H. Bunker of Denver, Colo., and Katharine (now Mrs. Andrew R. Butler of New York City).

Hon. H. Wales Lines, of Meriden, Conn., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919 and a benefactor of the Society, was born at Naugatuck, Conn., 3 June 1838, the son of Henry Willis and Harriet (Bunnell) Lines, and died at Meriden 11 January 1927.

He traced his descent from Ralph[1] Lines, who is supposed to have come from Badby, Northamptonshire, England, to New Haven, in 1643, settled eventually in Woodbridge, Conn., and died in 1689, through Samuel,[2] 1649–1692, of Woodbridge, Ebenezer,[3] 1684–1740/1, Capt. John,[4] 1720–1818, a Revolutionary soldier, Eber,[5] 1755–1844, of Bethany, Conn., Calvin,[6] 1780–1880, and Henry Willis,[7] his father, who was born at Woodbridge 5 December 1812 and died 30 January 1863. Harriet Bunnell, wife of Henry Willis Lines, was born at Naugatuck 11 December 1816 and died 24 February 1898, the daughter of William and Clarissa (Stevens) Bunnell. H. Wales Lines was also a descendant of Elder William Brewster of the Mayflower and of Rev. Thomas Hooker of Hartford, Conn., and he counted among his ancestors many who served in King Philip's War or other wars of the Colonial period or in the Revolution.

He was educated in the public schools of Naugatuck, including the high school; and he began his business career by serving an apprenticeship in the mason's trade in Naugatuck and New Haven. He also taught school for three winters. After working at his trade for a time, he became in 1864, at the age of twenty-six, a partner in the firm of Perkins & Lines of Meriden, builders and distributors of building materials. In 1878 the firm name was changed to H. Wales Lines & Company, and in 1888 The H. Wales Lines Company was established, of which he was president and which grew to be one of the largest building companies in Connecticut. He built many of the important public and private buildings of his time, and was vice chairman of the commission that supervised the building of the State Library and the Supreme Court building and the remodelling and completion of the State Capitol at Hartford, 1903–1911. He was president of the Meriden Machine Tool Company and the Pacific Real Estate Company, treasurer of the New Haven Investment Company, vice president of the Meriden Savings Bank, and a director of the Chapin-Stevens Company.

A Republican in politics, Mr. Lines served his city as mayor for three terms (1877–1879), was a representative in the Connecticut Legislature in 1872, a State senator in 1879 and 1880, and a member of the State Constitutional Convention in 1902. In 1888 he was the Republican candidate for Congress in the Second Congressional District of Connecticut, but was not elected.

He held membership in many patriotic and historical societies, including the Connecticut Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Order of Founders and Patriots of America, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Connecticut Society of Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was vice president, the Connecticut Historical Society, and the New Haven Colony Historical Society. He was honorary president for life of the Mayors' Association of Connecticut, a member of the Chambers of Commerce of the United States, Connecticut, and Meriden, and of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, and an honorary member of several societies of war veterans. He was active and prominent in the Masonic fraternity, was a thirty-third degree Scottish Rite Mason, and for forty years was grand treasurer of the Grand Encampment of Knights Templars of the United States.

Mr. Lines married 23 June 1861 Sarah Congdon Munger, who died 31 October 1926, daughter of Rev. Washington and Louisa (Nichols) Munger of Waterford, Conn. They had five children: Harriet Louisa, now deceased, who married Sheldon Keeney of Kensington, Conn., Henry Washington, deceased, Sarah Lavinia (Mrs. Frank L. Hamilton of Meriden), Clara Belle (Mrs. Roger B. de Bussy of Stamford, Conn.), and Ellie Munger (Mrs. Frank M. Chapin of Pine Meadow, Conn.). The late Right Rev. Edwin Stevens Lines, D.D., of Newark, N. J., a bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was a younger brother of the subject of this memoir and survived him.

Mr. Lines has been succeeded in his Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society by a grandson, Norman Van Nearing Peck of Kensington, Conn.

Edwin Tyler Shaw, of Lowell, Mass., elected a resident member 17 August 1926, was born at Lowell 11 June 1872, the son of James William Brown and Georgiana (Nichols) Shaw, and died there 13 January 1927.

He traced his descent from Roger[1] Shaw, who was in Cambridge, Mass., in 1636, moved later to Hampton, N. H., and died there in 1662, through Benjamin,[2] 1641–1717, Joseph,[3] 1681–1745, who died at Kensington, N. H., Caleb,[4] 1719–1791, a Revolutionary soldier, Rev. Caleb,[5] 1755–1826, who died at Pittsfield, N. H., Nehemiah,[6] 1787–1856, and James William Brown,[7] his father, who was born at Pittsfield 22 October 1822, married Georgiana Nichols (born at Lowell 7 January 1835, died there 18 March 1918, daughter of Gilman Nevins and Lucinda (Dolloff) Nichols), and died at Lowell 14 January 1906.

Edwin Tyler Shaw was educated in the public schools of Lowell, and was graduated at the high school there in 1890. From 1891 to 1893 he was employed as a clerk in the Lowell National Bank; in 1893 he became bookkeeper with Adams & Company, furniture dealers; in 1899 he was made assistant treasurer of the H. R. Barker Manufacturing Company, which was engaged in making steam and gas pipe fixtures; and ten years later he became proprietor of the E. T. Shaw Company, dealers in plumbing and heating and mill supplies, and carried on this business until 1918. As early as 1910, in addition to his other interests, he was engaged in the real-estate business, and he continued his activities in this line until his death.

He married 10 November 1897 Daisy Blanch Dexter, who survives him, daughter of Solomon King and Mary Sophia (McCrillis) Dexter. They had two sons, Dexter Nichols Shaw and Edwin Tyler Shaw, Jr.

Mary Lincoln Eliot, of Cambridge, Mass., elected a resident member in 1901 and made a life member in 1906, was born in Boston 4 January 1846, the daughter of Nathaniel Goodwin and Mary Richardson (Bassett) Eliot, and died at Cambridge 15 January 1927.

She was a descendant of Lieut. Andrew[1] Eliott or Elliot, cordwainer, who was baptized at East Coker, co. Somerset, England, in 1627, migrated to New England about 1668, and settled at Beverly, Mass., where he was elected town clerk in 1690. He died 1 March 1703/4. By his first wife, Grace Woodier, who died in England, he had a son, Andrew[2] Elliot of Beverly, who married Mercy Shattack and was drowned in 1688; and from Andrew[2] and Mercy (Shattack) Elliot the line of descent of the subject of this memoir runs through Andrew[3] of Beverly and Boston, who married at Boxford, Mass., 19 July 1705, Ruth Symonds, born at Boxford 24 December 1676, daughter of Samuel and Elisabeth Symonds, Rev. Andrew[4] Eliot, 1718–1778, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1737), A.M. (ib., 1740), S.T.D. (University of Edinburgh, 1767), minister of the New North Church in Boston and a fellow of Harvard College from 1765 until his death,* who married Elizabeth Langdon, born in Boston 1 July 1721, Ephraim,[5] A.B. (Harvard, 1780), A.M. (ib., 1783), who was born in Boston 29 December 1761, married Mary Fleet (born in Boston 17 April 1770), and died in 1827, and Nathaniel Goodwin,[6] her father, who was born in Boston 23 January 1811 and married Mary Richardson Bassett, born in Boston 21 July 1811, daughter of Joseph and Margaret (Richardson) Bassett.

Mary Lincoln Eliot was educated in the grammar and high schools of Roxbury, Mass., where her father was cashier of the Eliot Savings Bank. For many years she lived in Roxbury, but at the time of her death she was residing at Riverbank Court, in Cambridge. She was a Unitarian, and was deeply interested in the activities of the Unitarian Church.

Mary Katharine Horsford, of Cambridge, Mass., a resident member since 1923, was born at Cambridge 24 October 1850, the second daughter and child of Professor Eben Norton and Mary L'Hommedieu (Gardiner) Horsford, and died there 17 January 1927.

She was descended from William[1] Horsford, who was in Dorchester, Mass., in 1633 and migrated thence, a few years later, to Windsor, Conn., through John[2] of Windsor, Timothy,[3] Daniel,[4] Capt. Daniel,[5] 1723–1788, of South Canaan, Conn., Roger,[6] Hon. Jedediah,[7] M.C., of Moscow, Livingston Co., N. Y., who was born at Charlotte, Vt., 8 March 1791, married Charity Maria Norton of Goshen, Conn., and died at Livonia, N. Y., 14 January 1874, and Professor Eben Norton[8] of Cambridge, her father, honorary A.M. (Union College, 1843, Harvard, 1847), M.D. (Castleton Medical

*Rev. Andrew[4] Eliot was a younger brother of Samuel[4] Eliot of Boston, the great-grandfather of the late Charles William Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard University. A more detailed account of the ancestry of these two brothers may be found in the Register, vol. 81, pp. 3–5 (January 1927), in the memoir of President Eliot prepared by Alfred Johnson, A.M., Litt.D. In that memoir, however, the statement that Andrew[3] Eliott of Boston, the father of Samuel[4] and Rev. Andrew[4] Eliot, married first Ruth Symonds and secondly Mary Herrick, and that these two brothers were his children by the second wife, is incorrect, although it is found in the genealogy of this family compiled by the late William H. Whitmore (Register, vol. 23, pp. 337–340) and in Walter Graeme Eliot's Sketch of the Eliot Family, published in 1887. Andrew[3] Eliott had only one wife, Ruth Symonds, as was pointed out by Miss Mary Lincoln Eliot in a note published in the Register of July 1904 (vol. 58, p. 316), where it is shown that Ruth (Symonds) Eliot survived her husband, being an executor of his will, which was proved 4 April 1749, and signing an account dated 25 March 1752 (Suffolk Probate Files, 9238). Andrew Eliott and his wife Ruth are buried side by side in the Granary Burial Ground in Boston, the inscriptions on their gravestones reading: "Here lyes buried the body of Mr. Andrew Eliot, who exchanged this life for a better March 28th, 1749, ætatis 66," and "Mrs. Ruth Eliot, relict of Mr. Andrew Eliot, died September 26, 1760, ætat 85." (Bridgman's The Pilgrims of Boston, p. 206.) Ruth (Symonds) Eliott was, therefore, the mother of all the children of Andrew[3] Eliott. The Andrew Eliot who married at Beverly, 7 May 1707, Mary Herrick was a son of William[2] Eliot (Lieut. Andrew[1]) and a first cousin of the Andrew Eliott who married Ruth Symonds. The Editor assumes full responsibility for the erroneous statement, in the memoir of President Eliot, about the two marriages of Andrew[3] Eliott of Boston, and expresses his indebtedness to William Ogilvie Comstock, E.M., of Brookline, Mass., for calling his attention to it. — Editor.

College, Vt., 1847), distinguished chemist, historian, and philanthropist, who was born at Moscow, N. Y., 27 July 1818, married at Sylvester Manor (the home of the father of his bride), Shelter Island, N. Y., 4 August 1847, Mary L'Hommedieu Gardiner (born in New York City 27 September 1824, died at Cambridge 24 November 1855, daughter of Samuel Smith and Mary Catharine (L'Hommedieu) Gardiner), and died at Cambridge 1 January 1893.

Her grandfather, Col. Jedediah Horsford, who moved from Vermont to Moscow, N. Y., was a missionary to the Seneca Indians, a soldier in the War of 1812, a successful farmer, a member of the New York Assembly in 1831, and a member of the United States House of Representatives in the Thirty-second Congress (March 1851–March 1853). His home in New York State was one of the stations of the so-called "Underground Railroad," by which fugitive slaves were aided in making their way from bondage in the South to freedom in Canada. Her father served Harvard, 1847–1863, as Rumford Professor and Lecturer on the Application of Science to the Useful Arts, was one of the founders of the Lawrence Scientific School at Harvard, of which he was dean, 1861–62, wrote much concerning the voyages of the Norsemen to America, and was a liberal benefactor of Wellesley College. Her mother, who died at the age of thirty-one, was a gifted poetess, and a volume of her poems, entitled "Indian Legends and Other Poems," was published in the year of her death.

Through her mother Miss Horsford traced her descent from Nathaniel Sylvester, the first resident proprietor of the manor of Shelter Island, who received there and protected the Quakers — Mary Dyer, Lawrence Southwick and his wife Cassandra, and others — who sought refuge with him from the Puritan authorities of the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay; and she was also descended from Benjamin L'Hommedieu the Huguenot, of Southold, Long Island, who married Nathaniel Sylvester's daughter Patience, Lyon Gardiner, the first lord of the manor of Gardiner's Island, Elder William Brewster of the Plymouth Colony, Rev. Richard Bourne of Sandwich in the Plymouth Colony, the teacher of the Mashpee Indians, and from several eminent settlers in New York, including the Van Cortlandts and the Van Rensselaers.

Mary Katharine Horsford received her early education at private schools in Cambridge, at the Cambridge High School, and at a private school in Boston. From her ancestors she had inherited a hatred of slavery, which was intensified when she heard from the lips of Richard H. Dana, Jr., the story of Anthony Burns and saw the Massachusetts troops marching at the call of Lincoln to uphold the Union. As a girl she was often with her cousins at Gardiner's Island. As a young woman she taught and worked for several years in Miss Anna Ticknor's Society for the Promotion of Studies at Home. She also travelled much with her father, accompanying him on a journey to Austria and Hungary in 1873, when he was one of the United States commissioners to the Vienna exposition, and receiving with him a cordial welcome in Viennese society and at the estates of some of the Hungarian nobles. In 1880 she went with her father to Norway, to see his old friend, the violinist Ole Bull.

Miss Horsford had a remarkable histrionic talent, which she exercised in the early days of the Cambridge Dramatic Club, when she took old ladies' parts in such plays as "She Stoops to Conquer" and "The Rivals." From her girlhood she took great delight in painting; occasionally she composed poems; but she was still more interested in horticulture, and her own beautiful garden, laid out some eighty years ago by Arnold Guyot, was not shut in by high excluding walls but could be seen and enjoyed by the passing public. Her only printed article was one published in Farm and Garden, entitled "A Plea for the Pleasure of an Open Garden."

She gave freely of her means to help those in trouble; she was a sympathetic and generous friend to those who were ill or in sorrow; she aided with money young relatives in their general education and in their musical studies; and she was a benefactor of churches, colleges, hospitals, and numerous charities.

She was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, the Huguenot Society of New York, and other hereditary-patriotic societies. At the time of her death she was — and had been for several years — a member of the committee appointed by the Board of Overseers of Harvard University to visit the Gray Herbarium.

One of Miss Horsford's younger sisters, Cornelia, who lived with her at the home in Cambridge, survives her. Her elder sister, Mrs. Mary Leila Lilian (Horsford) Farlow of Cambridge, widow of the distinguished botanist, Professor William Gilson Farlow, and a life member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1916, also survived her, but died at Cambridge seven months later, 17 August 1927.

Hon. William Orrell, of Glendale, R. I., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920 and a benefactor of the Society, was born in Lancashire, England, 14 November 1848, the son of James and Mary A. Orrell, and died at the Brooks Hospital, Brookline, Mass., 19 January 1927.

He came to this country with his parents when he was eight years old. His educational opportunities were limited, and he went to work at a very early age. After many years of struggle and adversity he was able to buy and enlarge the manufacturing plant at Glendale and to establish there in 1879 the woolen mills which he successfully operated for forty years. During his career as a mill owner he never had to deal with labor troubles. His life is an example of what can be accomplished by energy, industry, and integrity. For some years he was a director in the Producers Savings Bank of Woonsocket, R. I., and, when it was absorbed by the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Company, he was elected a member of the Board of Managers and a member of the Executive Committee.

He was a Republican in politics, had served his town as a councilman, and had also been a member of the Rhode Island Senate.

On the wall of the stair hall of the house of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in Boston there is a tablet inscribed as follows: "William Orrell Born in Lancashire England 1848 Came when 8 years old to America and settled at Glendale Rhode Island 1879 where he established the woolen mills bearing his name."

He married first Alice A. Bradley of Blackstone, Mass., daughter of James and Ann Bradley. They had three children, Gertrude A., wife of Harry E. Davis of Glendale, Mabel A., wife of Sayles B. Steers, and Frederick W. Orrell. After the death of his first wife he married twice, but no children were born from these later unions.

Douglas Merritt, LL.B., M.A., of Rhinebeck, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 4 December 1847, the son of George and Julia (Douglas) Merritt, and died in Washington, D. C., 21 January 1927.

His ancestry has been traced from Thomas[1] Merritt, an early settler of Wethersfield, Conn., and Rye, Westchester Co., N. Y., through Joseph,[2] 1662–1754, Nehemiah,[3] 1715–1794, Nehemiah,[4] 1740–1793, Benjamin,[5] 1777–1854, and George,[6] 1807–1873, his father, a merchant and bank director of New York City, who married in 1845 Julia Douglas, who was born in 1823 and died in 1904, the daughter of Alanson and Ann (Sutherland) Douglas of Troy, N. Y., and a descendant of William Douglas, who was in Boston, Mass., in 1640 and was later of New London, Conn.

He was educated at the school of John Macmullen and at the Columbia Grammar School in New York City; and, after spending two years in Europe, entered the Law School of Columbia University, from which he received the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1874. Hobart College conferred on him the honorary degree of Master of Arts in 1889.

In 1875 he purchased a country estate near Rhinebeck, N. Y., which was named "Leacote," and which he made his permanent residence. He travelled much, both in the United States and abroad, was deeply interested in genealogy, and prepared the "Revised Merritt Records," which was published in 1916.

He was active in the Protestant Episcopal Church, serving the Church of the Messiah at Rhinebeck as vestryman and warden for almost forty years, and being a lay delegate to the Diocesan Convention of New York State for forty-one years and a trustee of Hobart College for over thirty years. For a number of years he was also secretary of St. Stephen's College, Annandale-on-Hudson, N. Y.

Mr. Merritt was a fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of London, England, a life member of the New York Historical Society and of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society (of which he was a trustee), and a member of the Society of Colonial Wars, of the Sons of the Revolution, of the New England Society, and of the Pilgrim Society. Among his clubs were the Century, Church, and National Arts of New York and the Metropolitan of Washington, D. C.

He married 3 August 1876 Elizabeth Cleveland Coxe, born at Hartford, Conn., daughter of Right Rev. Arthur Cleveland Coxe, Protestant Episcopal bishop of Western New York, and his wife, Catherine Cleveland Hyde. Mrs. Merritt survives her husband, together with their two children, Ethel Douglas and Alan Douglas Merritt.

Charles Wellington Stone, A.B., A.M., of Boston, a resident member since 1895, was born at Templeton, Mass., 13 December 1853, the son of Leonard and Margaret Coffin (Wellington) Stone, and died at the Charlesgate Hospital, Boston, 22 January 1927.

He was seventh in descent from Dea. Simon[1] Stone, who was in Watertown, Mass., in 1635, through Simon[2] of Watertown, Simon,[3] 1656–1741, of Groton, Mass., Benjamin,[4] 1706–1758, of Groton, Capt. Leonard,[5] 1746–1818, of Templeton, Mass., Col. Leonard,[6] 1784–1857, of Templeton, and Leonard[7] of Templeton, his father, who was born at Templeton 11 September 1822 and died 19 June 1862. Leonard[7] Stone married Margaret Coffin Wellington, who was born at Templeton 10 December 1821, the daughter of Rev. Charles Wellington, A.B. (Harvard, 1802), A.M. (ib., 1805), S.T.D. (ib., 1854), minister of the First Parish in Templeton from 1807 until his death in 1861, and his wife, Anna (Smith) Wellington, and a descendant of Roger[1] Wellington of Watertown, who came to New England about 1635. Charles Wellington Stone was also descended in three lines from Dea. Gregory[1] Stone of Cambridge, Mass., brother of Dea. Simon[1] Stone, and among his other ancestors of the early Colonial days was Rev. Thomas Shepard, the well-known minister of Cambridge.

He received his early education in the public schools of Templeton, graduating from the high school there in 1868, then attended Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered Harvard in 1870, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1874 and that of Master of Arts in 1881.

After five years of teaching Mr. Stone established in 1879, in Boston, the Stone School, a classical school for preparing boys for college. In March 1924 more than two hundred of the former pupils of this school met in Boston to celebrate its forty-fifth birthday and Mr. Stone's completion of a half century as a teacher, events which they commemorated by establishing at Harvard the Charles Wellington Stone Scholarship for the benefit of boys from Templeton.

In addition to his exacting duties as headmaster of a well-known and successful boys' school, Mr. Stone found time for the study of literature, for historical and genealogical research, for music, for scientific agriculture, and for authorship in various fields. He was at one time president of the Stone Family Association, under whose auspices the English ancestry of the brother immigrants, Gregory and Simon Stone, and the genealogy of their descendants were compiled for publication by the late J. Gardner Bartlett. He was secretary of the Handel and Haydn Society from 1890 to 1897. The silver medal of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society was awarded to him in 1888. He was a writer of faultless English, both prose and verse, and a gifted public speaker. He delivered at Templeton in 1876 an oration on "The Puritan Spirit," an historical address in 1902, and another historical address, entitled "The Sacred Fire," at the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the Templeton meeting house in 1911. He was the author of a memoir of Rev. Edwin G. Adams, 1879, a translation of Lycurgus against Leocrates, for the Depew Library of Oratory, a translation of the "Dies Irae," 1886, for the Handel and Haydn Society, "Needles of Pine," 1886, and "The Heart of New England," a Harvard historical play in one act. Many addresses and papers on historical, religious, and educational topics and some textbooks for school use were prepared by him. He was a master in the art of writing memorial inscriptions, and composed the inscription for the memorial tablet to Gregory Stone, in the Cooper-Austin house, at Cambridge, and inscriptions for the tablets erected to the thirteen former pupils of the Stone School who gave their lives in the World War.

He married first, in Boston, 2 October 1877, Ellen Mary Buckingham, who died 12 December 1881; and secondly, in Boston, 26 September 1883, Alice Stone, daughter of Phineas Augustus and Rebecca (Jackson) Stone, who survives him. By his second wife he had two daughters, of whom the elder, Alice Wellington, died in her fifth year, while the younger, Elsa Wellington, A.B. (Radcliffe, 1915), survives her father and is a teacher.

Edwin Charles Shevlin, of Portland, Oreg., elected a life member 17 August 1926, was born at Albany, N. Y., 8 June 1867, the son of John Shevlin, and died at the Good Samaritan Hospital in Portland 27 January 1927.

John Shevlin was of Irish descent, and was a grocer at Albany in 1867. He and his wife Matilda (Leonard), also of Irish descent, were the parents of Thomas Henry Shevlin, who was born at Albany 3 January 1852, became one of the great "lumber kings" of the Northwest, with headquarters at Minneapolis, Minn., and died at Pasadena, Calif., 15 January 1912.* Edwin Charles Shevlin was a younger brother of Thomas Henry Shevlin, and during the greater part of his life was associated in business with the older man.

Edwin Charles Shevlin attended Niagara University, at Niagara Falls,

*See biographical sketch, with portrait, of Thomas Henry Shevlin, in the revised edition of Appleton's "Cyclopædia of American Biography," vol. 8, pp. 284–285, and biographical sketch of his son, the late Thomas Leonard Shevlin, B.A., a famous Yale athlete, in the same volume, pp. 525–526.

N. Y.; but at the age of seventeen he entered the employ of the Stephen C. Hall Lumber Company, at Muskegon, Mich., of which his brother, Thomas Henry Shevlin, was treasurer and general manager. Beginning at the foot, he worked his way up in the lumber business until he became one of its leaders in the United States, his interests extending from New York to the Pacific Coast. After spending two years at Muskegon, he was transferred to Minneapolis, Minn., and later became vice president of the Shevlin-Carpenter Company, the J. Neils Lumber Company, and, in association with Frank P. Hixon, of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company. In 1907 he removed to Portland, Oreg., and there organized the E. C. Shevlin Lumber Company, which was succeeded by the Shevlin-Hixon Lumber Company of Bend, Oreg. At the time of his death he was vice president of the company at Bend and also of the Crookston Lumber Company of Minneapolis, and in addition controlled extensive interests of his own.

Mr. Shevlin took an active part in the club life of Portland, his clubs including the Arlington, Multnomah Athletic, and Waverly Country Clubs. His religious affiliations were with the Presbyterian Church.

He married 4 December 1895 Harriet A. Hall, daughter of Stephen Crosby Hall (who, as president of the Stephen C. Hall Lumber Company, had been his first employer) and sister of Alice A. (Hall) Shevlin, the wife of his brother, Thomas Henry Shevlin. Mrs. Shevlin survives her husband, together with two sons, Crosby H. Shevlin of Bend, Oreg., and Edwin L. Shevlin, who is connected with the Shevlin interests in New York City.

Frederick M. P. Taylor, of Colorado Springs, Colo., elected a life member 17 August 1926, was born at Plainfield, N. J., 12 June 1877, the son of Morgan S. and Mary S. (Pike) Taylor, and died at Winchester, Mass., 28 January 1927.

He was a descendant of Edward[1] Taylor, who came from London, England, in 1692, and settled at Garret's Hill, Middletown, N. J., where he died in 1710, through Edward,[2] who died at Shrewsbury, N. J., Hon. John,[3] who settled at Charlton, Saratoga Co., N. Y. in 1774, where he was judge of the County Court from 1809 to 1818, Richard,[4] a merchant at Delphi, N. Y., Rev. Elisha E. L.,[5] and Morgan S.,[6] his father, who was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., married Mary S. Pike, a native of Calais, Me., and died at Plainfield, N. J., in 1894.

For ten years before his death Mr. Taylor was engaged in the bond business at Colorado Springs. He was exceedingly interested in the Boy Scouts, the Salvation Army, the Nutrition Camp of Colorado Springs, and the American Red Cross. His recreations were of the out-of-door character, such as golf, hunting, and fishing. His clubs included the El Paso, the Cooking, the Broadmoor Golf, and the Cheyenne Mountain Country Clubs, as well as the Rocky Mountain Club of New York City; and he was also a life member of the Audubon Society and of the Museum of Natural History and a member of the Association for the Protection of the Adirondacks.

He married 21 April 1903 Alice Bemis, daughter of Judson Moss and Alice (Cogswell) Bemis, who survives him, together with their only child, Alice Doree Taylor.

Hon. Simeon Eben Baldwin, B.A., M.A., LL.D., of New Haven, Conn., elected a resident member 3 November 1869 and made a life member in 1872, was born at New Haven 5 February 1840, the youngest son of Hon. Roger Sherman and Emily (Perkins) Baldwin, and died there 30 January 1927.

He was a distinguished member of a notable family of jurists, and counted among his ancestors four governors of his native State. His immigrant ancestor of the Baldwin name was John[1] Baldwin, an early settler at Guilford, Conn., who moved to Norwich, Conn., about 1660; and from him the subject of this memoir was descended through Thomas[2] of Norwich, Ebenezer,[3] Hon. Simeon[4] of New Haven, B.A. (Yale, 1781), M.A. (ib., 1784), lawyer, member (Federalist) of the United States House of Representatives in the Eighth Congress (1803–1805), judge of the Superior and Supreme Courts of Connecticut, mayor of New Haven (1826), who was born at Norwich 14 December 1761, married Rebecca Sherman, daughter of Roger Sherman, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, and died at New Haven 26 May 1851, and Hon. Roger Sherman[5] of New Haven, his father, B.A. (Yale, 1811), M.A. (ib., 1814), LL.D. (Trinity, 1844, and Yale, 1845), lawyer, member of both branches of the Connecticut Legislature, Governor of Connecticut for two terms, United States Senator (1847–1851), presidential elector, casting his vote for Abraham Lincoln (1860), member of the National Peace Congress (1861), who was born at New Haven 4 January 1793 and died there 19 February 1863. Roger Sherman Baldwin married Emily Perkins, daughter of Enoch and Anna (Pitkin) Perkins, granddaughter of Rev. Timothy Pitkin, B.A. (Yale, 1747), M.A. (ib., 1750), great-granddaughter of Gov. William Pitkin and of Rev. Thomas Clap, M.A., the fifth president of Yale College, and a descendant of Gov. George Wyllys and Gov. John Haynes of Connecticut, Gov. Thomas Dudley of the Massachusetts Bay Colony, and Gov. William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony.

Simeon Eben Baldwin was prepared for college at the Hopkins Grammar School in New Haven, and entered Yale, where he attained distinction as a scholar and received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1861 and that of Master of Arts, in course, in 1864. He studied law at Yale, at the Harvard Law School (1862–63), and in his father's office, was admitted to the bar in 1863, and began the practice of his profession in New Haven.

In 1869 an almost lifelong connection with the teaching staff of the Yale Law School began with his appointment as instructor in law, followed three years later (1872) by his promotion to a professorship of law, which, under various titles, he held until 1919, when he was made professor emeritus. During this period of forty-seven years of active teaching his most important work was in constitutional law and private international law, although he gave courses also in corporation law, mercantile law, and wills. In the academic year 1911–12 he held the William E. Dodge lectureship on the Responsibilities of Citizenship. While holding his professorship of law he served, from time to time, on various State commissions, such as those appointed to revise the statutes of Connecticut, to simplify legal procedure, and to reform the system of taxation; and his successful career at the bar and his ability as a teacher of the law and as a writer on legal and constitutional topics led to his appointment, in 1893, as an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Errors of Connecticut. Fourteen years later, in 1907, he was made chief justice of the same court, an office from which he was obliged by law to retire in 1910, when he had reached the age of seventy years.

His service to his native State did not end, however, with his retirement from the bench. His father had been one of the founders of the Republican Party, and in his early years he, too, had been a Republican; but in 1884 he was one of the leaders of the independent Republicans of Connecticut who refused to accept Blaine as the party candidate for the Presidency and gave their support to Cleveland. Now, in 1910, the Democrats of Connecticut made Chief Justice Baldwin their nominee for Governor, and he was elected to this office and reëlected two years later, serving his State for four years (1911–1914) as its chief magistrate. At the Democratic National Convention in Baltimore in 1912 the votes of Connecticut and Vermont were cast for him as a candidate for the presidential nomination, which finally, after a long struggle, was given to Woodrow Wilson. In 1914 he was the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, but was defeated at the polls by his Republican opponent. After the expiration of his second term as Governor he held the chairmanship of an important State commission for the revision of the system of taxation in Connecticut (1915–1917), and then returned to private life, honored and respected as one of the most eminent jurists and distinguished citizens of Connecticut.

Judge Baldwin was sent by the United States Government as a delegate to the International Prison Congresses at Brussels in 1900 and at Budapest in 1905, and he was also a delegate to the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists at the St. Louis Exposition. He had been president of many organizations devoted to work in which he was especially interested, including the New Haven Colony Historical Society (1884–1896), the American Bar Association (1890), of which he was one of the founders in 1878, the American Social Science Association (1897), the International Law Association (1899–1901), the American Historical Association (1905), the Connecticut Academy of Arts and Sciences (1905–1918), the American Political Science Association (1910), and the American Society for the Judicial Settlement of International Disputes (1911–12). He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the American Antiquarian Society, the American Philosophical Society, and the National Institute of Arts and Letters, a corresponding member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, the Colonial Society of Massachusetts, and L'Institut de Droit Comparé, and an associate of the Institute of International Law (1921). From 1907 to 1919 he was director of the Bureau of Comparative Law of the American Bar Association.

He was a voluminous writer and an author of wide repute, especially in the fields of law and political science. Besides his numerous contributions to encyclopædias and periodicals in this and other countries, he published a "Connecticut Digest" (1871), "Cases on Railroad Law" (1896), "Modern Political Institutions" (1898), "American Railroad Law" (1904), "The American Judiciary" (1905), "The Relation of Education to Citizenship" (1912), "The Life and Letters of Simeon Baldwin" (1919), and "The Young Man and the Law" (1919). He was a co-author of "Two Centuries' Growth of American Law" (1901) and of Osborn's "History of Connecticut" (1925).

As far back as 1891, before his elevation to the bench, Harvard University had conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws; when he was Governor of Connecticut he received the same degree from Columbia University in 1911 and from Wesleyan University in 1912; and in 1916 Yale followed the lead of her sister universities and bestowed her highest academic honor on the man who had so ably served both the University and the State.

He was a member of the United Church (North Church, Congregational) on the Green at New Haven, and took an active interest in its work.

Out of his estate of approximately one million dollars he left by his will large sums to Yale University, the Hopkins Grammar School, and various New Haven societies; and he directed that a steel case, locked and sealed, containing his letters and journals, should be placed in the custody of the New Haven Colony Historical Society and should not be opened until fifty years after his death.

He married in Boston, 19 October 1865, Susan Winchester, daughter of Edmund and Harriette Henchman (Mears) Winchester of Boston and a descendant of John[1] Winchester of Muddy River (Brookline), Mass. Mrs. Baldwin survives her husband, together with two of their three children, Roger Sherman, B.A. (Yale, 1890), LL.B (ib., 1893), M.L. (ib., 1894), and Helen Harriet, widow of Warren Randall Gilman of Worcester, Mass., A.B. (Harvard, 1884), M.D. (ib., 1888).

Frederick James Libbie, of Dorchester (Boston), Mass., a resident member since 1900, was born in Philadelphia, Pa., 28 March 1866, the son of Charles Freeman and Julia Augusta (Tinker) Libbie, and died at Lake Worth, Fla., 9 February 1927.

His descent has been traced from John[1] Libby, who was at Richmond Island, Me., as early as 1639, and died in 1682/3, aged 80, through Anthony,[2] who was of Scarborough, Me., in 1676, and later of Portsmouth, N. H., Isaac,[3] who died at Epsom, N. H., Arthur,[4] 1728–1798, of Rye, N. H., Isaac,[5] 1771–1835, of Rye and Candia, N. H., James,[6] 1811–1852, of Candia, N. H., and Lowell, Mass., and Charles Freeman,[7] his father, who was born at Lowell 7 March 1837 and married Julia Augusta Tinker, born at Ellsworth, Me., 30 July 1835, the daughter of Joseph Wescot and Abigail Ross (Jordan) Tinker.

When Frederick James Libbie was only a few months old, the family removed from Philadelphia to East Boston, and there, in due time, the boy attended the Chapman Grammar School, where he was graduated in 1882, and was a pupil for one year at the high school. Then, in 1883, he entered the book-auctioneering business established in Boston by his father, under the firm name of C. F. Libbie & Company, in which he continued until 1920. From 1893 on he compiled or edited nearly all of the book catalogues that were issued by this firm, including many of valuable private libraries. Since 1920 he had sold rare books, specializing in works relating to early American and western history.

He compiled a genealogy entitled "Ancestors and Descendants of Joseph Wescot Tinker," which was privately printed in Boston in 1900.

In November 1888 the family moved from East Boston to Dorchester; and in 1900 he married Henrietta B. Rowe, who died in 1921. Soon after the death of his wife his health began to decline, and he spent the winter months of each year in Florida, where he died.

George French Porter, B.A., of Chicago, Ill., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in Chicago 26 July 1881, the son of Henry Homes and Eliza Thayer (French) Porter, and died there 23 February 1927.

He was a descendant of John[1] Porter, who was at Hingham, Mass., in 1637, was afterwards of Danvers, and died in 1676, aged 80, through Samuel[2] of Salem, who died about 1660, John,[3] 1658–1753, of Danvers and Wenham, Mass., Benjamin,[4] 1691–1778, of Wenham and Boxford, Mass., Moses,[5] Dr. Aaron,[6] 1752–1837, of Biddeford and Portland, Me., who married Pauline King, sister of Hon. Rufus King, the well-known Federalist statesman and diplomat, Rufus King,[7] 1794–1856, of Biddeford and Machias, Me., lawyer, A.B. (Bowdoin, 1813), A.M. (ib., 1816), who married Lucy Hedge, adopted daughter of Hon. Silas Lee of Wiscasset, Me., and Henry Homes,[8] his father, who was born at Machias, Me., 7 December 1835, and married Eliza Thayer French, born at Quincy, Mass., 31 August 1841, the daughter of George Haskell and Elizabeth Emmons (Thayer) French.

George French Porter attended the Chicago public schools, was prepared for college at the Lawrenceville School, Lawrenceville, N. J., entered Yale, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1903.

His father was a banker and railroad builder, and the son began his business career in Chicago in the autumn after his graduation at college. He became secretary, treasurer, and a director of the Chicago Transfer & Clearing Company, the Chicago Union Transfer Railway Company, the Judson Mining Company, and the Nevada Land Company, a director of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, and the Security Bank of Chicago, and a trustee of the Field Museum of Natural History.

In 1912 he was active in the formation of the Progressive Party, was Western treasurer of the Progressive National Committee in that year, and held influential positions in the conventions and committees of that party and later of the Republican Party.

When the United States entered the World War, he resigned his numerous corporation positions and gave his time to the service of the Government. In April 1917 he was appointed assistant to the director of the States Councils Section, Council of National Defense, and later was made chief of the States Councils Section; but in March 1918 he entered the United States Army, receiving a commission as captain in the Chemical Warfare Service. In December 1918 he was honorably discharged from the service.

He then took up again some of his former corporation work, and became again a director of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad, the Judson Mining Company, and the Nevada Land Company. He was a director also of the Chicago Daily News and a trustee of the Art Institute of Chicago.

His clubs included the Chicago Club of Chicago and the University and Knickerbocker Clubs of New York.

He married, at Ootacamund, India, 3 June 1925, Mima de Manziarly, who survives him.

George Johnson Baldwin, of Savannah, Ga., elected a life member 1 March 1927, was born at Savannah 18 August 1856, the son of Daniel Hoard and Kate Alice (Philbrick) Baldwin, and died at Baltimore, Md., 4 March 1927.

He was descended from Dea. Henry[1] Baldwin, who was at Woburn, Mass., in 1641, through Henry,[2] 1664–1739, Henry,[3] 1693–1753, Henry,[4] 1717–1789, Thaddeus,[5] 1758–1827, who moved to Phillipston, Mass., in 1788, Tilly,[6] who was born in 1784 and married Rebecca Hoard, and Daniel Hoard,[7] his father, who was born at Phillipston 19 March 1825 and married Kate Alice Philbrick, born at Savannah 10 May 1830, the daughter of Samuel Philbrick.

He was educated at the Brooklyn Polytechnic Institute, at the C. D. Morris private school, at Mohegan Lake, N. Y., and at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where he took a special course in mining engineering and was affiliated with the Class of 1877. In that year he began work as a chemist with the Woodstock Iron Company of Anniston, Ala., became superintendent of the Bradley Gold Mine of Nacoochee, Ga., in 1878, and in 1879 entered the employ of Baldwin & Company of Savannah, dealers in cotton and naval stores and manufacturers of fertilizers. He became a member of this firm in 1880, and in 1887 organized the Baldwin Fertilizer Company, of which he was president and general manager until 1894. In 1898 he became associated with Stone & Webster of Boston, and later was president of a number of the Southern electric railways and lighting companies operated by them. At the time of his death he was chairman of the Board of Directors of the Savannah Electric & Power Company, and he was a member of the Savannah Cotton Exchange and Board of Trade.

Among other corporations with which he was connected were the American International Corporation of New York, of which he was senior vice president from 1906 to 1922, the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, of which he was president and a director for several years, resigning the presidency in 1922, the New York Shipbuilding Corporation, in which he was made chairman of the Board of Directors in 1916, and the American International Shipbuilding Corporation, of the Board of Directors of which he was chairman from 1917 to 1921, holding this position during the entire period of the construction and operation of the Hog Island shipbuilding yard during the World War. He was a founder and member of the National Marine League and a member and manager of the American Bureau of Shipping.

In his native city he took an active interest in various phases of charitable and educational work. He was the first president of the Associated Charities of Savannah, from 1909 to 1917. He founded and supported the Kate Baldwin Free Kindergarten Association there, and was its president from 1899 until his death. He was influential in the organization of the Savannah Public Library, and was the first chairman, in 1903, of its Board of Managers. From 1913 to 1919 he was a trustee of the Georgia School of Technology.

He was a member of various scientific, educational, and social organizations, including the Georgia and New York Historical Societies, the Oglethorpe, Yacht, and Golf Clubs of Savannah, the Capitol City Club of Atlanta, and the Century and Technology Clubs of New York; and from 1925 on he was also a trustee of the Carnegie Institution of Washington, D. C.

He married 27 June 1882 Lucy Harvie Hull of Savannah and Atlanta, daughter of George Gilmer and Mary Clifford (Alexander) Hull. Two of his children, George Hull Baldwin of Jacksonville, Fla., and Dorothea Clifford Baldwin (now Mrs. David Duryea Irwin of Warren, Ariz.) survive him. Another son, Daniel Hoard Baldwin, died before his father.

Edwin Alfred Daniels, M.D., of Boston, a resident member since 1895, was born at Medway, Mass., 26 October 1852, the son of George Alfred and Amy Ann (Jefferson) Daniels, and died in Boston 6 March 1927.

He traced his descent from Robert[1] Daniels, who was at Watertown, Mass., as early as 1636, moved to Cambridge, Mass., in 1651, and died there in 1655, through Joseph,[2] 1635–1715, of Medway, Ebenezer,[3] 1677–1767, Jeremiah,[4] 1720–1806, Isaiah,[5] Jeremiah,[6] Alfred,[7] 1803–1868, and George Alfred,[8] his father, who was born at Medway 23 April 1826 and died 11 July 1857. Dr. Daniels's mother, Amy Ann Jefferson, was born at Uxbridge, Mass., 13 August 1831, the daughter of Joseph and Susannah (Congdon) Jefferson.

He was educated in the Uxbridge public schools and at the Woburn High School, where he was graduated, and he passed his examinations for admission to Harvard College; but instead of going to college he entered the Harvard Medical School, and received the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1877. Later he spent two winters in Vienna in the study of his profession.

He began the practice of medicine in Medway in 1877 and remained there for nearly ten years, in the course of which he served for several years as a member of the Board of Health and of the School Committee. In 1890 he settled in Boston. In the later years of his life he withdrew from active practice in Boston, but continued his professional work in the summer seasons, which he spent at Islesboro, Me.

In addition to his membership in several medical societies Dr. Daniels belonged to the Massachusetts Horticultural Society and to a number of patriotic societies, including the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants, in which he had held the office of surgeon, the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars, and the Bunker Hill Monument Association. He was a member also of the St. Botolph Club and the Brookline County Club.

He married at Medway, 15 June 1880, Caroline Thompson Le Favor, daughter of Richard Merritt and Edna Jane (Sanford) Le Favor, who survives him. They had one son, Richard Holbrook Daniels, A.B. (Harvard, 1911, as of 1904), who was born 8 June 1881 and died on Long Island, N. Y., 19 January 1927, leaving a widow and five children.

Edward Crosby Johnson, A.B., of Boston, a resident member since 1917, was born in Boston 1 November 1839, the son of Samuel and Charlotte Abigail (Howe) Johnson, and died there 7 March 1927.

He was a descendant of Dea. James[1] Johnson, who received a grant of land in Boston in 1635, was an officer in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company, and died about 1674, through Samuel,[2] who moved to Lynn, Mass., Jonathan[3] of Lynn, Edward,[4] a deputy to the General Court and a member of the Massachusetts Provincial Congress, who was born at Lynn 16 August 1721 and died about 1799, William,[5] a soldier in the Revolution, who was born at Lynn 13 October 1754 and died at Salem in 1800, and Samuel,[6] his father, who was born at Salem 12 March 1792 and died at Brookfield, Mass., 22 August 1869. Samuel[6] Johnson married, 30 June 1825, Charlotte Abigail Howe, born at Brookfield 19 January 1807, the daughter of William and Abigail (Crosby) Howe. He came to Boston a poor boy, became a successful merchant, and left a handsome property at his death.

Edward Crosby Johnson was educated at Thomas Kidder's private school on Chardon Street, Boston, and at the Boston Public Latin School (1851–1856), and, after completing the regular four-years course at Harvard College, received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1860.

In September 1860 he entered the employ of the firm of C. F. Hovey & Company of Boston, with which he was connected during the whole period of his active business life, except during his service in the Union Army, from August 1862 to 16 June 1863. He was first lieutenant in Co. H, Forty-fourth Massachusetts Volunteers, a nine-months' regiment known as the "State Street Regiment," and in May 1863 was promoted to be adjutant. He returned to his position with C. F. Hovey & Company, was admitted as a member of this well-known dry-goods firm in 1870, became president of the company when it was incorporated in 1914, and remained at its head until the business was sold. For fifteen years he was a trustee of the Suffolk Savings Bank, and he was also president of the Johnson Buildings in Boston and a trustee of several estates.

He was active in the affairs of the Old South Church, served as its treasurer for twenty-five years, and took a leading part in the erection of the New Old South edifice on Boylston Street. For several years he was president of the Massachusetts Home for Intemperate Women and one of the vice presidents of the Home for Aged Men in Boston.

He had been a member of many clubs, among which were the Somerset, Algonquin, Country, and University Clubs of Boston, the Harvard Clubs of Boston and New York, and the Nahant Club, but he had resigned his membership in most of these, except the Somerset and Nahant Clubs. He belonged also to the Military Order of the Loyal Legion.

He married in Boston, 14 October 1863, Alice Trevett Robbins, who died 3 February 1891, daughter of Rev. Dr. Chandler and Mary Eliza (Frothingham) Robbins. Three daughters, all of Boston, survive him, namely, Charlotte Howe, widow of Hon. Curtis Guild, LL.D., S.T.D., Governor of Massachusetts, 1906–1908, and Ambassador to Russia, 1911–1913, Alice Cornelia, widow of John Lavalle, and Mary Frothingham, wife of Vittorio Orlandini.

Robert Batcheller, of North Brookfield and Boston, Mass., and of Washington, D. C., a resident member since 1896, was born in Boston 4 October 1861, the son of Alfred Hubbard and Emma (Walker) Batcheller, and died unmarried at Palm Beach, Fla., 8 March 1927.

He was descended from Joseph[1] Batcheller, who came from Canterbury, co. Kent, England, in 1636, and lived at Salem and later at Wenham, Mass., through John,[2] 1638–1698, David,[3] 1673–1766, Capt. Abraham,[4] 1722–1813, of Wenham and Sutton, Mass., Ezra,[5] 1764–1827, of Sutton and North Brookfield, Ezra,[6] 1801–1870, and Alfred Hubbard,[7] his father, who was born at North Brookfield 23 July 1830 and died 22 December 1891. His mother, Emma (Walker) Batcheller, was born in Boston 11 April 1835, the daughter of Hon. Amasa and Hannah (Ambrose) Walker.*

*Hon. Amasa Walker, 1799–1875, of North Brookfield and Boston, Mass., economist and public servant, honorary A.M. (Middlebury, 1850), LL.D. (Amherst, 1867), a member of the Massachusetts House of Representatives in 1849 and of the Massachusetts Senate in 1850, Secretary of State of Massachusetts for two terms, 1851, 1852, a presidential elector (Republican) in 1860, a member (Republican) of the United States House of Representatives, 1862–63, was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 5 February 1851, but resigned his member-

Robert Batcheller was graduated at the Chauncy Hall School, Boston, in 1878, and passed the entrance examinations to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, but went to Yale, where his uncle, Gen. Francis A. Walker, was at that time a professor, and where he took a special course in the Sheffield Scientific School from December 1878 to June 1879.

On leaving Yale he engaged (1879) in the shoe-manufacturing business with his father at North Brookfield. After remaining there three years he was transferred to the Boston office of the firm, but four years later returned to the factory at North Brookfield and acquired a legal residence in that town. In 1889 he was chosen treasurer, clerk, and a director of the E. & A. H. Batcheller Company of Boston and North Brookfield, a shoe-manufacturing corporation organized at that time as the successor of three Batcheller shoe-manufacturing firms, of which the oldest had established the business at North Brookfield in 1819. After 1902 he was not actively identified with any business, but served on the governing boards of various corporations, was a trustee of the Home Savings Bank of Boston, and a director of the Industrial, Rubber Manufacturers, and Cotton & Woollen Manufacturers Mutual Insurance Companies.

He was a selectman of North Brookfield for two years (1887–88) and a trustee of the Free Public Library there for several years; and he was also president of the Quaboag Historical Society, whose field of activity comprised the towns of Brookfield, West Brookfield, North Brookfield, Warren, and New Braintree.

His clubs included the St. Botolph and Union Clubs of Boston and the Brookline Country Club. He spent much of his time during the last twenty-five years of his life in Washington, and he left no near relatives.

Charles Harrison Littlefield, of Lawrence, Mass., elected a resident member in 1886 and made a life member in 1919, was born in Boston 5 January 1843, the son of George and Abigail Haumer (Latham) Littlefield, and died at Andover, Mass., 9 March 1927.

He was a descendant of Edmund[1] Littlefield, who was baptized at Titchfield, co. Hants, England, 27 June 1592, the eldest son of Francis Littlefield, clothier, was at Exeter, N. H., in 1639, and died, probably at Wells, Me., 14 December 1661, through John[2] of Wells, Josiah,[3] John,[4] Eliab,[5] Moses,[6] Aaron,[7] and George,[8] his father, who was born at Kennebunk (then a part of Wells), Me., 31 July 1815, and married Abigail Haumer Latham, born at Norway, Me., 28 January 1815, the daughter of Stephen Latham.

The father of Charles Harrison Littlefield moved from Boston to Lowell, Mass., in 1844, and from Lowell to Lawrence in April 1847, and the boy received his early education in the Lawrence public schools, graduating at the high school in May 1860. His father was a mason, and the son learned the mason's trade with his father in his spare time during his school course. He studied civil engineering in the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University in the academic year 1860–61. Later he was a soldier in the Civil War, enlisting on 6 October 1862 in Co. F, Forty-eighth Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and serving as first sergeant until 3 September 1863, when the company was discharged. In November 1863 he entered a civil engineer's office in Boston, and remained there three years. In 1867 he ship 4 January 1854. He was elected again to resident membership 3 November 1869, and became a life member in 1871. A memoir of him (with portrait) by his son, Gen. Francis Amasa Walker, was published in the Register, vol. 42, pp. 133–141, and an abridgment of this memoir, with an additional note about his marriages and children, may be found in Memorial Biographies of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society, vol. 7, pp. 180–183. His son, Gen. Francis Amasa Walker, M.A., Ph.D., LL.D., the distinguished economist, president of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology from 1881 to 1897, was a resident member of the Society from 1883 until his death, 5 January 1897. (See memoir in the Register, vol. 52, pp. 69–72, with abridgment in Memorial Biographies, vol. 9, pp. 381–384.) — Editor.

began the practice of his profession by himself at Lawrence, maintaining a Boston office also for two years (1868 and 1869). In 1874 he was appointed city engineer of Lawrence, being the first to hold that office, and he took part in the construction of the Lawrence water system. Until 1900 he was actively engaged in work as a civil engineer in Lawrence.

He was a member of the Common Council of Lawrence in 1872, 1873, and 1883, clerk of the Board of Health, 1878–79, an assessor, 1885–1897, and a trustee of the Public Library for several years. The Lawrence Board of Trade selected him as its secretary, 1901–1911, and its treasurer, 1912–13, and in 1914 he became treasurer of the Lawrence Chamber of Commerce.

His interest in military affairs was shown by his connection with the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, in which he was attached to the Sixth Regiment as commissary sergeant from 1871 to 1876, quartermaster sergeant from 1876 to March 1878, and adjutant from March 1878 to March 1885, when he resigned. From 1867 on he was a member of the Grand Army of the Republic.

He attained to high position in the Masonic fraternity, and was recognized as an authority on the history of the Lawrence lodges. For both the twenty-fifth and the fiftieth anniversary celebrations of Grecian Lodge, of which he had become a member in 1864, he prepared and read historical addresses; and for the seventy-fifth anniversary, only a few years ago, he prepared an address, but was unable to read it. He was also a Knight Templar.

In politics he was a Republican; and in religion he was a member of the Universalist denomination and was clerk of the Church of the Good Shepherd for forty-five years. He had been treasurer of the Lawrence City Mission and of the Lawrence Old Residents' Association.

He married at Lewiston, Me., 25 October 1869, Harriet Abbie Steere, daughter of Rev. Martin J. and Harriet (Mayo) Steere, who survives him, together with all their five children, Ella Kimball Littlefield and Mrs. Walter M. Lamont (Frances Georgiana Littlefield), both of Shawsheen Village, Mrs. Ruby Steere (Littlefield) Ralton of Providence, R. I., and George Martin Littlefield and Charles Harrison Littlefield, Jr., both of Lawrence.

Mrs. Frances Wentworth (Wadleigh) Stokes, of Boston, a resident member since 1913, was born in Boston 24 July 1845, the daughter of Albra and Eliza Payson (Brewster) Wadleigh, and died at Brookline, Mass., 13 March 1927.

She traced her descent from Daniel Wadleigh or Wadlin, through his son John Wadleigh, 1739–1815, the latter's son Ebenezer, 1769–1849, of South Berwick, Me., and Ebenezer's son Albra, her father, who was born at South Berwick 12 November 1804 and died in Philadelphia, Pa., 23 July 1864. Albra Wadleigh married at Portsmouth, N. H., 24 January 1826, Eliza Payson Brewster, who was born at Portsmouth 21 March 1809, the daughter of Capt. William and Izette (Noble) Brewster.

Her father's business made it necessary for him to move to Philadelphia about 1850, and the greater part of her life was spent in that city. She was educated at St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., and was married in Philadelphia, 23 June 1868, to Alfred Love Stokes of Philadelphia, son of Edward D. and Esther S. Stokes, who was in the insurance business. She was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in which her brother, Rev. Albra Wadleigh, A.B. (Harvard, 1854), who died in 1873, was a priest.

A daughter, Mrs. Charles Perry Gaither (Mary Wadleigh Stokes) of Brookline, at whose home she died, and a grandson, Perry Stokes Gaither, a student at Yale, survive her.

Albert Franklin Blaisdell, A.B., A.M., M.D., of Winchester, Mass., elected a resident member 29 June 1926, was born at South Hampton, N. H., 31 August 1847, the son of John Harper and Lydia Merrill (Tuxbury) Blaisdell, and died at the Corey Hill Hospital, in Brookline, Mass., 17 March 1927.

He traced his descent from Ralph[1] Blaidsell, who was at Salisbury, Mass., as early as 1640, through Henry[2] of Amesbury, Mass., John[3] of Amesbury, Ralph,[4] 1698–1780, of Kingston, N. H., John,[5] 1733–1799, of Gilford, N. H., Samuel,[6] 1763–1813, of Gilford, John,[7] 1786–1855, of Gilford, and John Harper,[8] his father, who was born at Gilford 17 July 1817 and died at Haverhill, Mass., 29 May 1898, whose first wife, Lydia Merrill Tuxbury, was born at Amesbury, Mass., 12 October 1822, the daughter of Moses M. and Priscilla (Merrill) Tuxbury.

His early education was acquired in the public schools of Haverhill, Mass. After graduating at the high school there in 1865 he entered Dartmouth College, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1869 and that of Master of Arts, in course, in 1872. He taught school for a number of years at Provincetown and Chatham, Mass., then studied medicine at the Harvard Medical School, and was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1879. For several years he practised his profession in Providence, R. I., and, while living there, he was a member of the School Committee and chairman of the Night School Committee for several years and gave lectures on educational and medical topics. In 1893 he retired from active medical practice, removed to Winchester, Mass., and devoted himself to the writing of textbooks, a work to which he had already given much time for many years. His first textbook, on English and American literature, which was published in 1879, has been continuously in print ever since, and among his other books may be mentioned a series of five textbooks on physiology, adapted for use in the various school grades. In his later years he wrote a number of story books of English and American history, for supplementary reading in the schools, the last one, entitled "Boys and Girls in American History," appearing in the year of his death.

Dr. Blaisdell was a member of the School Committee of Winchester from 1901 to 1907, of the Finance Committee of the town in 1909 and 1910, and of other town committees from time to time. He belonged to the First Congregational Church of Winchester and to the Masonic fraternity, and he had been president of the Manuscript Club of Boston. His library was the largest private collection of books in Winchester. He was interested in genealogy; and gardening (especially the cultivation of roses) was his favorite form of outdoor recreation.

He married 17 December 1879 Mary Atwood Emery of Chatham, who was born at Chatham 26 December 1852 and died in 1919, daughter of John and Mary (Atwood) Emery. A son, John Harper Blaisdell of Winchester, A.B. (Dartmouth, 1907), M.D. (Harvard, 1911), a selectman and chairman of the Board of Health of Winchester, who was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 5 January 1926, survives him.

Frank Eugene Best, of Oak Park, Ill., a resident member since 1925, was born at Rundels, a small village near Springboro, Crawford Co., Pa., 6 December 1860, the son of Samuel and Lucinda (West) Best, and died in Chicago, Ill., 18 March 1927.

His grandfather, Charles Best, of Petersville, Northampton Co., Pa., married Peggy Whiteside, who was born 29 March 1813, the daughter of James Whiteside (born in the parish of Tamderage, co. Armagh, Ireland, in 1781) and his wife Katherine (Schoenenberger) Whiteside (who died in September 1823), daughter of Frederick Schoenenberger. His father, Samuel Best, who was born 6 January 1832 and died in Michigan in the eighties, married in June 1852 Lucinda West, who was born at Rundels 9 March 1832 and died, as the widow of John Lawrence, in Chicago 29 April 1914, the daughter of Henry and Sally (Lord) West.

As a young man Frank Eugene Best taught school for several terms and was afterwards engaged in cheese making and in dairy work. At Springboro, where he grew up, there was a famous stock farm, called "Shadeland," owned by the Powell Brothers, who at that time were probably the largest breeders of high-bred horses and cattle in America and importers of great numbers of foreign draught and coach horses, as well as dealers in race horses. Mr. Best at an early age became interested in horses and their pedigrees, and in 1883 became farm secretary at "Shadeland," a position which he held for seven years. Then for a short time he was in the employ of the late W. B. Fasig, who was holding auction sales of horses at Cleveland, Ohio. In 1891 he entered upon what was to be his life work, when he joined the staff of the American Trotting Register, which, with the "Year Book," had been taken over by the recently formed Register Association, moved from New York, and established in offices in Chicago. After many years of service, which included the compilation of the successive "Year Books," Mr. Best, about ten years before his death, became secretary and treasurer of the Register Association and finally acquired the control of a majority of the shares of its stock. He carried on the work of this company until his health broke down, and then, on 20 December 1926, sold his controlling interest to E. Roland Harriman of New York. During the many years of his connection with this organization he had been the chief compiler of thirty-three "Year Books" and thirteen volumes of the Trotting Register.

In his later years he devoted much time to genealogical research, and published genealogies of the Keep, Amidon, and Nye families. He had planned a compilation of the pedigrees and descendants of all United States Senators and Governors of States from the founding of the Republic to the present day, and, as a preparation for this mammoth undertaking, he had collected a vast amount of records, both manuscript and printed.

Mr. Best had been a member of numerous fraternal orders, societies, and clubs, and, although he had resigned from many of these, at the time of his death he was still a member of eleven fraternal organizations and of the historical societies of Maryland, Virginia, Kentucky, Missouri, and Pennsylvania.

He married at Keepville, Pa., 25 December 1892, Sallie Keep, daughter of Abner Newton and Maranda (Amidon) Keep. Mrs. Best, who survives her husband, was his assistant in the office of the Trotting Register from the beginning of his connection with it, and has been also a prolific writer of poems and songs, many of which have been printed. They had no children.

Charles Albert Brackett, D.M.D., of Newport, R. I., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920 and a benefactor of the Society, was born at Lempster, N. H., 2 January 1850, the only son of Joseph and Lydia Lucretia (Hunt) Brackett, and died at Newport 20 March 1927.

He was seventh in descent from Capt. Richard[1] Brackett, who was in Boston as early as 1632 and was later of Braintree, Mass., through James,[2] 1645–1718, Nathan,[3] 1678–1743, James,[4] 1709–1781, Samuel,[5] 1741–1826, a Revolutionary soldier, who was born at Quincy, Mass., and died at Peterboro, N. H., Josiah,[6] 1779–1855, and Joseph,[7] his father, a farmer of Lempster, N. H., who was born 26 May 1815 and married Lydia Lucretia Hunt.

Charles Albert Brackett received his early education from his parents and in the public schools of his native town, began the study of dentistry under Dr. L. C. Taylor of Holyoke, Mass., where he also took a special course in chemistry at the high school, entered the Harvard Dental School in 1871, and was awarded by Harvard the degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine in 1873. In July 1873 he began the practice of his profession at Newport, and remained in practice there for fifty years, until June 1923.

He had hardly begun his professional career in Newport when he was called to a place on the teaching staff of the Harvard Dental School, with which also he was connected for a half century. He was instructor in dental therapeutics there, 1874–1880, assistant professor, 1880–1883, and professor, 1883–1890, of dental therapeutics, professor of dental pathology, 1890–1919, and professor of oral pathology, 1919–1924. In the last-mentioned year he was made professor emeritus.

His high standing in his profession was further attested in many ways. He was a delegate to the International Medical Congresses in London in 1881 and in Washington in 1887 and a delegate to the World's Columbian Dental Congress in Chicago in 1893. He was a trustee and consulting dental surgeon of the Newport Hospital, and for nine years, from 1888 to 1897, he was president of the Rhode Island State Board of Registration in Dentistry, which he had been instrumental in establishing.

Apart from his professional work he was active in the larger governmental and business life of the community. He was chairman of the committee which drew up a new city charter, and, when this charter was adopted in 1906, he was elected a member of the Representative Council and continued to be a member of that body until the membership was reduced by changes in the charter in 1926. He was an officer in various banking institutions in Newport, a director and president of the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, a trustee and president of the People's Library, and a trustee and former president of the Channing Memorial Church (Unitarian).

He was a member of several dental associations, including those of New England, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, and New Hampshire; he had been president of the American Academy of Dental Science; and he belonged naturally to the Harvard Club of Rhode Island, of which he had been president, and to the Harvard Club of Boston.

Dr. Brackett married 3 February 1886 Mary Irish Spencer, who survives him, daughter of Charles A. and Lydia (King) Spencer of Newport. They had no children.

Most Rev. Mgr. Robert Seton, J.U.B., D.D., LL.D., of Convent, N. J., Archbishop of Heliopolis, elected a corresponding member 5 October 1881, being then of Jersey City, N. J., was born at Pisa, in the Grand Duchy of Tuscany (now in the Kingdom of Italy), 28 August 1839, the son of William and Emily (Prime) Seton, and died at Convent 22 March 1927.

He traced his descent from the ancient Scottish family of Seton, through a cadet branch, the Setons of Parbroath in Fifeshire, and his earliest American ancestor of the name was his great-grandfather, William[1] Seton, who was in New York City in 1758, married Rebecca Curzon of Baltimore, Md., was a Loyalist during the Revolution, and founded the firm of Seton, Maitland & Company. William[2] Seton, 1768–1803, grandfather of the subject of this memoir, an eminent merchant in New York City, was born at sea and died at Pisa. He married Elizabeth Bayley, daughter of Richard Bayley, M.D., of New York. His son, William[3] Seton, father of Archbishop Seton, for some years an officer in the United States Navy, was born in New York City 25 November 1796 and died there 13 January 1868. He married Emily Prime, who was born in New York City 26 June 1804 and died in the South of France 28 November 1854, the daughter of Nathaniel Prime, founder of the banking house of Prime, Ward & King, and a descendant of Mark Prime, who was at Rowley, Mass., as early as 1643.

Archbishop Seton's early education was carried on at his home, under private tutors, and then he spent two years at Mount St. Mary's College, an old Roman Catholic institution near Emmitsburg, Frederick Co., Md. He continued his education in Europe, and for three years was a day scholar at the Lycée de Pau, in the South of France, and for one year a student at the Royal College of Vergara, in the North of Spain. In 1856 he was matriculated at the University of Bonn, in Rhenish Prussia, and studied in Germany for two years. He then went to Rome, in order to prepare for holy orders in the Roman Catholic Church; and he was the first student to be entered in the books of the newly founded American College in Rome, which was opened 8 December 1859. In November 1861 he was transferred to the Pontifical Academy of Noble Ecclesiastics, a staff college, as it were, of the Holy See for the higher education of young clergymen of good families, those who were later to hold the high offices in the Church. Admission to this academy was by appointment of the Pope, on the recommendation of a cardinal, and Robert Seton was the first American to be enrolled as a student there. In June 1867 he was graduated there, receiving the degrees of Bachelor of Civil and Canon Law (J.U.B.) and Doctor of Divinity. The honorary degree of Doctor of Laws was conferred on him by Seton Hall College, South Orange, N. J., in 1881, and by the University of Notre Dame, at Notre Dame, Ind., in 1893.

In April 1865, while still a student at the Pontifical Academy, he was ordained to the priesthood, and in November 1866 was made a private chamberlain of Pope Pius IX. In August 1867 he was appointed prothonotary apostolic of the Holy See. On his return to the United States he served for some years as chaplain to the religious and educational establishment of the Sisters of Charity at Madison, Morris Co., N. J., and at the same time he was for three years lecturer on sacred archæology at Seton Hall College and for one year professor of ritual at the same institution. Both the house of the Sisters of Charity and Seton Hall College had been founded by his grandmother, Elizabeth (Bayley) Seton. From July 1876 to 1890 he was rector of St. Joseph's Church, in Jersey City, and then went again to Rome. He spent considerable time abroad, and in June 1903 was appointed Archbishop of Heliopolis. He was the dean of all the monsignori in the United States and the first American to become a member of the household of the Pope.

He was the author of "Memoir, Letters and Journal of Elizabeth Seton," 1869, "Roman Essays," 1882, "The Dignity of Labor," 1893, and "An Old Family" (a genealogical study of the Setons), 1899. For some time he was the Roman correspondent of the New York Times, under the pen name of "Fyvie."

Mrs. Isabella Bates (Holden) Corey, of Malden, Mass., a life member since 1911 and a benefactor of the Society, was born at Chelsea, Mass., 11 August 1839, the daughter of Dana and Almira (Cowdry) Holden,* and died at Malden 28 March 1927.

She was a descendant of Richard[1] Holden, who came to New England in 1634, settled finally at Groton, Mass., and died 1 March 1695/6, through Samuel[2] of Groton and Stoneham, Mass., Samuel,[3] 1699–1761, of Stoneham, John,[4] 1738–1807, Ezra,[5] 1782–1853, and Dana,[6] her father, who was born at Malden 20 October 1812 and died 6 September 1887. Her mother, Almira (Cowdry) Holden, was born at South Reading (now Wakefield), Mass., 25 December 1814, was married at South Reading, 12 May 1836, to

*In the Register, vol. 65, p. 106, the Christian name of Mrs. Corey's mother is given incorrectly as Isabella. — Editor.

Dana Holden, then of Malden, and died at Chelsea 30 December 1858, the daughter of Aaron and Elizabeth (Harris) Cowdry.

The subject of this memoir was educated in the public schools of Chelsea, and was married in that city, 11 May 1865, to Deloraine Pendre Corey of Malden, merchant, historian, genealogist, who was born in that part of Malden which is now Everett 4 September 1836 and died at Malden 6 May 1910, the son of Solomon Pendre and Martha Skinner (Waite) Corey. Mr. Corey was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 2 December 1863 and was made a life member in 1871. A comprehensive memoir of him, by the late Charles Edward Mann, with portrait, may be found in the REGISTER of April 1911 (vol. 65, pp. 103–107), and a tablet to his memory has been placed on one of the book-stacks in the Library of the Society.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Corey were deeply interested in various religious, charitable, and educational institutions, especially in their home city of Malden. Their only child, Arthur Deloraine Corey, A.B. (Harvard, 1886), A.M. (ib., 1887), Ph.D. (University of Berlin, 1891), who was born at Malden 13 April 1866, ranked fifth in his class at Harvard, and was especially distinguished in classical studies, died at his home in Malden, after a very short illness, 17 August 1891, soon after his return from Europe; and in her will Mrs. Corey bequeathed $25,000 to Harvard College, to establish the Arthur D. Corey Scholarship for the education abroad of some meritorious graduate of Harvard. She also left $30,000 to the Converse Memorial Library in Malden, for book funds that should bear the names of her husband and son; and among other legacies in her will were $16,000 to the Malden Young Men's Christian Association, $12,000 to the First Baptist Church of Malden, $10,000 to the Malden Hospital, for free beds, and smaller sums to other charities and worthy organizations. The residue of her estate she bequeathed to the Malden Public Library.

Mrs. Corey's nearest surviving relatives are a brother, Leverett Dana Holden, city clerk of Chelsea, and a sister, Mrs. Alvin E. Bliss of Malden.

CHARLES W. HOLTZER, of Brookline, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Karlsruhe, Baden, 26 August 1848, the son of William and Emma (Wagner) Holtzer, and died at Brookline 31 March 1927.

He was educated in private schools and at the Institute La Fontaine, and came to the United States in 1866. After remaining six months in New York he came on to Boston, where for two years he was engaged in experimental work on artillery ammunition. Then he entered the employ of George M. Stevens, who made tower clocks and similar machines, and was afterwards with E. S. Ritchie & Sons of Boston, instrument makers. In March 1875 he began, on his own account, to manufacture electrical apparatus and machinery in Brookline. In 1889 this business was incorporated under the name of Holtzer-Cabot Electric Company, with headquarters in Boston, and grew until its employees numbered several hundred. Mr. Holtzer is said to have constructed and driven the first electric automobile made in the United States. In later years he was interested in the manufacture of radio apparatus at Jamaica Plain.

He was a director of the Brookline Trust Company, a trustee of the Brookline Savings Bank, and a member of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, the German Aid Society, the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics Association, the Boston Society of Arts, the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, and the Verein Deutscher Elektrotechniker. His clubs included the Boston City Club and the Engineers' Club, and he was a member of various Masonic organizations. He was a Republican and a Congregationalist, and had made his home in Brookline for many years.

He married in Boston, 19 July 1869, Barbara Agnes Rick of Boston, daughter of George and Frances Rick, both of whom were born in Germany. Mrs. Holtzer survived her husband, but died at Brookline 19 April 1928.

Lyman Bullock Goff, A.M., of Pawtucket, R. I., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Rehoboth, Mass., 19 October 1841, the son of Hon. Darius and Harriet (Lee) Goff, and died at Pawtucket 2 April 1927.

He belonged to a family of manufacturers which has made Pawtucket famous as an industrial centre. His grandfather, Lieut. Richard Goff, who married Mehetabel Bullock, set up a fulling mill at Rehoboth before 1776, added a cloth-dressing mill in 1790, and, with others, established the third cotton mill in the country. His father, Hon. Darius Goff, cotton manufacturer, who was born 10 May 1809, married, as his second wife, Harriet Lee, daughter of Israel Lee of Dighton, Mass., and died at Pawtucket 14 April 1891, moved to Pawtucket about 1846, and was called the "father of Pawtucket's modern industrial life."

Lyman Bullock Goff attended the public schools of Pawtucket, and entered Brown University, where he was affiliated with the Class of 1862. He did not graduate, however, with his class, but, with his brother, Darius Lee Goff, and another classmate, received the degree of Master of Arts by special vote in 1890. In the autumn of 1862, when returning from a hunting trip, he served in Dakota in the Sioux War. For a time he was a clerk and salesman in the employ of his father, but in 1872 he was admitted as a partner with his father and brother in the firm of D. Goff & Sons. In 1880 he was made treasurer and in 1891 president of the Union Wadding Company of Pawtucket, which produced great quantities of cotton batting in mills at Pawtucket and at Augusta, Ga.; and in the course of his business career he was president or director of several other manufacturing companies and banking institutions. He was also vice president of the Home Market Club of Boston.

As a Republican he represented Pawtucket in the Rhode Island Legislature in 1888, and he was a presidential elector in the same year. He also served through three consecutive administrations on the Advisory Committee of the Republican National Committee. In 1891 he declined to be a candidate for the office of Lieutenant Governor of Rhode Island. In 1893 he was a national commissioner to the World's Columbian Exposition in Chicago.

From 1872 to 1875 he was the commander of the Tower Light Battery, and he held the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Rhode Island Militia, commanding the battalion of Light Artillery, until it was disbanded by State law.

In 1890 he organized the Pawtucket Boys' Club, a club for the working boys and newsboys, and in 1901 he purchased the Morton estate and erected, as a memorial to his only son, a four-story building, which he equipped for club purposes and conveyed to this club. He was a generous benefactor of the Congregational Church, both in its local and in its wider work.

Mr. Goff married 14 December 1864 Almira Wheaton Thornton, who died at Pawtucket 10 December 1921, daughter of Jesse Smith and Elizabeth Viall (Merry) Thornton of Pawtucket. His only son, Lyman Thornton Goff, died 6 June 1900, leaving a widow and a daughter; but his only daughter, Elizabeth Lee Goff, who is the widow of Kenneth Foster Wood of Pawtucket and has two daughters, survives her parents.

Mrs. Marion (Fobes) Brainerd, of Portland, Me., elected a resident member in 1911 and made a life member in 1917, was born at Portland 15 January 1874, the daughter of Leander Webster and E. Adelaide (Melcher) Fobes, and died there 4 April 1927.

She was a descendant of John[1] Fobes, who was at Duxbury in the Plymouth Colony in 1636 and was later at Bridgewater, where he died in 1662, through Edward[2] of Bridgewater, Joshua,[3] Joshua,[4] Dea. Daniel,[5] 1742–1814, who died at Paris, Me., Amasa,[6] 1777–1858, who died at Portland, Hon. Charles,[7] 1802–1889, who was born at Paris, married, as his second wife, Hannah Webster, and died at Portland, and Leander Webster,[8] her father, who was born at Portland 16 August 1843 and died there 3 June 1914. Her mother, E. Adelaide Melcher, who was married to Leander Webster Fobes 23 October 1867, was born at Freeport, Me., 21 March 1846, the daughter of Dea. Edward Harding Melcher, a well-known shipbuilder of Freeport, and his wife, Harriet Ellen (Soule) Melcher, and a granddaughter of Hon. Rufus Soule of Freeport, a member of both branches of the Maine Legislature and in his day one of the most eminent shipping merchants and shipbuilders of Maine, and a descendant of George Soule of the Mayflower. Through her father Mrs. Brainerd was descended from twelve of the Mayflower Pilgrims, including Myles Standish, John Alden, Richard Warren, Francis Cooke, Edward Doty, and George Soule.

Hon. Charles Fobes, grandfather of Mrs. Brainerd, was a prominent citizen of Portland, and was president of the Portland Steam Packet Company and vice president of the Maine Savings Bank. His son, Leander Webster Fobes, was a commission merchant at Shanghai, China, for four years, engaged in the paint and oil business in Portland after his return to the United States in 1866, and at the time of his death was president of the Burgess-Fobes Company, manufacturers and wholesale dealers in those commodities. He had been president or director of several banking and other corporations, including the Maine Savings Bank, of which he held the presidency until his death. He was a member of the Maine Society, Sons of the American Revolution, and belonged to many Masonic organizations.

Marion Fobes was married in Boston, 9 September 1909, to Lawrence Brainerd, who was born at St. Albans, Vt., 22 September 1874, and died at Cambridge, Mass., 12 March 1925, the youngest son of Hon. Herbert and Anna Maria (Forbes) Brainerd. Her husband, who was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1910 and was made a life member in 1917, was a well-known and successful professional genealogist, and a memoir of him was published in the REGISTER for July 1927 (vol. 81, pp. 351–352). They had no children.

Mr. and Mrs. Brainerd resided at first in the Forest Hills section of Boston, whence they moved to Cambridge. They were affiliated with the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, and Mrs. Brainerd was an authorized Christian Science practitioner. She was also a talented pianist, and often assisted at the entertainments of the Cambridge Musical Club, of which she was a member. She belonged to the Society of Mayflower Descendants, and in the New England Historic Genealogical Society served in the years 1922–1925 as a member of the Committee to Assist the Historian. After the death of Mr. Brainerd she returned to her native city, where she made her home with her mother, who survived her.

INSCRIPTIONS FROM GRAVESTONES AT NEW HARTFORD, CONN.

Hon. William Frederick Brooks of Minneapolis, Minn., died 19 March 1928.
Mrs. Gertrude Carruth (Washburn) Weeks of Boston, Mass., died 24 March 1928.

The Librarian reported that during the month of March 1928 there had been added to the Library and Cabinet of the Society, by gift, eleven volumes, fifty-nine pamphlets, and fifteen miscellaneous articles, and that among the donations were genealogies of Boydstun, Faulkner, Felker, Halsey, Hazen, Makepeace, Price, and Tilton.

After these reports had been accepted, the Chair presented Mrs. Isabelle (Cushman) Nason, a member of the Society and the author of a short play entitled A Social Afternoon in 1790, which was to be given, as the literary feature of the afternoon, by members of the Scituate Women's Club. Mrs. Nason stated that the scene of the play was laid in Scituate, that the events described were based on facts, and that in nearly every instance the parts would be taken by descendants of the characters portrayed.

The play was then given on the platform of Wilder Hall, in a setting representing a Scituate drawing room in 1790; and the ladies of the Scituate Women's Club, in costumes appropriate to the period, acted well their parts, to the great satisfaction and delight of the many members and friends of the Society who were present.

On motion of Charles Nathan Chase the thanks of the Society were extended, by unanimous vote, to Mrs. Nason and to all the ladies who had taken part in the play.

No further business being presented, President Chase, at 3.30 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and invited the members of the Society and their guests to enjoy a Colonial tea served by ladies in costume.

2 May. A stated meeting of the Society was held in Wilder Hall, 9 Ashburton Place, at 2.30 P.M., Hon. James Parker Parmenter, Vice President for Massachusetts, presiding.

The minutes of the meeting of 4 April 1928 were read and approved.

The Recording Secretary reported that since the April meeting the deaths of the following members of the Society had come to his knowledge:

Pilgrim Tercentenary Member

Hon. Alvah Woodbury Sulloway of Franklin, N. H., died 22 April 1928.

Life Members

Mary Elizabeth Emery of Newburyport, Mass., died 16 December 1927.
Charles Edward Benton of Rochester, N. Y., died 6 April 1928.
William Bradford Homer Dowse of Newton, Mass., died 19 April 1928.

Annual Members

Howard Goodell Thompson of Walla Walla, Wash., died 26 December 1926.
Mrs. Elizabeth Adams (Reed) Hubbart of Seattle, Wash., died 15 March 1928.
George Beckwith Stevens of West Roxbury, Mass., died 14 April 1928.

The Librarian reported that during the month of April 1928 there had been added to the Library and Cabinet of the Society, by gift, ten volumes, forty-seven pamphlets, and thirteen miscellaneous articles, and that among the donations were genealogies of Dinsmore, Gilbert, and Pease.

After these reports had been accepted, the Chair presented, as the speaker of the afternoon, Rev. Ulysses Sumner Milburn of Everett, Mass., who in a beautifully illustrated lecture, entitled The Pilgrims in England, Holland, and America, presented an original and attractive treatment of a well-known theme.

No further business requiring attention, Vice President Parmenter, at 4 P.M., declared the meeting dissolved, and refreshments were served to the members of the Society and their guests in the adjoining tea room.

NOTES

It having come to the attention of this Society that certain genealogists and publishers have used the name of the Society in connection with their own enterprises, the Society again desires to state that it has NO genealogical representatives in this country or in England, nor is it in any way connected with any publications other than those that it issues over its own name at 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

It has also been reported to the Society that certain paper salesmen have been telling members of the Society who were seeking durable paper for their publications that the paper used in this periodical is "one hundred per cent wood."

For more than fifty years the paper used for this magazine has been made to order by the same manufacturer, and since 1907 it has been made on the Society's formula and watermarked "N. E. H. G. S. Standard." Sample sheets, selected at random, have been examined by a competent chemist, whose certificates have shown that the paper complies with the requirements of the formula. This formula is in substantial agreement with the recommendations of the Committee on Deterioration of Paper, appointed by the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, & Commerce, whose report (London, 1898) shows an exhaustive study of the subject. The leading German, English, and American chemists who have made a study of the manufacture of paper believe that paper properly made on such specifications will prove sufficiently lasting for publications of permanent value. This Society requires not less than 75% rag fibre, not over 25% wood fibre, freedom from all but the merest trace of chemicals used in the manufacture, and not over 10% clay filler.

Vital Records of Scituate, Mass. — The following entries have been taken from an old record book formerly belonging to Rev. Thomas Clap of Taunton, Mass., which is in the possession of the Old Colony Historical Society. They appear in a list headed "The following Persons Were Married by me Thomas Clap one of His Majesties Justices of the Peace for the County of Plymouth." They correct the reading of one surname printed in the "Vital Records of Scituate," and supply two dates for marriages of which the intentions only are given in volume 2 of the published records.

HISTORICAL INTELLIGENCE

A CATALOGUE OF BRITISH FAMILY HISTORIES. — Under the title "A Catalogue of British Family Histories" the well-known house of John Murray of London has recently published a handy and helpful duodecimo volume of 158 pages, compiled by T. R. Thomson, M.A. The book purports to contain a complete list of family histories published in book form in Great Britain; but it does not include the titles of magazine articles or works produced in America, even if they deal wholly with British families. The titles of American books on British families may be found, as American genealogists know, in the bibliography issued by the Library of Congress. The little book by Mr. Thomson forms a useful supplement to Marshall's "Genealogists' Guide," and a copy of it has been presented to the Library of the New England Historic Genealogical Society by Mr. Sidney A. Kemper of Cambridge, Mass.

GENEALOGIES IN PREPARATION. — Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the United States Government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, and occupation, with places and dates of birth, marriage, residence, and death. All names should be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full name is known.

Bullen. — Philip, of the Island of Jersey and of Charlestown, Mass., 1710 to 1743–49, by Winifred Lovering Holman, 39 Winsor Avenue, Watertown, Mass., for Dana Ripley Bullen of Schenectady, N. Y.

Carpenter. — Joseph, born at Cranston, R. I., 2 Apr. 1756, died at South Scituate, R. I., 14 June 1842, by Mrs. M. W. Adair (Ruth Carpenter), 2 Hamden Circle, Wollaston, Mass.

Clark. — Lieut. William, of Dorchester and Northampton, Mass., 1608–1690, by Winifred Lovering Holman, 39 Winsor Avenue, Watertown, Mass., for Dwight Clark of Washington, D. C.

Gooding. — George, son of Matthew and Joanna, born in England (probably at North Petherton, co. Somerset) in 1633, died at Dighton, Mass., 1 Jan. 1712, by Melvin E. Jones, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass.

Hathaway. — John, son of Nicholas, born in 1617, died at Berkley, Mass., in 1705, by Melvin E. Jones, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass.

Jones. — Robert, born in England (perhaps at Caversham, Oxfordshire), came to Hingham, Mass., in 1637, died at Hingham 17 Nov. 1691, by Melvin E. Jones, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass.

Knapp. — Nicholas, born in England, died at Stamford, Conn., in April 1670, by Ezra Fred Knapp, Syracuse, N. Y.

Reist. — Peter, born along the Rhine in Germany or near Berne in Switzerland about 1700, died at Penn Township, Lancaster Co., Pa., in 1743, by Henry Gerben Reist, 1166 Avon Road, Schenectady, N. Y.

Richards. — Samuel, born in England (probably at Lichfield, co. Stafford) in 1685, died at Norwalk, Conn., in 1761, by Melvin E. Jones, 9 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass.

MYLES STANDISH, A.M., M.D., S.D.

By Edwin Herbert Hall, A.M., Ph.D., LL.D., of Cambridge, Mass.

Myles Standish, of Boston, eminent ophthalmologist, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1885 and at the time of his death a Councillor of the Society, was born in Boston 17 October 1851, the eldest child of Francis and Caroline Amanda (Rogers) Standish, and died in Cambridge, Mass., at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Henry Weston, Jr., 26 June 1928.

He was seventh in descent from Capt. Myles[1] Standish, the renowned military leader of the Pilgrims, who died 3 October 1656, through Alexander[2] of Duxbury, Thomas[3] of Pembroke, Mass., David[4] of Pembroke, Lemuel,[5] 1746–1824, who moved to Bath, Me., David,[6] 1775–1849, of Bath, and Francis,[7] his father, who was born at Bath 24 November 1815, married in Boston, 27 January 1847, Caroline Amanda Rogers, and died 17 November 1875. Francis Standish's wife was born in Boston 14 September 1826, the daughter of Benjamin and Caroline (Clift) Rogers, and died 5 February 1866. Of the three younger children of Francis and Caroline Amanda Standish, Frank Winter died in 1875, in his 22d year, Mabel died in 1869, in her 13th year, and Clift died in 1864, in his 7th year.

I saw Standish for the first time in June 1871, when we met at Brunswick, Me., as candidates for admission to the Class of 1875 in Bowdoin College. Like his most famous ancestor, he was short in stature, but, quite unlike our conception at least of the redoubtable Plymouth Captain, this Myles was at that time slight, pale, even frail-looking. He wore, however, a quasi military dress, the uniform of the Roxbury Latin School, whence he had come to Bowdoin.

I should probably not have remembered the particulars mentioned, if Standish had not from the very first attracted my attention by his animated conversation and evident friendliness. As a city boy, he was naturally less timid in his manner than some of the country-bred lads he was falling in with, but he had none of the aloofness which a Boston atmosphere is proverbially supposed to foster. On the contrary, he showed a disposition — and this disposition lasted as long as he lived — to regard all his classmates in a genuinely fraternal spirit, and he was thus preëminently fitted to be, as he was, class secretary for life. He regarded every one of us in the class as worth keeping track of, and to this zeal, maintained through a long and extremely busy professional career, was due the fact that the fiftieth anniversary of our graduation brought to the Bowdoin Commencement every living man who had taken his degree as of 1875, except one.

Standish's roommate all through college was Parker P. Simmons, who also came from eastern Massachusetts. Simmons was a witty, jovial fellow, with a humorous face and a harum-scarum manner, who nevertheless carried a level and rather forceful head. The combined qualities of the two men made their college room a meeting and lounging place for all their neighbors. Standish used, good-naturedly, to say that every man who had occasion to go past their door felt moved to enter and walk at least once around the study table that stood in the middle of the room, a practice which in time left its mark in the shape of an elliptical pathway worn upon or into the carpet. When, late in our Freshman year, a violent clash between the classes of '74 and '75 appeared imminent, this room was the stronghold in which members of '75 awaited the attack, which was threatened but not carried out.

Standish was not a high-ranking scholar, though he had an excellent habit of independent reading, especially in history or stories of travel, but, in addition to the social qualities which I have dwelt upon, he had a marked faculty for practical affairs; matters of business gravitated to his hands and were efficiently dealt with. He had, too, a certain dramatic instinct; he was very effective in declamation — not of the oratorical style but in something with a natural element of the fantastic, "The Jackdaw of Rheims," for example.

His health was not robust during his college days. I think he had some reason to suspect a weakness of the heart, though he found some compensation for this supposed defect in the fact that it enabled him to escape the prescribed military drill which the coming of a military president, Gen. Joshua L. Chamberlain, had imposed on Bowdoin undergraduates. In the moral sense, however, he had a stout heart, and he had need of all its strength to carry him through the next twelve or fifteen years of his life.

I once visited Standish during our college days and thus made the acquaintance of other members of his family. His mother was not living. His father, who as a young man had come from Bath to Boston, with a chest of carpenter's tools for his capital, had become a building contractor on a large scale for his time, had prospered, and was living in a large, handsome house of his own construction, near the Boston & Albany station in Allston. This mansion, for such it was, stood on a slight elevation, and the grounds about it had been laid out by the elder Olmsted. Frank, a younger brother of Myles and the only other living child, was entering business life as a clerk in a Boston firm. He was drowned in the Charles River in the spring of 1875 by the overturning of his sailboat.

If Standish had been perfectly free to choose his own career after leaving college, he would have gone into business, the business of house-furnishing and decorating, and I have no doubt he would have been very successful in it. His father wanted him to study medicine, but told him he could do as he pleased. "I soon found," said Myles, "that I had better please to study medicine." Once engaged in this undertaking, he went on with enthusiasm.

He had hardly begun his professional studies when his father died, killed instantly by some accident caused by a high wind. Myles was thus left as the sole survivor of his immediate family. Moreover, trouble was soon added to sorrow. The financial and business calamities of 1873 and the years immediately following had seriously impaired the family property, especially as Mr. Standish had, I believe, felt in honor bound to make good the losses suffered by a ward whose money he had invested. In fact, Myles now found himself facing threatened bankruptcy. He met the danger in a characteristic way, resolutely, combatively, resourcefully.

Much of the property involved was in real estate. Standish has told me that, while studying medicine days, he studied law nights, finding ways of delaying at least the catastrophe that seemed to impend. He drew his own legal papers, and became a "pretty expert conveyancer." He looked about for ways of making money. He invested in a junk business and it paid; he went into a venture to salvage the cargo of a sunken ship, and this succeeded. In some way he pulled through the worst of his difficulties, though he was no longer the wealthy young man many people still supposed him to be.

His first year after graduation from the Harvard Medical School* was spent as an "interne" at the Carney Hospital in Boston, a Roman Catholic institution. Here he formed a strong suspicion that tuberculosis was contagious. He had noticed that nurses in the tuberculosis wards were very apt to die of tuberculosis. Anyone under fifty years of age may have difficulty in realizing that in 1880 an opinion of this sort was to be treated as rather confidential, not to be noised abroad. Here also he became convinced, partly by experiments upon himself, that headaches are often due to ocular strain, another particular in which he appears to have been somewhat in advance of current medical opinion. This was perhaps the nucleus of his later decision to specialize in ophthalmology. He had great respect and admiration for the devoted "Sisters" at the Carney, and some of the priests whom he met there became his lifelong friends.

Going to Europe in 1880, Standish studied for more than a year in Berlin and Vienna. Then, after a brief experience in general practice, he entered the Eye and Ear Infirmary on Charles Street, Boston, as house surgeon. After a year or two in this capacity he opened an office for private practice, as a specialist in diseases of the eye. This office was on Park Square; he shared it with a Bowdoin classmate,

*He was enrolled as a student in the Harvard Medical School in 1875–1879, and was admitted by Harvard University to the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1879. Meanwhile he had received from Bowdoin College the degree of Master of Arts, in course, in 1878, and in 1910 Bowdoin conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science. — Editor.

Dr. Ernest H. Noyes, who was in general practice. After a time he removed his office to Dartmouth Street and then to St. James Avenue, the better to serve a growing clientele, and later still to Hereford Street. In each of the two latter places he had a private hospital. He has told me that when he retired from practice, in 1922, he had on his office books, which were kept in fireproof and waterproof vaults, records of more than twenty-five thousand patients whom he had personally treated, "enough to fill the Harvard Stadium." Every mechanical contrivance which he considered helpful he had; his office force was strictly trained, and very loyal, their terms of service extending over many years. His waiting room was indeed a place of waiting, often for hours — so many hours that his secretary served tea each afternoon at four o'clock.

Along with his private practice Standish carried a great deal of other professional work. He was connected with the Boston City Hospital and the Massachusetts General Hospital. He was ophthalmic surgeon and later consulting ophthalmic surgeon at the Carney Hospital and did much to build up a large eye clinic there. He was ophthalmic surgeon at the Eye and Ear Infirmary for many years and consulting surgeon there until his death. For many successive summers he taught at the Dartmouth Medical School, holding eye clinics, operating at the local hospital, and lecturing.*

He taught in the Harvard Medical School for many years, being assistant professor of ophthalmology from 1904 to 1909, "Williams Professor of Ophthalmology" from 1909 to 1914, and retiring as professor emeritus in the last-mentioned year. He was president of the American Ophthalmological Society in 1912.

His former associates and pupils bear witness to his noteworthy ability as a teacher in his special field. From the ophthalmic staff of the Eye and Ear Infirmary comes the statement that "he was a man whom all respected, [who] was always ready to give those around him the best of his knowledge. He was a marvellous lecturer, bringing out all the salient points of his subject with clearness and precision. He was ready to give a helping hand to younger men in the profession, and many of his observations and ideas are still evident in the practice of ophthalmology. His name will always be revered and remembered as one of the leaders in American ophthalmology." Dr. Alexander Quackenboss writes that Doctor Standish's "clinical teaching was unsurpassed," that "he was concise and positive in his remarks," and that "he had the faculty of presenting a case to his students in such a manner that it made a lasting impression."

From 1889 to 1901 he was commander of the Ambulance Corps of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, and he brought his department to a high order of efficiency. He had a deep sense of responsibility as a medical man and as a military officer, and he would tolerate nothing inefficient or unseemly within his sphere of authority. For example, though he was not altogether a teetotaller in his private capacity, he would have no liquor in his command at the annual encampments — a measure of austerity that was, I understand, highly exceptional in those days and perhaps somewhat resented by the other officers as implying a rebuke to them.

Mr. Frank L. Gibson of Melrose Highlands, who was sergeant and general assistant to the commander for years, has given me information of interest. The regular uniform of the militia, as of the United States Army in 1889, was blue, but this ambulance corps, on the initiative of Mr. Gibson, adopted a working uniform very like the khaki now so familiar. The object sought was "low visibility," not in the eyes of the enemy — "for," says Mr. Gibson, "we never saw an enemy," but in the eyes of Captain Standish, who was very strict in his inspection. This cooler, lighter uniform attracted much attention and favorable comment from other officers of the Volunteer Militia. Whether this innovation had any influence in promoting the adoption of a similar uniform for the National Army not many years afterward, it would probably be difficult to determine.

Standish, as a specialist in the care of eyes, proposed and put into effect the use of a tinted canvas for his hospital tents. Moreover, he urged this change for the Army in a paper read at a meeting of army surgeons in Washington.* It has long since gone into effect not only for hospital tents but, I believe, for all tents in the military forces of America. Evidence that the enterprise of the Ambulance Corps under Standish had attracted the attention of authorities in Washington is given by a letter from the Surgeon General's office making inquiry concerning a folding litter invented in this corps.

The Massachusetts Ambulance Corps was not called to the front as a whole during the Spanish-American War, but small groups were sent to various Hospital Corps. Those not so detailed rendered efficient service under Captain Standish in receiving Massachusetts troops invalided home from the terrible, fever-stricken camps of the expeditionary forces. Captain Standish was in the Officers' Reserve Corps ready for duty during the Spanish War, and continued a member of the Association of Military Surgeons until his death.

He served the public in still other ways. He early became interested in the problem of artificial illumination, because of his professional solicitude for the care of people's eyes, and was soon recognized as an authority in this field. In 1896 he read a paper on "Light" before the American Academy of Dental Science, and in 1898 a paper on "Artificial Illumination" before the Illuminating Engineering Society. He received letters from all over the world inquiring about the proper coloring and lighting for schoolrooms, libraries, etc., and even recently has replied to such letters at length. In April 1907 the school authorities of Boston appointed a committee, consisting of three oculists and two electricians, to consider the subject of illuminating Boston schoolrooms. Standish, who was chairman, gave an account of the work of this committee in a paper published in Ophthalmology for October 1908.†

*Published in Transactions of the Association of Military Surgeons of the United States for 1896.

†In 1912, when the present building of the New England Historic Genealogical Society was erected, Doctor Standish, with the coöperation of Benjamin B. Hatch, electrical engineer, prescribed the proper coloring for the walls of the various rooms and directed the installation of the electric lights. Neither of the two men made any charge for this service. — EDITOR.

In a communication made in 1897 to the Massachusetts Medical Society, he advocated placing trachoma on the list of contagious diseases, which action would exclude an immigrant having this infliction. This was soon afterward done, and a notable diminution of trachoma cases followed.

Indeed, Standish's whole career, whether in private practice or in a broader field, was characterized by alertness, initiative, and the courage to take responsibility. In speech and in writing, whatever the subject with which he was dealing, he was clear, forcible, and convincing. He was frank, too, and outspoken in condemnation of pretense and obliquity.

He was a man of deep religious faith, and from his boyhood took an active interest in the affairs of the South Congregational Church (Unitarian). He remembered seeing Rev. F. D. Huntington, afterward a bishop in the Protestant Episcopal Church, as pastor of this church, the immediate predecessor of Rev. Edward Everett Hale, of whom Standish always spoke with enthusiasm and affection. I remember his telling gleefully how much Biblical evidence Doctor Hale was able to muster in favor of the practice of running street cars (horse cars) on Sunday, at a time when Boston was anxiously considering whether such an innovation would be wicked. In later years Standish was a loyal parishioner of Rev. Edward Cummings.

It was in connection with this church that Standish met Miss Louise Marston Farwell of Boston, another parishioner, daughter of Asa and Marcia (Piper) Farwell of Boston, to whom he was married by Doctor Hale on 28 April 1890. Their children are Barbara, Lora, Myles, and Alexander. All of these are married and there are six grandchildren.*

His interest in genealogy was aroused in his college days, when he began to collect the records of the Standish family. His genealogical researches were continued in his leisure hours for more than twenty years and bore fruit in his book, "The Standishes of America," which was privately printed in 1895. The still unsolved problem of the parentage and ancestry of Capt. Myles Standish had an especial attraction for him; he had visited the ancient seats of the family in Lancashire and examined the parish registers of that region; and he kept abreast of the latest discoveries and the latest theories about the origin of his famous ancestor.

Doctor Standish was a very active member of the Historic Genealogical Society and served efficiently as a member of various committees for nearly thirty years and as a Councillor, from time to time, for more than ten years. In fact, he cared more for purposeful societies than for society, and, with his love of comradeship and his varied interests, he was naturally an appreciative and valued member of various clubs.*

To sum up, he was a sturdy, kindly, loyal, capable man, the intimate friend of many, the wise, skillful, trusted professional adviser of many thousands, a good citizen, the worthy bearer of a famous name.

[In the following paragraphs a more detailed account of Doctor Standish's services as a member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society is given, and information is added about other societies and activities which interested him and about the members of his immediate family.

Elected a resident member of the Society on 7 January 1885, Doctor Standish was called on, in the course of his more than forty-three years of membership and especially in the last twenty years of his life, to serve the Society in various capacities, and he always responded willingly to the call. For several years he was chairman of the Society's Committee on the Cabinet; and when, at the close of 1902, that committee ceased to exist, he was appointed a member of the Committee on the Library for the following year, and remained on that committee, by successive reappointments, until the close of the year 1911 — nine years in all. In 1912 and 1913 he was chairman of the Committee on Sale of Publications and for the succeeding seven years (1914–1920) a member of the Committee on Epitaphs, of which he was chairman for five years (1916–1920). Meanwhile he had served as a Councillor of the Society for a full term of three years (1906–1908), and on 5 November 1919 was again elected to the Council, to fill a vacancy. On the expiration of this term, in February 1922, he was reëlected for another full term of three years (1922–1924). Then he was, under the provisions of the By-Laws of the Society, ineligible for reëlection until a year had elapsed; but, as soon as the By-Laws permitted, he was elected for another full term (1926–1928), which, however, he did not live to complete. The total length of his service in the Council amounted to more than ten and a half years.

But his most helpful and important work for the Society began with the year 1919 and continued until his health failed in the year preceding his death. In January 1919 he was appointed by the Council a member of the Special Committee on Endowment and Members, a newly established committee of seven, whose duties were "to conduct an active campaign for money to pay off the Society's indebtedness, to obtain members, and to secure special endowment funds." On the recommendation of this committee the By-Laws of the Society were amended in the early part of 1919 by increasing the annual dues for new resident members and the life-membership fee for new life members and by establishing a new form of life membership, called Pilgrim Tercentenary membership, the holder of which, in consideration of a fee of $300, had the privilege of transmitting his membership at decease, without further payment of dues, to the successor whom he might have designated, who in turn could designate his successor, and so on in perpetuity. The fees for admission to this new membership, which was open only to the end of the year 1920, were set aside to form the Pilgrim Tercentenary Memorial Fund of the Society, in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the Landing of the Pilgrims. For nearly two years it was the chief work of the Special Committee on Endowment and Members to secure Pilgrim Tercentenary members and contributions to the Pilgrim Tercentenary Memorial Fund. Doctor Standish was one of nine distinguished Americans in whose names invitations to accept Pilgrim Tercentenary membership were issued; and more than five hundred and sixty men and women in the United States responded favorably to these appeals and thus enabled the Society to render more effective service to the public in its special field of activity. The Special Committee continued its work for the Society along various lines for four years in all (1919–1922), and Doctor Standish was one of its members during this whole period. In 1925 and 1926, when contributions for a fund in commemoration of the sesquicentennial of American Independence were sought by another special committee of which he was a member, he rendered a like service to the Society as one of the sponsors for the invitations which the committee sent out.

Along with his work on these special committees Doctor Standish was a member of two standing committees charged with somewhat similar duties, the Committee on Increase of Membership, of which he was chairman in 1921 and 1922 and of which he remained a member until the end of 1927, and the Committee on Ways and Means, on which he served for five years (1923–1927). In his last years he took great interest also in the work of the Special Committee on Rolls of Membership, of which he was chairman for five years (1923–1927). Thus for some thirty consecutive years Doctor Standish was an active and helpful member of numerous committees of the Society.

To him the Society is also indebted for an appreciative memoir of Miss Helen Frances Kimball of Brookline, Mass., who died 21 January 1925, one of the first group of women admitted to membership in the Society, of which she was a generous benefactor and a Councillor.*

Another organization in which Doctor Standish was especially interested was the Standish Monument Association, to the work of which he gave much time and thought for many years, from the eighties on. As clerk and treasurer of this association he did much to secure for it the necessary financial support, and happily he lived to see its well-considered purposes carried almost to completion. It was, however, an arduous task, requiring long years of patience and perseverance. Among other societies of which he was a member may be mentioned the Society of Mayflower Descendants — he was captain of the Massachusetts Society and captain general of the General Society at the time of his death, the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Wars, the Society for the Preservation of New England Antiquities, the National Guard Association of Massachusetts, the Bostonian Society, the Boston Society of Natural History, the Constitutional Liberty League, the Sentinels of the Republic, and the Good Government Association. In addition to the American Ophthalmological Society and the Association of Military Surgeons, which have been mentioned by Professor Hall in the foregoing memoir, he was a member of the American Medical Association, the Massachusetts Medical Society, and the New England Ophthalmological Society; and his clubs included the Boston Art Club, the University Club of Boston, and the Army and Navy Club of Washington. He belonged also to the Masonic fraternity.

He was the author not only of numerous professional papers which were published in the leading medical journals but also of articles of more general interest, on subjects, such as art, which especially attracted him. His writings, as well as the list of societies with which he was connected, attest the broad range of his sympathies and activities.

Mrs. Standish survives her husband, together with their four children, Barbara, wife of Bradley Merrill Patten, A.B. (Dartmouth, 1911), A.M. (Harvard, 1912), Ph.D. (ib., 1914), Associate Professor of Histology and Embryology at the Western Reserve Medical School, Cleveland, Ohio, Lora, wife of William Henry Weston, Jr., A.B. (Dartmouth, 1911), A.M. (Harvard, 1912), Ph.D. (ib., 1915), Professor of Cryptogamic Botany at Harvard University, Myles, Jr., A.B. (Bowdoin, 1914), M.B.A. (Harvard, 1916), of Detroit, Mich., and Alexander, A.B. (Bowdoin, 1921), also of Detroit. — Editor.]

93. JOSEPH[7] WILLIAMSON (Hon. Joseph,[6] Hon. Joseph,[5] George,[4] Caleb,[3] George,[2] Timothy[1]), of Augusta, Me., lawyer, A.B. (Bowdoin, 1888), A.M. (ib., 1892), born at Belfast, Me., 14 Feb. 1869, died at Augusta 30 July 1914. He married at Augusta, 19 Nov. 1891, VALLIE MARY BURLEIGH, born at

Linneus, Me., 22 June 1868, daughter of Hon. Edwin Chick and Mary Jane (Bither) Burleigh.*

The death of Joseph Williamson's mother, when he was only three years old, led to his being practically adopted by his parents' childless and intimate friends, William Henry Burrill, Esq., and his wife, Rebecca (Atherton) Burrill, who were devoted to him. He was graduated at the Belfast High School and at Bowdoin College in the Class of 1888, and, having studied the family profession at Boston University, with honors, he was admitted to the Waldo County Bar in 1891 and entered his father's office in Belfast. It soon became apparent, however, that the city did not offer sufficient scope for two such lawyers; and Joseph therefore moved in 1893 to Augusta, where he and his wife's brother formed in 1895 the partnership of Williamson & Burleigh. Few were the cases of any importance in Maine in which the litigants on one side or the other did not try to retain this firm. Mr. Williamson was especially happy in court practice, and he also inherited the family literary tastes. He was city clerk of Augusta in 1906, a member of the Board of Trustees of the Lithgow Public Library, a member of the new Public Utilities Commission, a representative in the Maine Legislature in 1911, and county attorney, and in the June preceding his death he was elected one of the Board of Overseers of Bowdoin College. He was also a member of the Maine Historical Society. He was a Democrat and a Unitarian.

Children, born at Augusta:

i. William Burrill,[8] of Augusta, b. 20 Nov. 1892; m. at Augusta, 23 Nov. 1915, Ida Marian Gartley, b. at Prince William Station, N. B., 9 Dec. 1892, daughter of Joseph Elwell and Melissa Ann (Saunders) Gartley. Mr. Williamson was enrolled as a student at Bowdoin College, 1910–1912, and afterwards engaged in business at Augusta.
   Children, b. at Augusta:
   1. William Burrill,[9] b. 9 Nov. 1916.
   2. Joseph, b. 11 Feb. 1919.
   3. Richard Gartley, b. 13 Aug. 1924.

ii. Dorothy Atherton (twin), b. 27 Nov. 1893; d. 29 Nov. 1893.

iii. Lewis Burleigh (twin), b. 27 Nov. 1893; d. 28 Nov. 1893.

iv. Joseph, b. 14 Dec. 1894; d. 19 Mar. 1895.

v. Edwin Burleigh, b. 13 Jan. 1896; d. 2 July 1899.

vi. George Ralph, b. 29 Nov. 1897; d. 28 Dec. 1898.

vii. Robert Byron, of Augusta, lawyer, A.B. (Harvard, 1920), LL.B. (ib., 1923), b. 23 Aug. 1899; m. at Augusta, 2 June 1925, Grace Warren Whitney, b. at West Oldtown, Me., 16 Nov. 1904, daughter of Frank Perley and Winnifred (Robbins) Whitney.
   Child:
   1. Robert Byron,[9] b. at Augusta 19 May 1926.

viii. A son, stillborn 12 Apr. 1909.

*Hon. Edwin Chick Burleigh, after holding several clerical positions in the State government of Maine, served (as a Republican) as State treasurer, 1885–1888, Governor of Maine, 1889–1892, member of the United States House of Representatives from the Third Maine District, 1897–1911, and United States Senator from Maine from 1913 until his death, 16 June 1916.

Apparently Mr. and Mrs. Penniman lived at Cambridge, Mass., in 1882, and her father made his home with them. Mr. Penniman's relatives say that he and his wife were divorced soon after the death of their child, that she went back to the West and was at one time in St. Paul, Minn., and that it is believed that she married again. Mr. Penniman married again twice, and was connected with the Methodist Church Mission at Pittsburgh, Pa. Their only child, Maud Louise Penniman, was b. at Cambridge 12 Oct. 1880 and d. at the age of 7 years.

*The extant funeral records kept by Dr. Haven do not begin until 1781 and cease in 1796, and there are no funeral records for 1782 and 1783. It is hardly likely that the funerals of the other years of his ministry were recorded in other books, for there was ample space in the book that has come down to the present day.

The words giving the causes of deaths have been spelled in the printed copy exactly as in the original records.

THE GORHAMS OF NORTH CAROLINA

Compiled by Mrs. Sarah (Gorham) Webb of Oxford, N. C., and communicated by Burnham Standish Colburn, B.S., C.E., of Biltmore, N. C.

It is the purpose of this article to present a genealogy of the Gorham family of North Carolina, a branch of the New England Gorhams whose immigrant ancestor was Capt. John[1] Gorham of the Plymouth Colony. Capt. John[1] Gorham was baptized at Benefield, Northamptonshire, England, 28 Jan. 1620/1, the son of Ralph Gorham and the grandson of James Gorham. He lived at Plymouth, Marshfield, Yarmouth, and Barnstable in the Plymouth Colony in New England, and died of fever at Swansea in the Plymouth Colony, while serving as a captain in King Philip's War. He was buried at Swansea 5 Feb. 1675/6. He married, in 1643, Desire Howland, eldest daughter of John Howland, the Pilgrim, who came to New England in the Mayflower in 1620, and his wife, Elizabeth (Tilley) Howland, who also came in the Mayflower with her father, John Tilley, and his wife. Desire (Howland) Gorham survived her husband and died at Barnstable 13 Oct. 1683.

The founder of the North Carolina branch of the New England Gorhams was Col. James[5] Gorham, a great-great-grandson of Capt. John[1] and Desire (Howland) Gorham, from whom he was descended through James,[2] who was born at Marshfield 28 Apr. 1650, married at Barnstable, 24 Feb. 1673/4, Hannah Huckins (who survived her husband and died 13 Feb. 1727/8, aged 74, daughter of Thomas Huckins of Barnstable), and died at Barnstable between 4 Nov. 1707, when his will was dated, and 7 Jan. 1707/8, when it was proved, having been in 1703 the richest man in that town, James,[3] who was born at Barnstable 6 Mar. 1676/7, married, 29 Sept. 1707, Mary Joyce (who was born at Yarmouth 19 Sept. 1680 and survived her husband, daughter of Hosea Joyce of Yarmouth and his second wife, Elizabeth (Chipman) Joyce*), and died 10 Sept. 1718, and Capt. Isaac,[4] his father, who was baptized at Barnstable (by that time included, with the other towns of the Plymouth Colony, in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay) 17 Apr. 1715, married at Barnstable, 2 Sept. 1742, as his second wife, Mary Cobb, daughter of Gershom and Hannah (Davis) Cobb of Barnstable, and died in Scotland in Jan. 1753.† Mary Cobb, the mother of Col. James[5] Gorham, was born at Barnstable 14 June 1721 and married secondly, 3 Feb. 1756/7, James Churchill. As the Widow Churchill she was living in the Gorham house at Barnstable as late as 1804, as is proved by the will of her son, Col. James[5] Gorham of North Carolina. With this son, who is given as No. 1 in the following genealogy, the history of the North Carolina Gorhams begins.‡

In the compilation of this article much information has been derived from the records found in two family Bibles, copies of which are given in the Addenda at the end of the genealogy. The first of these Bibles is the family Bible of Dr. John Churchill[6] Gorham (vide infra, No. 2) of Pitt County, N. C., and the other is the family Bible of Maj. Augustus Marion Lewis, who married Sarah Matilda[7] Gorham (vide infra, No. 2, vi), daughter of Dr. John Churchill Gorham. Both of these Bibles are now in the possession of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of North Carolina, having been presented to it by Mrs. Frances Jane (Lewis) Bassett (vide infra, No. 2, vi, 2), daughter of Mrs. Sarah Matilda (Gorham) Lewis. A few other records have been found in another family Bible, and a great amount of data has been secured from living members of the Gorham family. The destruction by fire of the public records of Pitt County prior to 1856 has made it impossible

*Elizabeth Chipman, second wife of Hosea Joyce, was born at Plymouth 24 June 1647 and was baptized at Barnstable 18 Aug. 1650, the eldest child of Elder John and Hope (Howland) Chipman. Her mother was a sister of Desire Howland, who married Capt. John[1] Gorham. Elizabeth (Chipman) Joyce survived her husband, who died in Feb. 1712.

†Capt. Isaac Gorham married (1), 24 Jan. 1738, Hannah Hallett of Yarmouth, who bore to him two daughters and died 19 Aug. 1741, aged 24.

‡For the early generations of the Gorham family of Barnstable see Swift's Genealogical Notes of Barnstable Families, vol. 1, Barnstable, 1888.

to present a complete history of the early Gorham families of that part of the State.

1. Col. James[5] Gorham (Capt. Isaac,[4] James,[3] James,[2] Capt. John[1]), of Pitt County, N. C.,* baptized at Barnstable, Mass., 4 Aug. 1745, died on or after 24 Dec. 1804, the date of his will. He married first, in Massachusetts, Mary Baker, widow, by whom he had no children. She died before he migrated to North Carolina. He married secondly, in North Carolina, about 1792, Mrs. Sarah (Davis) McClure, widow, born 4 Jan. 1757, died 15 Aug. 1820, daughter of James Davis of New Bern, who was known as the father of printing in North Carolina, having served thirty-three years as public printer there and having filled many Colonial, State, and town offices during his life.

By the will of his father, Capt. Isaac Gorham, made in 1751, James[5] Gorham, then only about eight years old, was to receive the family homestead in Barnstable, Mass., when he became of age, subject to the life interest of his mother, Mrs. Mary (Cobb) Gorham, afterwards the wife and widow of James Churchill, in the premises.† The house in Barnstable was built about 1700.

In the Revolution James[5] Gorham was active in North Carolina, both in military and in civil positions. In 1775 he was chairman of the Committee of Safety of Pitt County, and served on the committee for the relief of the town of Boston, Mass., and the committee appointed by Congress for the purchase of firearms. He was a member of the Provincial Congress at New Bern and at Hillsboro. In this same year Congress appointed him major, and he served during the Revolutionary War, attaining the rank of colonel. He was a member of the Great Congress in Halifax County, in 1776, and participated in framing the constitution of the State. He was appointed to various other committees, and served his county, State, and country with honor and faithfulness. In 1778, 1779, 1781, and 1782 he was a member of the North Carolina Legislature.

After the War Colonel Gorham engaged in the shipping business at New Bern, his vessels sailing between England, Nassau in the Bahamas, and the ports of North Carolina, especially Washington. He exported lumber and pine products, and imported general merchandise. He built two ships of native material in eastern North Carolina, and used them in his trade. At the time of the troubles with France, in the administration of President John Adams, some of his vessels were captured by French privateers. He succeeded in acquiring considerable wealth, and owned large tracts of land and a number of slaves. All the records point to a life of plenty and lavishment in those early days.

In his will, dated 24 Dec. 1804, Col. James Gorham directs "That at the death of my mother now living in Barnstable, Mass. that my

Goodspeed

In this article records and a pedigree are presented which show the English ancestry and family connections of Roger Goodspeed, who was at Barnstable in the Plymouth Colony in New England as early as December 1641 and was the founder of a well-known New England family.

From Probate Records

The Will of Thomas Goodspeede of Wingrave, co. Bucks, husbandman, dated 5 January 1604 [1604/5]. To my wife Jane the little portion of land I bought, with the close and profits thereunto belonging, for twelve years after my death, for the bringing up of my children. Then it is to be sold, and out of the same I bequeath to my wife 20 marks, to my son Edward 20 marks, and the residue of the money from the said sale to my other children. The household stuff is to be divided, one half to my wife and one half to my daughters. Executrix: my wife Jane. [Signed] Thomas Goodspeede, his mark. Witnesses: Thomas Theed, his mark, William Goodspeede, John Putnam, Richard Haunce, Bennet Quarryndon, Wm. Heddge. Debts owing to my brother, William Goodspeed, Robert Lukas, Mr. Nicson. Proved 14 April 1606 by the executrix. (Archdeaconry of Bucks, No. 125 [filed will].)

The Will of Nicholas Godsped of Wingrave, co. Bucks, husbandman, dated 20 January 1605/6. To be buried in Wingrave churchyard. To Thomas Collens of Hollingdon, parish of Soulbery, 20 marks, and to his children 12d. each. To the children of John Keene 12d. each. To the children of Robert Seabrocke 12d. each. To my wife Margaret £30 and my messuage in Wingrave, now in the tenure of Edward Jones, for her life. To the poor of Wingrave 10s. To my son-in-law Robert Seabrocke the said messuage after my wife's death, being a lease of one thousand years, purchased of Roger Henshawe of Wingrave. To Joseph Keene £10. Residuary legatees: My wife and the said Robt. Seabrocke. Executor: Robert Seabrocke. Overseers: George Etheridge of Tyscott and George Brocks of Wingrave. Witnesses: George Etheridge, George Brokes, William Heddy, writer. Debts owing by John Keene, Richard Newell of Hadnole, Roger Wygginton of Wigginton, Thomas Hill of Wigginton, Adkins of Berkhamstead, late of Tring, John Newman of Little Gadsden. Proved 17 February 1605/6. (Archdeaconry of Bucks, 1604–5, fo. 91.)

*The entries from 1550 to the end of 1611 in the first volume of these registers are in one handwriting, except for a few entries at the end of the volume, and are evidently copies of the original records. There are comparatively few burial entries, and apparently the burials were not so carefully copied as the baptisms. After December 1611 there are no entries in this volume, except a few written at the end, most of which belong to the years 1649–1652, although the book is supposed to extend to 1656. The second volume of the registers has only scattered entries prior to 1679, when a continuous series of entries begins.

From Court Rolls

Monday in the Feast of St. Dunstan, 26 Henry VI [1447–48]. Court held at Albury.† Rental of Tiscote with Wingrave. Rent of bondmen [sic, ? bondsmen] of William Duncome for land late in the tenure of Richard Gudspede in Aldrewyke, 20s. 4d. (Court Roll, 176/120)

27 September, 30 Henry VIII [1538]. Court Baron of John de Gostwyke, Esq., and Joan, his wife, held at Wyngrave. Nicholas Godspede, juror. To this court came Nicholas Godspede, and took from the lord one pightell or close in Eastwelwyk between the messuage of [illegible] on the west and a virgate of land and meadow in Rowsam and Wyngrave, late in the tenure of Richard Bysshop, paying yearly 16s. and suit of court, and gave as fine ——— [blank] and a heriot when due of 6s. 8d., and did fealty.

20 October, 32 Henry VIII [1540]. Court Baron of the said John Gostwyke held at Wingrave. Nicholas Godspeede, juror.

*This list is much torn, and about three names are torn and illegible for this parish.
†Apparently a court for the Honor of Berkhampstead with Albury and Wingrave.

22 November, 33 Henry VIII [1541]. Court held. Nicholas Godspede, juror.

16 January, 34 Henry VIII [1542/3]. View of frankpledge with court of Sir John Gostwyk, Knight, held at Wingrave. Nicholas Goodspede, juror.

8 December, 3 Edward VI [1549]. Court Baron held at Wyngrave. Nicholas Goodspede, juror.

11 July, 6 Edward VI [1552]. Court Baron held at Wyngrave. Nicholas Goodspede, juror. To this court came Nicholas Goodspede and showed here in court his copy, by which it appears he took a close lying in Eastwellwyk, formerly Richard Bysshop's, and one virgate of land and meadow in Rollosham and Wyngrave, to him and his heirs, rendering yearly 16s. rent and other services. (Court Roll, 155/35.)

7 September, 3 and 4 Philip and Mary [1556]. Court held at Wyngrave. Nicholas Goodspede, juror.

21 July, 4 and 5 Philip and Mary [1557]. Court held at Wyngrave. Nicholas Goodspede, juror.

24 September, 5 and 6 Philip and Mary [1558]. Court held at Wyngrave. It is presented that Nicholas Goodspede, who held by copy a close in Castellwyk [sic, ? Eastwellwyk], late Richard Bishop's, and a virgate of meadow in Rollosham and Wyngrave, by rent of 16s., has died, and there falls due a heriot of 6s. 8d. [illegible]. Copy to Robert Goodspede for life. (Court Roll, 155/36.)

Robert Goodspede was a juror at courts held at Wyngrave on Wednesday in Easter week, 2 Elizabeth [1560], 16 April, 5 Elizabeth [1563], 25 April, 7 Elizabeth [1565], 19 April, 8 Elizabeth [1566], 7 April, 9 Elizabeth [1567], 19 January, 10 Elizabeth [1567/8], 7 October, 10 Elizabeth [1568], and 3 March, 11 Elizabeth [1568/9]. (Court Roll, 155/37.)

Robert Goodspede was a juror at courts held on 25 October, 18 Elizabeth [1576], 23 Elizabeth [1580–81], 20 September, 24 Elizabeth [1582], and 31 October, 24 Elizabeth [1582]. (Court Roll, 155/39.)

17 April, 5 Elizabeth [1563]. Court Baron held at Tiscote [apparently for Tiscote with Wingrave]. John Godspede, juror.

20 September, 12 Elizabeth [1570]. Court Baron held at Tiscote [apparently for Tiscote with Wingrave]. John Goodspeede, juror. (Court Roll, 178/67.)

MISCELLANEOUS

1637. Roger Goodspeed of Wingrave appears in a list of delinquents for nonpayment of the ship money subsidy for Buckinghamshire. (Public Record Office, 273/5.)

From the foregoing records and from a few other records and authorities hereafter cited the following pedigree has been compiled.

1. ——— GOODSPEED, of Wingrave, co. Bucks, married ALICE ———, who was taxed 18d. on goods valued at £3 in the subsidy of 1524–25.

Children:

2. i. WILLIAM.
3. ii. NICHOLAS.

2. William Goodspeed, of Wingrave, co. Bucks, died about 1535. He married Anna ———, who was buried at Wingrave 4 Oct. 1558.

He was taxed 4d. on goods valued at 20s. in the subsidy of 1524–25, and his widow was taxed 1d. in the subsidy of 1545–46.

Children:

4. i. John.
5. ii. Thomas.
iii. Margaret, m. at Wingrave 25 Feb. 1550/1 Robert Hebbes of Tilsworth.

3. Nicholas Goodspeed, of Wingrave, co. Bucks, died between 21 July 1557 and 24 Sept. 1558. The name of his wife is unknown.

He was taxed 4d. on goods valued at 16s. in the subsidy of 1524–25, 10s. [sic] on 14 Nov. 1541, 16d. in 1545–46, 5s. 4d. on goods valued at £8 on 18 Feb. 1545/6, and 5s. 4d. on goods on 23 Mar. 1546/7. He appears on the court rolls as a juror at various times from 27 Sept. 1538 to 21 July 1557, and the land which he held is mentioned in the court rolls of 27 Sept. 1538, 11 July 1552, and (after his death) 24 Sept. 1558, when it descended to Robert Goodspeed [his son].

Children:

6. i. Robert.
ii. Nicholas, of Wingrave, husbandman, the testator of 20 Jan. 1605/6, d. between 20 Jan. and 17 Feb. 1605/6; m. Margaret ———, who was bur. at Wingrave 4 Feb. 1608/9. He was taxed 10s. 8d. on goods valued at £4 on 4 Oct. 1598.

Children, bapt. at Wingrave:

1. Margaret, bapt. 14 Nov. 1568; probably d. before her father, as she is not mentioned in his will; m. at Wingrave, 10 Nov. 1588, John Kyne (or Keene), whose children were legatees in her father's will.
2. Joan, bapt. 21 Sept. 1573; probably d. before her father, as she is not mentioned in his will; probably m. Thomas Collens of Hollingdon, parish of Soulbury [co. Bucks], to whom and to whose children her father left bequests.
3. Alice, bapt. 19 Aug. 1576; probably d. before her father, as she is not mentioned in his will; m. at Wingrave, 12 Sept. 1596, Robert Seabrooke, a legatee, with his children, in the will of her father.

4. John Goodspeed (William), of Wingrave, co. Bucks, was buried there 20 Jan. 1602/3. He married Elizabeth ———.

Children:

i. Elizabeth, bapt. at Wingrave 6 Aug. 1553.
ii. Edward, bur. at Wingrave 27 Dec. 1563.
iii. Margaret, bapt. at Wingrave 16 Aug. 1556.
iv. John, bapt. at Wingrave 27 Aug. 1557.
v. Bennett, bapt. at Wingrave 25 Dec. 1560; m. there, 28 July 1588, Agnes Strange.
vi. William, of Rowsham, co. Bucks, yeoman, the testator of 7 Oct. 1626, bapt. at Wingrave 25 Apr. 1564; d. between 7 Oct. 1626 and 12 June 1628; m. (1) at Drayton-Parslow, co. Bucks, 19 May 1588, Alice Boude (Phillimore's Buckinghamshire Parish Registers, Marriages, vol. 3), who was bur. at Wingrave 17 June 1602; m. (2) at Wingrave, 11 Oct. 1602, ELIZABETH LUCAS, living 7 Oct. 1626. He was probably the William Goodspeed who was taxed 8s. on goods valued at £3 in the subsidies of 17 Oct. 1594, 4 Oct. 1598, 1 Oct. 1599, and 10 Oct. 1600, who contributed 8s. on 16 Aug. 1622 towards the recovery of the Palatinate, and who was taxed 8s. on goods valued at £3 on 15 Mar. 1624/5.

Children by first wife, bapt. at Wingrave:

1. Katherine, bapt. 3 Dec. 1589; m. ———; three daughters, mentioned in her father's will.
2. Elizabeth, bapt. 26 Dec. 1591; m. ——— Brookes; three daughters, Sara, Ann, and Joan Brookes, named in her father's will.
3. Mary, bapt. 19 Dec. 1595; living 7 Oct. 1626; m. ——— Peaseley; two sons, William and Hugh Peaseley, named in her father's will.
4. Joan, bapt. 23 July 1598; m. William Gaffield, who was living 7 Oct. 1626; three children, Susan, Alice, and William Gaffield, named in her father's will.

EARLY BLOCK ISLAND FAMILIES

By G. Andrews Moriarty, Jr., A.M., LL.B., of Newport, R. I.

Much misapprehension appears to exist on the mainland regarding the early inhabitants of Block Island, it being a popular view that they were all fishers and wreckers. Nothing is farther from the truth. Block Island was settled from the towns of Braintree and Dorchester, Mass., in 1661, and its first settlers were of the same sort as those of these towns — no better or worse. Among the promoters of the settlement were several Boston gentlemen, such as Richard Wharton and Richard Bellingham; and at least one early Boston merchant of a very prominent Boston family, John Williams, was one of the first settlers. Such men as Simon Ray and James Sands were men of importance, and their descendants have always occupied prominent positions in the communities in which they have lived. As time went on, the wealthier portion of the community became farmers and the poorer sort fishermen and seamen, and many of the latter class went away, never to return. In the eighteenth century the families of Sands, Ray, and Sheffield, and one branch of the Littlefields were large proprietors, ranking with the planters of Narragansett on the mainland. The town records reveal an ordinary New England seaboard community. The first Rhode Island graduate of Harvard, Rev. Samuel Niles, was a native of the Island.

Some of the first proprietors in Dorchester and Braintree did not go to Block Island in person, but sent agents and factors, among them several of the Scots from the Braintree iron works, who left numerous descendants on the island. Among these may be mentioned William Tosh (McIntosh), Duncan Ross alias Tormut Rose, Alexander Enos (Innis), Duncan McWilliamson, Robert Guttridge, James Danielson, and others.

The history of the Island begins before that of most other parts of New England, for it was visited in 1530 by Verrazano, who named it Claudia, in honor of the mother of King Francis I. In 1614 the Dutch sailor, Adrian Block, visited it, and gave it his name. In 1636 it was invaded by John Endicott, who attacked the native inhabitants without inflicting much injury on them and then claimed it for himself, Major Dennison, William Hathorne, and others, by right of conquest, although it is hard to discover much conquest in this hasty and fleeting visit. This, however, was the basis of the Massachusetts claim of jurisdiction. In 1653 the Dutch trader, Capt. Kempo Sybada, had a trading house on the Island, near the East Beach, that was captured and pillaged by Capt. Edward Hull. In 1660 Dr. John Alcock, A.B. (Harvard, 1646), A.M. (ib., 1649), the well-known Roxbury physician, purchased the Island of Endicott, Dennison, Hathorne, and the others, and associated with himself fifteen others as the original proprietors. The settlers built a shallop at Braintree, sent it around the Cape to Taunton in the spring of 1661, and, going overland to Taunton, embarked there for the Island. Doctor Alcock, who owned one-sixteenth of the Island in the original allotments, did not go himself to live there; but his son-in-law, John Williams, a Boston merchant, did go there to live, built a warehouse, and carried on a trade with Barbados. In 1663 the charter of Rhode Island gave the Island to that Colony, and, although we find a few of the earliest deeds in the Suffolk County Registry in Boston, from 1664 on it was under the jurisdiction of Rhode Island. In later times the town's intercourse was mostly with Newport, Long Island, and the coast towns of Connecticut.

The writer of this article has spent much time in examining the early records of the township, called New Shoreham, and has taken many notes from them regarding the early families of the town. It is his purpose to contribute from time to time papers to the Register on various early families of the Island and also a series of notes taken from the early towns books.* It may here be stated that the vital records published by Arnold contain many errors and should not be relied upon.

I. THE MITCHELL FAMILY

The present article deals with a family which was formerly of considerable importance and is now represented by many persons of the name living on the Island. The account of this family given by Austin is very erroneous. A complete account of all the Mitchells who appear in the New Shoreham records prior to 1740 is here given.

1. Thomas[1] Mitchell, of Block Island, hatter, died prior to 6 May 1687, when in the inventory of John Williams of Newport, filed in the Suffolk County (Mass.) Probate Court, are listed 20 sheep at Block Island, in the keeping of the executors of Thomas Mitchell, running on said island (Suffolk Probate Records, book 10, fo. 341). The name of his wife is unknown.

*In 1924 the New Shoreham town house was burned; but the early records of the town were saved and are now in the vault of the Secretary of State at Providence, R. I., where they are more available than heretofore to searchers.

He may have come to the Island from New London, where a Thomas Mitchell was a shipbuilder. He first appears at a town meeting, 8 Jan. 1677/8. On 19 Apr. 1678 he was found guilty of selling liquor to the Indians. He sued Joseph Billington on a note dated 15, 9 mo. 1677, and entered the suit 5 Mar. 1678/9. This action was commenced on 28 Feb. 1678/9. On 9 Mar. 1679/80 he was found not guilty of causing the death of Ochokomah, an Indian. On 13 Oct. 1680 he was one of the townsmen signing an agreement with James Sands and John Williams. On 23 Feb. 1681/2 he was on a jury, and he was a freeman in 1684.

He had considerable real estate on the Island. On 20 Oct. 1677 Capt. Thomas Terry (one of the proprietors and settlers, afterwards of Freetown, Mass.) acknowledged the sale of one-fourth of his one-sixteenth of the Island to Thomas Mitchell, and stated that he was to give a deed of the same (New Shoreham Records, book 1, p. 463); and on 13 Jan. 1678/9 Thomas Terry, merchant, of New Shoreham, conveyed the same to Thomas Mitchell of New Shoreham, hatter (ib.). On 8 Apr. 1679 John Williams leased to Thomas Mitchel of New Shoreham one-sixteenth of the Island, Mr. Bellingham's share (ib., p. 97). On 1 Jan. 1679/80 Mitchell sold to Josias Helling of New Shoreham 22 acres on the West Side, part of Thomas Terry's share, and received as part consideration 8 acres in Corn Neck (ib., p. 229). On 6 Mar. 1683/4 Robert Guttridge gave a bill of sale of 1 acre near Henry Neale's pond to Thomas Mitchell of New Shoreham, hatter (ib., p. 465).

Children:

2. i. Capt. Thomas,[2] b. about 1660.
3. ii. John, b. about 1664.
4. iii. Joseph, b. about 1669.

Probably several daughters.

2. Capt. Thomas[2] Mitchell (Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham, yeoman, born about 1660, died about 1740. He married, prior to 1682, Margaret ——— (possibly Margaret, daughter of John and Margaret Rathbone), who on 28 May 1716 witnessed, with her husband, the marriage of Job Card and Margery Tosh and on 9 Feb. 1727/8 deposed as to the marriage about 1717 of John Green and Mary Rathbone.*

In Apr. 1686 Thomas and John Mitchell appear in the New Shoreham Records (book 1, p. 138). In 1688 his earmark was recorded. He was admitted a freeman of New Shoreham on 7 Apr. 1690. On 30 Sept. 1691 he signed a petition asking that soldiers be sent to the Island for its protection. On 12 Apr. 1692 he was elected constable of New Shoreham. On 10 Jan. 1692/3 he was on the list of freemen. He was one of those concerned in the building of the new harbor on 3 Sept. 1696, and he is found in the list of freemen that year. On 22 May 1697 he witnessed a bill of sale of a ship built and sold by Thomas Mitchell of New London to Joshua Raymond of New Shoreham. On 9 Apr. 1698 he was given a bounty for blackbirds' heads. On 10 Apr. 1705 he is styled "Sargent," and on 4 Jan. 1705/6 he held the office of townsman. He was on the list of freemen in 1708 and was townsman on 11 July 1710. On 29 Feb. 1715/16 he, with his wife Margaret, mortgaged land to the Colony commissioners. On 28 May 1716 he witnessed the marriage of Job Card and Margery Tosh. On 3 Aug. 1717 he was on a coroner's jury. In 1725 he was deputy from New Shoreham to the General Assembly. On 11 Oct. 1726 he, styled "Justice Mitchell" and "Captain Mitchell," was moderator of a town meeting, and again on 10 Jan. 1726/7. On 19 Oct. 1736 he was deputy to the General Assembly (ib., book 2, p. 258), and on 12 Apr. 1737 he was third townsman.

*It is quite probable that he had an earlier wife, who was the mother of Thomas, George, and Joseph, and that Margaret was mother of Benjamin and Margaret only.

His real estate transactions were numerous, especially towards the latter part of his life, and he divided his real estate among his sons. On 5 Dec. 1698 he bought 70 acres of Nathaniel Niles and on 12 Nov. 1714 he bought 124 acres of James Danielson (ib., book 1, pp. 460, 462). On 23 June 1718 he bought 80 acres at Block Island from James Sands of Oyster Bay, N. Y. (ib., book 2, p. 19). On 8 Sept. 1723 he, with his wife Margaret, conveyed to his brother, Joseph Mitchell of New Shoreham, yeoman, 20 acres of land in the southeastern part of the Island, held by them in common, "which had belonged to their father" (ib., book 2, p. 167). On 23 Sept. 1728 he, styled "Captain Thomas Mitchell," conveyed to his son, "Thomas Mitchell of Boston cheesemonger," 232 acres of land at Block Island (ib., book 2, p. 173). On 17 Feb. 1734/5 he and his wife Margaret conveyed 140 acres at New Shoreham to his son George Mitchell of that town (ib., book 2, p. 245). On 14 June 1722 he, with Caleb Littlefield of New Shoreham, bought 500 acres in North Kingstown, now Exeter, R. I. (North Kingstown Deeds, book 5A, fo. 79), in Jan. or Feb. 1726/7 he conveyed land in North Kingstown to his son Joseph Mitchell of North Kingstown (ib., book 5B, fo. 106), and on 1 Mar. 1735 he, with his wife Margaret, conveyed to his son, Benjamin Mitchell of Newport, hatter, land at North Kingstown (ib., book 7B, fo. 211). On 19 July 1736 he, styled "Captain Thomas Mitchell," and his wife Margaret made an indenture with Thomas Mitchell, Jr., of New Shoreham, yeoman, for three parcels of land, one of 12½ acres lying west of the highway, another of 5 acres at Clay Head, and another of 5 acres on the west side of the Island (New Shoreham Records, book 2, p. 263). On 19 Apr. 1738 he made an indenture with Capt. Tiddeman Hall of Jamestown, R. I. (ib., book 3, p. 15). His death probably took place shortly afterwards.

Children:

5. i. Capt. Thomas,[3] Jr., b. about 1682.
6. ii. George, b. about 1685.
7. iii. Joseph, b. about 1690.

iv. MARGARET, m. 16 June 1726 NATHANIEL LITTLEFIELD of New Shoreham. Her birth is not recorded, but she must have been the child of Thomas and Margaret Mitchell, for the following reasons: by chronology she must have been the daughter either of Capt. Thomas or of one of his brothers, John and Joseph. Joseph left a will, in which neither she nor any of her children are mentioned. In her marriage record she is called "of New Shoreham," but John Mitchell disappeared from the Island as far back as 1707. Furthermore, she could not have been the widow of any Mitchell at this time, and consequently she must have been a child of Capt. Thomas Mitchell and was obviously named for her mother.

v. BENJAMIN, b. 23 Jan. 1710/11. In his birth record he is described as son of Thomas and Margaret. On 1 Mar. 1735 he was of Newport, R. I., when his father conveyed land to him in Kingstown, and on 21 May 1736 he sold the same to his brother, Thomas Mitchell, Jr. (North Kingstown Deeds, book 8A, fo. 171).

3. JOHN[2] MITCHELL (Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham and probably later of Newport, R. I., born about 1664, died before 1708. He married after 1688 and prior to 6 Jan. 1692/3 SARAH ———, possibly daughter of John Rathbone and widow of Samuel George, for on 6 Jan. 1692/3 Sarah Mitchell witnessed a power of attorney from Peter and Mary George (parents of Samuel) to Joshua Raymond (New Shoreham Records, book 1, p. 235), and on 19 Jan. 1693/4 she witnessed Peter George's will (ib., book 1, p. 298). She is probably identical with the Sarah Mitchell of Newport, R. I., widow, whose will was proved 22 Apr. 1718, in which her son John and her daughter Mehitable are mentioned (Newport Town Council, vol. 3, fo. 157 and 196).

He first appears in New Shoreham Records in Apr. 1686, with his brother Thomas (book 1, p. 138). On 30 Sept. 1691 he signed the petition for soldiers, and on 10 Jan. 1692/3 he was admitted a freeman of the town (book 1, p. 202). In Nov. 1693 he was on a coroner's jury, and on 10 July 1694 he was paid for a crow's head. On 4 May 1696 he was on the list of freemen. He was one of those concerned in building the new harbor on 3 Sept. 1696, and is again mentioned in Apr. 1697. On 3 Nov. 1699 he, with his wife Sarah, sold the 8 acres conveyed to his father, Thomas Mitchell, by Josias Helling, as mentioned above (book 1, p. 375). On 7 Mar. 1700 he signed an agreement, together with other inhabitants of New Shoreham, regarding the minister's lot. On 10 Apr. 1705 he was present at a town meeting. On 17 Aug. 1705 he witnessed the marriage of John Rodman and Margaret Gross (book 1, p. 338), and on 20 Mar. 1706/7 he witnessed a deed (book 1, p. 385). This is his last appearance on the Island, and it is most probable that he removed to Newport and died before 1708, when his widow, Sarah Mitchell of Newport, bought land there (Newport Court Files, Mar. 1742, case of Mitchel v. Hammet).

Children:

i. JOHN,[3] m. at Newport, as "John Mitchell of New Shoreham," 19 June 1720, LOIS GREENMAN. In Mar. 1742 John Mitchel of New Providence, mariner, brought suit in Newport for a lot of land bought by his mother, Sarah Mitchel of Newport, widow, in 1708, and left to him by her will in 1718.

Child:

1. Sarah,[4] b. at Newport in Apr. 1721.

ii. MEHITABLE.

4. JOSEPH[2] MITCHELL (Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham, yeoman, born about 1669, died before 28 Apr. 1764. He married first, 5 July 1703, MARY GEORGE, daughter and coheiress of Samuel and Sarah (Rathbone) George, who died prior to 8 May 1740, when her husband was holding the George land by courtesy (New Shoreham Records, book 2, p. 254); and secondly ———, for in the deed of Joseph Mitchell to his son Jonathan, on 14 Apr. 1747, he mentions "land that came with my first wife, Mary George" (ib., book 3, p. 151).

On 30 Sept. 1691 he signed the petition for soldiers. On 3 Sept. 1696 he was one of those concerned in the building of the new harbor. In Apr. 1697 he is mentioned with Thomas and John Mitchell. On 10 Apr. 1705 he was present at a town meeting, as were his brothers John and Sergt. Thomas Mitchell. He was on the list of freemen in 1708. On 28 Sept. 1723 his brother Thomas conveyed to him 20 acres that had belonged to their father (ib., book 2, 167). Thereafter he appears frequently in the New Shoreham records, including the rate lists, up to the time of his death.

In his will, dated 7 Feb. 1757 and proved 28 Apr. 1764, he mentions his eldest son Jonathan, his sons Thomas and Jeremiah, his daughter Mary, wife of Nehemiah Dodge, and his grandson John Mitchell, son of Thomas, then under twenty-one (ib., book 4, p. 60).

Children by first wife:

i. JONATHAN,[3] b. 25 May 1704; m. 13 Jan. 1725/6 ABIGAIL DICKENS, who d. 9 Apr. 1757, in her 60th year.*†

ii. JOHN, b. 19 Aug. 1707; d. probably s.p., apparently before his father. He made his will 7 Feb. 1757.

iii. JEREMIAH, b. about 1710.†

iv. THOMAS, b. 30 May 1712; m. 13 July 1735 DOROTHY DICKENS.†

v. MARY, b. 5 Feb. 1714/15; m. NEHEMIAH DODGE of New Shoreham.

5. CAPT. THOMAS[3] MITCHELL, JR. (Capt. Thomas,[2] Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham and of Boston, Mass., born about 1682, died 29 Mar. 1741, aged 59. He married in Boston, 11 Apr. 1726, Rev. Thomas Foxcroft officiating, MARGARET (———) PECK, widow of Capt. John Peck of Boston.‡ She was resid-

*His son Jonathan was taxed in 1744. He and his son Joseph were admitted freemen of New Shoreham on 15 Apr. 1747.

†Jonathan, Jeremiah, and Thomas Mitchell all left issue, and were the progenitors of the numerous persons of the name now living at New Shoreham. On 23 May 1752 the New Shoreham rate (New Shoreham Records, book 3, p. 216) has the following Mitchells: Jonathan, Joseph (i.e., the son of Jonathan), Jeremiah, Thomas (i.e., the son of Joseph, Sr.), Jonathan (i.e., the son of Jonathan), and Joseph, Sr.

‡By her first husband she had John, Thomas Handasyde, and Ann Peck (bapt. in the Brattle Street Church 19 May 1723). Thomas Handasyde Peck was a Boston feltmonger, who acquired a considerable fortune. He resided on King Street (now State Street), Boston, and was the grandfather of Thomas Handasyde Perkins, a Boston merchant at the close of the eighteenth century. Ann Peck married at New Shoreham, 10 Sept. 1741, Nathaniel Rathbone, and moved to Exeter, ing at New Shoreham on 14 Jan. 1745/6, when she sold land there to Thomas Paine (New Shoreham Records, book 3, p. 132); but by 5 May 1753 she had moved to Newport, R. I., and on that date she joined with her son-in-law, John Franklin of Newport, mariner, and his wife, her daughter Elizabeth, in selling land at New Shoreham (ib., book 3, p. 256). She was living in 1774, when her son Thomas Handasyde Peck made his will.

Capt. Thomas Mitchell, Jr., first appears in the New Shoreham records on 20 Nov. 1712, when, as Thomas Mitchell, Jr., he witnessed a deed (ib., book 1, p. 451). He was admitted a freeman of New Shoreham, with his brother George, on 12 Apr. 1715. On 21 Feb. 1722/3 Thomas Mitchell, Jr., witnessed a deed at New Shoreham (ib., book 2, p. 55). He moved soon afterwards to Boston, where he was married on 11 Apr. 1726. In 1726 he was carrying on the business of a retailer (i.e. innkeeper) on Cornhill, Boston, this having been his wife's business. On 23 Sept. 1728 he is described as "of Boston cheesemonger," in the deed whereby his father conveyed to him 232 acres at New Shoreham (see above), but in a lease made by him to his father of these lands the next day (24 Sept. 1728) he is called "late of Boston." He was certainly in Boston for several years more, as in 1729 his license as retailer there was refused, and his child Elizabeth was baptized in the Brattle Street Church in 1731. He returned soon afterwards to New Shoreham, as on 19 July 1736 an indenture was made by Capt. Thomas Mitchell of New Shoreham, yeoman, and his wife Margaret, with Thomas Mitchell, Jr., of New Shoreham for certain lands that subsequently appear in his will (ib., book 2, p. 263). On 19 Oct. 1736 Thomas Mitchell, Jr., was appointed to audit the town's account with John Pocock and Samuel Dunn (ib., book 2, p. 262). On 29 Sept. 1737 his father, Thomas Mitchell, Sr., of New Shoreham, sold to him land in North Kingstown (North Kingstown Deeds, book 8B, fo. 208).

Thomas Mitchell, Jr., made his will on 16 Feb. 1740/1, and it was proved 4 July 1741 (New Shoreham Records, book 3, p. 59). He describes himself as Thomas Mitchell of New Shoreham, yeoman. He leaves 150 acres in Kingstown bought of his brother, Benjamin Mitchell, and certain land on Block Island bought of his father, Thomas Mitchell (i.e., the land described in the indenture of 19 July 1736 mentioned above), to pay his debts. The rest of his estate went to his wife Margaret, the executrix, and to his two daughters, Margaret and Elizabeth. This will was witnessed by Thomas Mitchell, Jr. (i.e., the son of Joseph Mitchell, his uncle). His gravestone in the Common Burying Ground at New Shoreham describes him as "Captain Thomas Mitchell Jr" and states that he died on 29 Mar. 1741 (1741/2), aged 59 years.

R. I., where her children were born. She subsequently returned to Boston as a widow, d. 13 Nov. 1753, and was bur. in the Granary Burying Ground there. Her estate was administered by her brother, Thomas Handasyde Peck.

Children:

i. MARGARET,[4] b. in Boston 10 Mar. 1727/8; bapt. at the Brattle Street Church 12 Mar. 1727/8; m. at New Shoreham, 30 Oct. 1743, STEPHEN FRANKLIN, son of Abel Franklin of Jamestown, R. I.

ii. ELIZABETH, b. in Boston 4 July 1729; bapt. at the Brattle Street Church 15 July 1729; d. soon afterwards.

iii. ELIZABETH, bapt. at the Brattle Street Church, in Boston, 19 Sept. 1731; m. at Jamestown, R. I., 29 Aug. 1750, JOHN FRANKLIN, son of Abel Franklin. On 5 May 1753 John Franklin was of Newport, R. I., and was called mariner (see above).

6. GEORGE[3] MITCHELL (Capt. Thomas,[2] Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham, was born about 1685. He married, 27 Feb. 1711/12, SARAH MOTT, daughter of Nathaniel Mott of New Shoreham.

He was admitted a freeman at New Shoreham, with his brother Thomas, on 12 Apr. 1715. On 18 Apr. 1717 Thomas Paine of New Shoreham deposed that George Mitchell, together with Daniel Tosh and Dr. James Sweet, had been seized and impressed by the pirate Palsgrave Williams; and Governor Cranston wrote to Governor Shute of Massachusetts, asking him to show mercy to these three men if they should fall into his hands.*

On 17 Feb. 1734/5 Thomas and Margaret Mitchell of New Shoreham conveyed to their son George Mitchell of the same 140 acres there (New Shoreham Records, book 2, p. 245). On 15 Sept. 1737 George Mitchell of New Shoreham and his wife Sarah sold land in that town to William Rock of the same, trader (ib., book 3, p. 5). This is his last appearance in the New Shoreham records, and he probably moved away with his family soon afterwards, perhaps to Long Island, Westchester County, N. Y., or southwestern Connecticut, whither a number went about this time from the Island.

Children:†

i. JOHN,[4] b. 8 Dec. 1712.
ii. REBECCA, b. 20 July 1714.
iii. MORDECAI, b. 23 Mar. 1715/16.
iv. NATHANIEL, b. 25 Dec. 1717.
v. GEORGE, b. 5 Mar. 1720.

7. JOSEPH[3] MITCHELL (Capt. Thomas,[2] Thomas[1]), of New Shoreham and Kingstown, R. I., married at New Shoreham, 27 Nov. 1720, ELIZABETH LAME.

In Jan. or Feb. 1726/7 Thomas Mitchell of New Shoreham

*This Palsgrave Williams was the notorious quartermaster of Bellamy. They had come north together, and, while Williams was kidnapping these men at Block Island, Bellamy, on his way to Boston, was wrecked in the Widah at Wellfleet, Mass. Williams belonged at Block Island, being the son of John and Ann (Alcock) Williams of New Shoreham and Newport. His father had been attorney general of Rhode Island.

†In addition to the children given in the text George Mitchell appears to have had a son, Samuel Mitchell, who married 4 Aug. 1727 Sarah Dodge and had Desire, b. 2 May 1729, and Mary, b. 6 Aug. 1731. On 14 Jan. 1745/6 the New Shoreham town meeting voted that Thomas Dickens demand of Samuel Mitchell what he owes for his sister Rebecca Mitchell, and, if he refuse to pay, he is to be sued, and, on recovery, Dickens is to lay out the money in necessaries for the said Rebecca (New Shoreham Records, book 3, p. 121). This Samuel cannot have been the son of Sarah (Mott) Mitchell, and he was either the son of an unknown first wife of George Mitchell, a conjecture which I think very unlikely, as we have no evidence whatsoever that he was married before he married Sarah Mott, or else, as is highly probable, he was an illegitimate son of George.

conveyed land in North Kingstown to his son Joseph Mitchell of North Kingstown (North Kingstown Deeds, book 5B, fo. 106). On 18 Feb. 1742/3 Joseph Mitchell of New Shoreham, "son of Thomas," is mentioned in the New Shoreham Records (book 3, p. 107).

Child:

i. MARGARET,[4] b. at New Shoreham 19 Jan. 1721/2.

Perhaps other children.

MEMOIRS OF DECEASED MEMBERS OF THE NEW ENGLAND HISTORIC GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY

FRANCIS AUGUSTUS BAYLEY, of Hyannis (Barnstable), Mass., a resident member since 1899, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 13 May 1851, the son of Augustus Ramsay and Sarah (Wells) Bayley, and died at Hyannis 23 April 1927.

He was a descendant of Richard[1] Bayley, who came to New England in the ship Bevis from Southampton in 1638, in the service of Richard Dummer, and settled at Rowley, Mass., through Dea. Joseph[2] of Bradford, Mass., Dea. Richard[3] of Bradford, Richard[4] of Haverhill, Mass., Lieut. Richard[5] of West Haverhill, Mass., Plymouth, N. H., and Berlin, Vt., Simon,[6] who lived at Rumney and Wentworth, N. H., married Selina Ramsay, and died in Boston, and Augustus Ramsay[7] of Cambridge, druggist, his father, who was born at Wentworth 23 May 1818 and died 30 January 1899. Augustus Ramsay Bayley was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 5 January 1876, and a memoir of him, by his son, may be found in the REGISTER, vol. 54, p. cxvii. His wife, Sarah Wells, whom he married in 1847, was born at Truro, Mass., 26 May 1825, the daughter of Capt. Francis and Rachel (Hughes) Wells of Cambridge.

Francis Augustus Bayley attended the Chauncy Hall School in Boston and was a student at the Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard University from 1868 to 1872. He became a civil engineer, and was employed mainly on municipal water supplies, especially those of Boston (together with the Metropolitan Water System) and Cambridge, and, later, of New York City. In 1914 he returned to Cambridge, and, having retired from the practice of his profession, bought in the next year a home at Hyannis, where he resided until his death.

His membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society was a source of great satisfaction to him. His interest in genealogy never flagged, and he was a frequent contributor to the genealogical columns of the Boston Evening Transcript. He was a member for years of the Boston Society of Civil Engineers. In politics he was a Republican, and his religious affiliations were with the Unitarians. Books and his garden kept him occupied and happy. He never married, and his only sister, Helen Louise Bayley of Hyannis, is the last survivor of his father's family.

Solon Osmond Richardson, Jr., of Toledo, Ohio, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at South Reading (now Wakefield), Mass., 11 April 1864, the son of Solon Osmond and Abbie Maria (Foster) Richardson, and died at his summer home in Grayling, Mich., 1 May 1927.

He was descended from Samuel[1] Richardson, who came from England, was in Charlestown, Mass., about 1635, and was an early settler of Woburn, Mass., through Samuel,[2] 1646–1712, of Woburn, Samuel,[3] Samuel,[4] Nathan,[5] Nathan,[5] M.D., of Brookfield, Mass., Solon Osmond,[7] M.D., and Solon Osmond,[8] his father, who was born at South Reading 9 April 1841 and died at Wakefield 1 October 1922. His mother was born at Troy, N. H., 3 April 1843, the daughter of Daniel Dana and Susan (Patch) Foster.

Solon Osmond Richardson, Jr., attended the public schools of Wakefield, and was graduated at the Wakefield High School in 1880. He then entered the employ of the Libbey Glass Company of East Cambridge, Mass., as office boy, and, when the firm removed to Toledo, he went with it, and later became its president. After the merger, in 1892, of his own factory, which he had started in 1890, with the Libbey works, under the name of the Toledo Glass Works, he became treasurer and manager of the combined companies, resigning from these positions shortly before his death. He was also president of the Westlake Machine Company, the Westlake European Machine Company, the Fifty Associates Company, the Revere Building Company, and the Richardson Company, a trustee of the Northwestern Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a lay trustee of the University of Notre Dame, at Notre Dame, Ind.

He rendered public service as a member of the Ohio State Council of National Defense, of the Ohio State Flood Commission at the time of the Dayton flood — he received a Red Cross silver medal from President Wilson for his relief work, and of the Commission on Publicity and Efficiency of the City of Toledo.

He was a former commodore of the Interlake Yachting Association and a member of the New York Yacht Club and of the Navy League of the United States. He was a member of the Society of Sons of the American Revolution, a life member of the National Historical Society and of the Audubon Society, and a member of the Electrical Manufacturers Club, of which he was president, 1912–13.

He married 17 July 1886 Jennie Barrett, daughter of J. Augustus and Caroline A. Barrett. His three children survive him: Solon Osmond, 3d, of Toledo, A.B. (Harvard, 1912, as of 1911), Augustus Barrett of Toledo, A.B. (Harvard, 1912), and Ruby M. Richardson. His elder son, Solon Osmond Richardson, 3d, has succeeded to his father's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society.

Mrs. Louisa Stuart (Towne) Shaw, of Milton, Mass., a life member since 1923, was born at Fitchburg, Mass., 11 April 1857, the daughter of George Edwin and Margaret Alicia (Fitzpatrick) Towne, and died at Milton 5 May 1927.

She traced her descent from William[1] Towne, who married at Yarmouth, co. Norfolk, England, Joanna Blessing, was in Salem, Mass., as early as 1640, and in 1651 removed thence to Topsfield, Mass., where he died about 1672, through Joseph,[2] 1639–1713, of Topsfield, Joseph,[3] Joseph,[4] Archelaus[5] of Topsfield, Mass., and Thompson, Conn., Archelaus,[6] who married Martha Johnson, Abial Johnson[7] of Thompson, Conn., and Boston, Mass., who married Alice Bates, and George Edwin,[8] her father, who was born at Fitchburg 2 September 1829 and died in Boston 25 April 1894. Her mother, Margaret Alicia Fitzpatrick, was born at Frampton, Lower Canada, 12 February 1833, the daughter of John and Jane (Fitzgerald) Fitzpatrick and granddaughter of John and Margaret (McMahon) Fitzpatrick.

She was educated at home by a governess, and in a private school at Wiesbaden, Germany, and was married 3 June 1880 to Henry Southworth Shaw, then of Boston, but later of Milton, manufacturer, who was born in Boston 30 March 1833, the son of Southworth, Jr., and Abby Atwood (Shurtleff) Shaw, and died at Milton 1 June 1923. Mr. Shaw was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1896 and was made a life member in 1911, and a memoir of him, with an extended account of his ancestry, may be found in the REGISTER, vol. 79, pp. 90–92. The family lived in Boston until 1907, when they moved to Milton, where Mr. Shaw had built a home, "The Pines," on Hinckley Road. Their summer home was at Sorrento, Me.

Mrs. Shaw attended the First Parish Church (Unitarian) of Milton, and was a member of the Milton Woman's Club and the Milton Education Society. She had been a director of the Fragment Society, one of the old-time philanthropies of Boston, for more than twenty years.

A son, Henry Southworth Shaw, Jr., A.B. (Harvard, 1906), of Waban (Newton), Mass., and two daughters, Margaret, wife of Arthur M. Allen of Newton Centre, and Eleanor, wife of Charles Hudson Sayre Merrill, S.B. (Massachusetts Institute of Technology, 1912), survive her. Mrs. Merrill has been a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1923.

COL. ALBERT EDMUND HUMPHREYS, D.M.E., LL.D., of Denver, Colo., mining operator, capitalist, philanthropist, a life member since 1925, was born at Sissonville, Kanawha Co., Va. (now W. Va.), 11 January 1860, the son of Ira and Eleanor (Dawson) Humphreys, and died at Denver 8 May 1927.

He was descended from Daniel[1] Humphreys, who was born in Wales about 1660, came to America in 1682, and settled at Haverford, Pa., through Joshua,[2] born in 1707, Joshua,[3] 1751–1838, the famous designer of the Constitution and other ships for the United States Navy, Spicer,[4] a prosperous planter and business man of Virginia, and Ira,[5] his father, who was born in Albemarle County, Va., and removed to what is now West Virginia, where he engaged in milling and mercantile pursuits.

Albert Edmund Humphreys was educated in the public schools and at Marshall College, Huntington, W. Va., and was granted a teacher's certificate before he was sixteen years old. Later he received the honorary degrees of Doctor of Mining Engineering and Doctor of Laws from the Ohio Northern University. At the age of seventeen he went to work in the lumber business, under his father; and ten years later, in 1887, he began his mining operations, with headquarters at Duluth, Minn. He was one of the first to open up the iron deposits on the Vermillion and Mesaba Iron Ranges, and he founded the city of Virginia, Minn. Later he developed metal mines in British Columbia and in Colorado and coal mines in West Virginia, and he also entered the oil business, organizing companies and developing oil fields in Wyoming, Oklahoma, and Texas.

Always faithful, generous, and devoted to his many friends, he never lost interest in the common man or sympathy for the unfortunate. In line with his many philanthropic activities were the organization and endowment, in 1922, of The Humphreys Foundation, for educational, religious, and charitable purposes. He and his wife built the Boyd Memorial Church in Ripley, Ohio; and in association with a cousin, Albert J. Humphreys, he erected the Humphreys Memorial Church at Charleston, W. Va. His religious affiliations were with the Central Christian Church of Denver.

Colonel Humphreys was a thirty-second-degree Mason, and he was also a member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, the Loyal Order of Moose, and the Knights of Pythias. His clubs included several athletic and country clubs in Denver, West Virginia, and Texas.

He married 3 November 1887 Alice K. Boyd of Ripley, Ohio, daughter of Capt. Charles W. and Margaret (Meekin) Boyd of Boyd County, Ohio, who survives him, together with two sons, Ira B. Humphreys, a successful inventor, and Albert E. Humphreys, B.A. (Yale, 1916), of Denver.

Henry Smith Mathewson, B.A., M.D., of Pomfret, Conn., a resident member since 1909, was born at Pomfret 27 February 1867, the son of Edward Payson and Marian Chandler (Holt) Mathewson, and died there 9 May 1927.

He traced his descent from Henry[1] Mathewson or Matteson, who settled at East Greenwich, R. I., about 1678, through Joseph[2] of East Greenwich, Joseph,[3] Joseph[4] of Coventry, R. I., whose wife was Mary Bowen, Darius[5] Mathewson of Canterbury, Brooklyn, and Pomfret, Conn., whose wife was Mary Smith, George Bowen[6] of Coventry and Pomfret, whose wife was Hannah Payson, and Edward Payson,[7] his father, a landholder and farmer, who was born at Pomfret 18 August 1837. His mother, Marian Chandler Holt, was born at Pomfret 20 September 1837, the second daughter and child of Hiram Holt, 1798–1870, physician, of Pomfret, honorary M.D. (Yale, 1834), and his wife, Marian (Chandler) Holt. Mrs. Mathewson's elder sister, Ellen Holt, was the second wife of Henry Chandler Bowen, the well-known proprietor of The Independent and a corresponding member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1858 until his death.

Henry Smith Mathewson was graduated at the Norwich Free Academy, Norwich, Conn., in 1886, entered Yale, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1890. He studied medicine, and was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Medicine by Columbia University in 1893. He entered the United States Public Health and Marine Hospital Service 1 April 1896 as assistant surgeon, and was promoted to be passed assistant surgeon 7 April 1901, surgeon in 1912, and senior surgeon on 24 May 1924. He was stationed, for longer or shorter periods, at many places in the United States, in Porto Rico, and at Liverpool, England; but he maintained a legal residence at Pomfret.

He married, at San Francisco, Calif., 24 December 1898, Helen Washburn, daughter of Frederic Augustus and Mary Jane (Swan) Washburn, who survives him, together with their four children, Hope, B.A. (Wellesley, 1921), B.S. (Simmons, 1923), Marian Chandler, B.A. (Wellesley, 1924), Allen Hunt, S.B. (Bowdoin, 1926), and Helen Washburn.

James Kendall Hosmer, A.B., A.M., Ph.D., LL.D., of Minneapolis, Minn., teacher, historian, man of letters, a corresponding member since 1913, was born at Northfield, Mass., 29 January 1834, the son of Rev. George Washington and Hannah Poor (Kendall) Hosmer, and died at Minneapolis 11 May 1927, in his 94th year.

James[1] Hosmer, the founder of the Hosmer family of Concord, Mass.,* had lived at Hawkhurst, co. Kent, England, and came to New England in the Elizabeth from London, in 1625, aged 28, with his wife Ann, aged 27, two daughters, and two maid servants. He settled at Concord, and died there 7 February 1685. From this immigrant ancestor James Kendall Hosmer was descended through James[2] Hosmer of Concord, who was born in 1637 and was killed by the Indians in the Sudbury fight, in 1676, Thomas,[3] Thomas,[4] who married his second cousin, Prudence Hosmer, Hon. Joseph,[5]

*His brother, Thomas Hosmer, who was at Newtown (Cambridge), Mass., in 1632 and went with Hooker to Hartford, was the founder of the Hosmer family of Connecticut.

1735–1821, who married Lucy Barnes, Cyrus,[6] 1765–1818, who married Patty Barrett, and Rev. George Washington,[7] his father, A.B. (Harvard, 1826), A.M. (ib., 1829), S.T.D. (ib., 1853), who was born at Concord 27 November 1803, married Hannah Poor Kendall of Plymouth, Mass., and died at Canton, Mass., 5 July 1881.

Hon. Joseph[5] Hosmer, great-grandfather of the subject of this memoir, was a Son of Liberty and a patriot of the Revolution. As a lieutenant he commanded a company of Minutemen in the fight at Concord Bridge, 19 April 1775. He was a member of the Committee of Safety, served during the War in the Commissary Department, was for many years a representative and senator in the Massachusetts Legislature, and for fourteen years was sheriff of Middlesex County. His grandson, George Washington[7] Hosmer, after taking his bachelor's degree at Harvard, entered the Harvard Divinity School, where he was graduated in 1830, became an able Unitarian preacher, and was pastor of the First Congregational Church at Northfield, Mass., 1830–1836, and of the Church of Our Father at Buffalo, N. Y., 1836–1866. He served also as nonresident professor of pastoral care at the Meadville (Pa.) Theological School. From 1866 to 1873 he was president of Antioch College, Yellow Springs, Ohio, and held also the chair of history and ethics in that institution. From 1873 to 1879 he was pastor of the Channing Religious Society of Newton, Mass.

James Kendall Hosmer was prepared for college at Buffalo, where for thirty years his father was settled as minister, entered Harvard in 1851, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts with the Class of 1855. From the beginning of their college course Hosmer and his classmate Henry FitzGilbert Waters, afterwards the most eminent antiquarian and genealogist of his time, were intimate friends; and one of Hosmer's most delightful and charming pieces of literary work is the memoir of Waters which he contributed to the Register of January 1914 (vol. 68, pp. 3–17).

After completing his four-years course in Harvard College Hosmer entered the Harvard Divinity School, where he was enrolled as a student in 1855–1857 and in 1858–59, his continuous residence being interrupted for a time by a stay in the West. In 1859 he was graduated at the School, and he remained at Harvard a year longer as a graduate student. In September 1860 he was ordained as a Unitarian minister at Deerfield, Mass., and held his pastorate there until 1866. His ministerial labors were discontinued, however, for almost a year on account of his military service in the Civil War. He enlisted in September 1862 as a private in the Fifty-second Regiment, Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, was made a corporal in October, and was sent to Louisiana, where he took part in the Port Hudson expedition under General Banks. Although detailed for special duty at General Banks's headquarters, he was allowed, at his own request, to remain with his regiment; and, although twice assigned to hospital duty, he participated in many of the operations at the front, including the attack on Port Hudson in June 1863. He was mustered out on 14 August 1863, and resumed his pastoral work at Deerfield. In that historic town he was twice elected a member of the School Committee, first in March 1861, for a three-years term, and again in March 1864, for another three-years term; but he moved away from Deerfield before the end of this second term, giving up his ministry there in 1866 to accept the professorship of rhetoric and English literature at Antioch College, where his father was beginning his service as president. In 1872 he left Antioch College and became professor of English and history at the University of Missouri, and two years later he went to Washington University, in St. Louis, where for eighteen years (1874–1892) he was professor of English and German literature. He then exchanged college teaching for library management, and for some twelve years (1892–1904) was librarian of the Minneapolis Public Library. At the age of seventy he withdrew from active work as a librarian, and thenceforth resided in Washington, D. C., Boston, or Minneapolis, according to the demands of his literary work at various times.*

During Doctor Hosmer's career as a college teacher he visited Europe twice — in 1870 for the purpose of studying in Germany and in 1886 for research in the British Museum and the Public Record Office in London. Along with his work as minister, college professor, and librarian he found time for a prodigious amount of writing, and very early gained distinction and recognition in historical and literary circles. In college he had been the poet of the Institute of 1770 and of the Hasty Pudding Club, and was selected to deliver the class poem at graduation. At the age of twenty-four he wrote an article which was published in The North American Review, and soon afterwards he contributed two articles to The Christian Examiner. His first book, "The Color Guard," published in 1864, was based on his journal as a private in the Civil War, and was warmly commended by eminent writers both in England and in the United States. In 1865 appeared a novel by Hosmer, "The Thinking Bayonet," also based on his war-time experiences, which was well received. For several years thereafter he wrote chiefly for newspapers and magazines, and produced no other book until 1878, when his "Short History of German Literature" was published, a solid volume which added much to the author's reputation as a scholar and still maintains its place as valuable collateral reading for students of German. Other historical works followed in quick succession: "The Story of the Jews," 1885, in the well-known Story of the Nations Series, the "Life of Samuel Adams," 1885, in the American Statesmen Series, "The Life of Young Sir Henry Vane," 1888, "A Short History of Anglo-Saxon Freedom," 1890, the "Life of Thomas Hutchinson," 1896, "A Short History of the Mississippi Valley," 1901, "History of the Louisiana Purchase," 1902, and a history of the Civil War in America, in two volumes ("The Appeal to Arms" and "Outcome of the Civil War"), 1907, which formed volumes 20 and 21 of "The American Nation," a coöperative history edited by Professor Albert Bushnell Hart of Harvard, and were later issued as an independent work. Dr. Hosmer also edited and wrote appropriate introductions for a reprint of the journals of Lewis and Clark and the "Journal of Sergeant Patrick Gass," which were published by a Chicago firm for the one hundredth anniversary of the famous expedition; and he edited for the American Historical Association the "Journal of John Winthrop," which appeared in 1908. In 1882 a memorial of his father had come from his pen; and in 1894 he had published another novel, "How Thankful Was Bewitched," a tale based on some traditions of the Connecticut Valley, which was enlarged from a short story which he had contributed to The Atlantic Monthly in 1870. A volume of reminiscences, "The Last Leaf, Observations in America and Europe during Seventy-five Years," published in 1912, was his last book. During his whole career, however, he was a prolific contributor to newspapers and magazines, his articles appearing in such influential publications as the New York Evening Post, The Nation, the Boston Evening Transcript, and The Atlantic Monthly. His last formal utterance on an historical topic was made on 7 November 1917, when, at the invitation of The Colonial Society of Massachusetts, he delivered the address at the dedication in the First Church in Boston of a memorial in honor of Gov. Thomas Hutchinson.

Doctor Hosmer's merits as a writer and historian brought to him the acquaintance and friendship of many eminent Americans and Europeans. Ralph Waldo Emerson, George William Curtis, Phillips Brooks (one of his

*In June 1925 the governing board of the Minneapolis Public Library appointed him librarian emeritus; and in the spring of 1926 the 36th Street branch of the Minneapolis Public Library was renamed, in his honor, the James K. Hosmer Branch.

Harvard classmates), William Dean Howells, John Fiske, Charles Francis Adams, and James Ford Rhodes were among his American friends; in Germany the American minister, George Bancroft, himself a distinguished historian, introduced Hosmer to Ranke, Ernst Curtius, Mommsen, Hermann Grimm, and other men of letters; and in England he was the guest of Freeman, Gardiner, and Bryce. Academic honors also came to him. In 1867 he received the degree of Master of Arts from Harvard, in 1877 the University of Missouri conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Philosophy, and in 1897 Washington University admitted him to the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. The final and highest honor in his long life of service as a scholar and man of letters came in 1925, when Harvard, his alma mater, on the seventieth anniversary of the graduation of his college class, bestowed on him her honorary degree of Doctor of Laws. Of the eighty-two graduates of the Class of 1855 only three, Hosmer himself, Edwin Hale Abbot (the class secretary), and Louis Arnold, were then living. Abbot died nineteen days after Hosmer and Arnold about eight weeks after Abbot, and the Class of 1855 is now extinct.

Doctor Hosmer belonged, as might have been expected, to several learned societies. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a corresponding member of the Massachusetts Historical Society, a member of the American Antiquarian Society and of the Minnesota Historical Society, and president of the American Library Association, 1902–03, of the Harvard Club of Minnesota, at various times, of the Minnesota Unitarian Conference, and of the Six O'Clock Club of Minneapolis.

He married first, at Deerfield, 15 October 1863, Eliza Adelaide Cutler, who was born 9 February 1849 and died 24 April 1877, daughter of Newell and Huldah Cutler; and secondly, 27 November 1878, Jenny Persis Garland of St. Louis, who was born 7 April 1851 and died at Minneapolis 11 March 1920. By his first wife he had four children: Edward Stebbins, born at Deerfield 1 June 1866, now of St. Louis; Eliot Norton, born at Yellow Springs, Ohio, 28 December 1868, died in June 1879; Ernest Cutler, born at Yellow Springs 2 July 1870, now of Oklahoma City; and Josephine, born at Columbia, Mo., 31 March 1874, now Mrs. H. Willet Ankeny of Minneapolis. By his second wife he had three children: Ruth, born at St. Louis 20 October 1879, now Mrs. Albert C. Eddy of Vancouver, British Columbia; Milicent, now of Minneapolis; and Herbert Garland, who was born at St. Louis in 1882 and died there in 1883.

Charles Adelbert Perry, of Lynn, Mass., elected a resident member 29 June 1926, was born at Norwich, Conn., 14 August 1858, the son of Hylon N. and Esther Arnold (Upham) Perry, and died at Lynn 21 May 1927.

He traced his descent from Ezra[1] Perry of Sandwich in the Plymouth Colony, through Benjamin,[2] 1669/70–1744, Abner,[3] 1703–1748, who was killed at Louisburg, Josiah,[4] 1735–1815, a corporal in the French and Indian War, Richard,[5] 1764–1855, and Hylon N.,[6] his father, who was born at Underhill, Vt., 21 November 1822 and died in 1909. His mother, Esther Arnold Upham, was born at Grafton, Mass., 6 November 1824, the daughter of Archelaus W. and Betsey (Robinson) Upham.

He married 17 April 1883 Elizabeth Agnes Maynard, daughter of Hartwell and Susan (Brown) Maynard. His only son, Leslie A. Perry of Lynn, survives him.

Henry Edwards Huntington, LL.D., of San Marino, Los Angeles Co., Calif., railway director, financier, art collector, bibliophile, a life member since 1922, was born at Oneonta, Otsego Co., N. Y., 27 February 1850, the son of Solon and Harriet (Saunders) Huntington, and died in a hospital in Philadelphia, Pa., 23 May 1927.

He traced his descent from Simon[1] Huntington,* one of the early settlers of Norwich, Conn., who died 28 June 1706, aged 77, through Lieut. Samuel,[2] 1665/6–1717, of Lebanon, Conn., John,[3] Joseph,[4] 1739–1818, William,[5] 1784–1860, who married Elizabeth Vincent, and Solon,[6] his father, who was born at Harwington, Litchfield Co., Conn., 15 January 1819, and died at Oneonta, N. Y., 11 August 1890. His mother, Harriet Saunders, was born at Burnt Hills, Saratoga Co., N. Y., 10 August 1821, the daughter of Henry and Sally (Edwards) Saunders.

Henry Edwards Huntington attended public and private schools at Oneonta, and at the age of seventeen went to work as a clerk in his father's hardware store in that place. At the age of twenty he found employment with a large wholesale hardware house in New York City; and in 1874 his uncle, Collis P. Huntington, famous as a railroad builder, entrusted him with the care of some lumber interests in West Virginia and placed him in charge of a sawmill at St. Albans in that State. In 1880 his uncle introduced him to railroad work by making him superintendent of construction of a Huntington line which he was then building, the Chesapeake, Ohio & Southwestern Railway; and in 1884 he became superintendent and in 1885 receiver of the Kentucky Central Railway. He was vice president and general manager of this road, 1886–1890, and from 1890 to 1892 he held the same offices in the Elizabeth, Lexington & Big Sandy and in the Ohio Valley Railways. In 1892 he became connected with his uncle's greatest railroad enterprise, the Southern Pacific system, serving until 1900 as first assistant to the president and afterwards as second vice president and first vice president. He was also president of the Southern Pacific railways of Arizona and New Mexico.

Mr. Huntington soon began to extend his financial interests by entering the field of street-railway development. He acquired the San Francisco street railway, which he held for a few years, and then bought the Los Angeles street railways and promoted the establishment of interurban railway lines in southern California. He combined the various lines which he controlled into the Pacific Electric Railway Company, and later sold this company to the Southern Pacific system. He was interested in many other railroads in the United States, and is said at one time to have been a director in more than forty such companies. He was also one of the principal owners and chairman of the Board of Directors of the Newport News (Va.) Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company, which had been founded by his uncle, and a director in many other corporations.

In the latter part of his life his own considerable fortune, together with the wealth which he inherited from his uncle, made it possible for him to form an almost priceless collection of books, manuscripts, and masterpieces of art. His library grew to be one of the most notable collections of English and American literature, and contained many rare volumes and valuable manuscripts, among them a copy of the "Bay State Psalm Book," 1640, the original manuscript of Benjamin Franklin's "Autobiography," and many Washington and Lincoln manuscripts. Among his works of art were numerous paintings by Reynolds, Constable, Romney, and Gainsborough. In 1920 he built on his country estate near Pasadena, Calif., a magnificent building to house his collections, and made them accessible to the public by founding and endowing the Henry E. Huntington Library and Art Gallery, which holds his treasures in trust.

*He was a son of Simon and Margaret (Baret) Huntington, and in 1633, when a young child, was brought to Boston, with his brothers, by his mother, his father having died on the voyage across the Atlantic.

Mr. Huntington was a member of many clubs, both in the East and in the West, and of many societies devoted to books and art and learned research. He was a member, also, of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, the Society of Colonial Wars, and the Society of Sons of the Revolution. To the New England Historic Genealogical Society he rendered notable service by consenting to be one of the seven men in whose names invitations to contribute to the American Independence Sesquicentennial Fund of the Society were issued in 1925 and 1926. From New York University he received the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

He married first, 17 November 1873, Mary Alice Prentice, daughter of Edwin Dwight and Clarissa (Stoddard) Prentice; and secondly, in Paris, France, 16 July 1913, Mrs. Arabella (Duval) Huntington, who died before him, widow of his uncle, Collis P. Huntington. By his first wife he had four children, of whom his son, Howard Edwards Huntington, died before his father, while his three daughters, Clara Leonora, who married Gilbert Brooks Perkins, Elizabeth Vincent (Mrs. John Brockway Metcalf of Piedmont, Calif.), and Marian Prentice Huntington, survive him.

Cf. memoir of Mr. Huntington, with portrait, in The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, vol. 58, p. 332 (October 1927).

Franklin Day Locke, A.B., LL.D., of Buffalo, N. Y., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born at Gowanda, Cattaraugus Co., N. Y., 8 October 1843, the son of James and Lucinda Howard (Wheeler) Locke, and died at Buffalo 24 May 1927, in his 84th year.

He was a descendant of Dea. William[1] Locke of Woburn, Mass., through Ebenezer,[2] 1673/4–1723, of Woburn, Samuel[3] of Lancaster, Mass., John,[4] who died at Templeton, Mass., John,[5] who died at Moravia, N. Y., and James,[6] 1802–1872, his father, who was born at Moravia and died at Gowanda. His mother, daughter of Philip and Polly (Hawes) Wheeler, was born 13 May 1808 and died at Gowanda 19 December 1889.

He attended school in his native village, and, entering Hamilton College, Clinton, N. Y., received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1864, Hon. Elihu Root being one of his classmates and his lifelong friend. After studying law in the office of the late Judge Humphrey, he was admitted to the bar in 1865 and became managing clerk in the office of Bowen & Rogers, the largest and strongest law firm in Buffalo at that time; and soon afterwards he was made a partner in the firm, with which both Millard Fillmore and Grover Cleveland had been connected. In 1904 Mr. Locke became senior member of the firm, which in recent years has been known as the firm of Locke, Babcock, Hollister & Brown. He was regarded as one of the foremost lawyers in Buffalo.

He was also prominent and influential in many great business and financial enterprises, being largely instrumental in organizing what is now the Niagara Light & Power Company, head of the Buffalo Copper & Brass Company (later a part of the American Brass Company), and connected with many other industries. For many years he was a member and finally chairman of the Board of Directors and president of the Manufacturers & Traders National Bank and director and president of the Fidelity Trust Company, of which he was one of the organizers. He was also a director and was made president of the German American Bank, after he had provided money to stay a run upon its resources, and a director of the Farmers' Loan & Trust Company of New York City and of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

While he was not a politician, took little interest in party politics, and never held public office, he was an active supporter of Cleveland in 1884 and rendered great assistance in the work of financing his first presidential campaign.

He was trustee of Hamilton College from 1895 to 1916, and received from that institution, his alma mater, the degree of Doctor of Laws in 1902.

His religious affiliations were with the Presbyterian Church; and he belonged to the Masonic fraternity, to the Buffalo Club of Buffalo, and to the Century Club of New York City. He helped many young men and women to obtain an education and otherwise to improve their condition, and he gave liberally of his wealth to many worthy causes.

He married 10 May 1866 Frances Ellen Cooper of Oswego, N. Y., who died many years ago. Two children survived him: Mrs. Charles A. Richmond (Sarah Locke), whose husband is president of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., and James Locke, late of New Haven, Conn., B.A. (Yale, 1890), PhD. (University of Heidelberg, Baden, 1895), chemist, author, and editor, who died early in 1928. Another daughter died before her father.

Payne Whitney, B.A., LL.B., of New York City, capitalist, philanthropist, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 20 March 1876, the son of Hon. William Collins and Flora (Payne) Whitney, and died at "Greentree," his country place at Manhasset, Long Island, N. Y., 25 May 1927.

He was a descendant of John[1] Whitney, who came from London in 1635, in the Elizabeth and Ann, with his wife and five sons, and settled at Watertown, Mass., where he died 1 June 1673, aged 84 years, through Richard,[2] who was born in England, Richard[3] of Watertown and Stow, Mass., Lieut. Richard,[4] Gen. Josiah,[5] 1731–1806, of Stow and Ashby, Mass., a colonel in the Revolution, a brigadier general later, a member of the Massachusetts General Court and of the Convention that ratified the Constitution, Josiah,[6] 1753–1827, of Harvard, Mass., and Nelson, N. H., a soldier of the Revolution, who married Anna Scollay, Hon. Stephen,[7] 1784–1852, of Nelson, N. H., and Deerfield, Mass., who married Mary A. Burgess, Gen. James Scollay,[8] 1811–1878, of Conway and Brookline, Mass., prominent Democrat, superintendent of the United States Arsenal at Springfield, Mass., in 1854, collector of the Port of Boston in 1860, who married Laurinda Collins, and Hon. William Collins[9] of New York City, his father, B.A. (Yale, 1863), M.A. (ib., 1866), LL.D. (ib., 1888), Secretary of the Navy in the first administration of President Cleveland, 1885–1889, who was born at Conway, Mass., 5 July 1841 and died in New York City 2 February 1904. His mother, Flora (Payne) Whitney, was born in 1848 and died 5 February 1893, the daughter of Hon. Henry B. Payne, 1810–1896, of Cleveland, Ohio, A.B. (Hamilton College, 1832), lawyer, prominent Democrat, member of the United States House of Representatives, 1875–1877, United States Senator from Ohio, 1885–1891. Through his Grandfather Payne the subject of this memoir traced an ancestral line to William Bradford of the Mayflower, Governor of the Plymouth Colony.

Payne Whitney entered Yale University and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1898. He then studied law for three years at the Harvard Law School, and was admitted to the degree of Bachelor of Laws at Harvard in 1901. His share in his father's large estate was increased by his own business ability; and several millions came to him from the estate of his uncle, Col. Oliver Payne, one of the founders of the Standard Oil Company. He soon became influential in New York financial circles and a director or executive officer of several large corporations, including the Great Northern Paper Company, the First National Bank of New York, the Whitney Realty Company, and the Northern Finance Corporation.

While in college Mr. Whitney rowed for two years on the Yale "Varsity" crew, of which he was captain in 1898, thus following in the footsteps of his father and uncle, both of whom had been college oarsmen. He never lost his interest in the rowing achievements of his alma mater, gave liberally to their support, and was the donor of a dormitory for the "Varsity" crew at Gales Ferry. For fifteen years he was a member of the rowing committee of Yale graduates. Interested in horse racing, he had a racing stable of his own and engaged in the raising of thoroughbred horses. He was also a member of many social, athletic, and sporting clubs.

He was a constant and oftentimes anonymous benefactor of worthy educational and charitable institutions, making large gifts to Yale, to the New York Hospital, of which he was a trustee and vice president, to the New York Public Library, of which also he was a trustee for many years and to which he gave in 1923 $12,000,000, and to many other foundations that serve the public. In his will, in which he disposed of an estate roughly estimated, after his death, to be worth more than one hundred million dollars, he provided generously for his widow and children and several personal friends, and left approximately one-third of his property to charitable and educational institutions (including those mentioned above), some of which he named, while others were to be selected by his trustees.

Mr. Whitney married in Washington, D. C., in 1902, Helen Hay, daughter of the distinguished man of letters and statesman, the late Hon. John Hay, A.M., LL.D., who was United States Ambassador to Great Britain, 1897–98, and Secretary of State, 1898–1905, and his wife, Clara (Stone), Hay. Mrs. Whitney, who is an authoress of high repute, survives her husband, together with two children, Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson (Joan Whitney) of New York City and Manhasset, and John Hay Whitney of New York City. Mr. Whitney's elder brother, Harry Payne Whitney of New York City, B.A. (Yale, 1894), and his sister, Mrs. Leonard K. Elmhirst (Dorothy Payne (Whitney) Straight) of New York City, have been Pilgrim Tercentenary members of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1919.

Cf. memoir of Payne Whitney, with portrait, in The New York Genealogical and Biographical Record, vol. 58, pp. 301–302 (October 1927). Mr. Whitney was a life member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society.

Bennett Franklin Davenport, A.B., A.M., M.D., of Watertown, Mass., a resident member since 1877, was born at Cambridge, Mass., 28 May 1845, the son of Charles and Joan Fullerton (Hagar) Davenport, and died at the Cambridge Hospital 3 June 1927, aged 82 years.

He traced his descent from Thomas[1] Davenport, who was at Dorchester, Mass., in 1640 and died there 9 November 1685, through John[2] of Dorchester and Milton, Mass., Joseph,[3] 1701–1752, of Newton, Mass., Benjamin,[4] 1743–1833, of Newton and Needham, Mass., Joseph,[5] 1773–1849, and Charles,[6] his father, who was born at Newton 25 May 1812 and died at Watertown 20 February 1903. His mother, Joan Fullerton Hagar, was born in Boston 11 June 1814 and died at Watertown 11 November 1882, the daughter of Joseph Fullerton and Sylvia Hagar.

Bennett Franklin Davenport was prepared for college at the Cambridge High School, entered Harvard in 1863, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1867. The following academic year he spent in Europe, where he studied chemistry for a semester at the University of Tübingen, in Württemberg, and travelled in Germany, Switzerland, and Italy. In the autumn of 1868 he entered the Harvard Medical School, where he was a student for two years (1868–1870). Then he studied at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia University, and received from Columbia the degree of Doctor of Medicine in March 1871. In June of the same year he was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Medicine at Harvard, having already received from his alma mater the degree of Master of Arts, in course, in 1870. In July 1871 he began the practice of his profession in Boston.

In April 1872 he was appointed visiting physician to the South End District of the Boston Dispensary, and in March 1875 was made coroner for Suffolk County, an office which he held for seven years. In June 1879 he was appointed instructor, and from April 1880 until his resignation in 1886 he was professor of practical and analytical chemistry at the Massachusetts College of Pharmacy, and for some three years of this period (1882 to 1885) he was a dairy inspector for the City of Boston. He served also as analyst to the State Board of Health, 1882 to 1892, and the State Dairy Bureau, 1892 to 1921. Long ere this he had become a specialist in medical and sanitary chemistry, and in May 1891 he formed a partnership with Henry Jules Williams, A.B. (Harvard, 1884), the two men, under the firm name of Davenport & Williams, carrying on business, at their office in Boston, as general analytical and consulting chemists and chemical engineers. By 1897 their business had increased to such an extent that a division of subjects was necessary; and in separate but adjoining offices they continued their activities, Mr. Williams, as a chemical engineer, specializing in industrial chemistry, and Doctor Davenport, as an analytical and consulting chemist, continuing to specialize in medical and sanitary chemistry and in toxicology and gaining a wide reputation as a medico-legal expert. As such he was called upon to testify in several celebrated criminal cases, among them the trials of Roland B. Molineux and Albert T. Patrick in New York and the trial of Charles L. Tucker in Massachusetts. He was recognized as an authority on drugs and poisons, on the adulteration of foods and drinks, and on the composition of ink and the detection of forgeries or falsifications of written documents. In 1897 he was engaged by the Secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts to perfect the official record ink used by the Commonwealth. He was a member of the Watertown Board of Health, of which he was chairman for ten years; and in 1897 he was elected one of the park commissioners of Watertown and was also made chairman of the Committee on Water Supply in that town, serving in this capacity for five years.

Doctor Davenport was the author of many official reports to the City of Boston and to the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and from 1882 to 1887 he contributed reports to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal.

He was a member of numerous medical and scientific societies, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the American Public Health Association, the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Boston Society of Natural History, the American Chemical Society, and several chemical societies in England, France, and Germany. Local history and genealogy afforded him a relaxation from professional pursuits; he was a charter member and a former president of the Watertown Historical Society and took an active part in the publication of the Watertown town records; he contributed to the Register, in January 1879 (vol. 33, pp. 25–34), a genealogy of the first four generations of the Davenport family to which he belonged; and he was a member of the Society of Sons of the American Revolution.

Doctor Davenport married, 23 July 1873, Annie Emeline Coolidge, daughter of John, Jr., and Martha Jane (Sturtevant) Coolidge of Watertown. Mrs. Davenport survives her husband, together with their four children, Grace Coolidge (Mrs. Henry J. Winslow of Cambridge), A.B. (Radcliffe, 1902), John Coolidge Davenport of Milwaukee, Wis., electrical engineer, A.B. (Harvard, 1903, as of 1904), A.M. (ib., 1904), Anna Coolidge (Mrs. Clifford M. Holland of Cambridge), A.B. (Radcliffe, 1906), and Benita Coolidge Davenport of Watertown, A.B. (Radcliffe, 1911).

William Edward Lovell Dillaway, LL.B., of Boston, a resident member since 1894, was born in Boston 17 February 1852, the son of William Stoughton and Ann Maria (Brown) Dillaway, and died there 3 June 1927.

He was a descendant of William Dillaway of Cambridge, Mass., who was a trooper in King Philip's War. His grandfather, Thomas Dillaway, who married Mary Vaux, was a ship-joiner and carpenter; and his father, William Stoughton Dillaway, who was born in Boston and died there 14 September 1901, aged 84 years, 3 months, and 18 days, was at first associated with the grandfather in his trade and later was for many years a cabinet maker and pianoforte maker in Boston.

The subject of this memoir attended the Boston public schools, was a student at the Harvard Law School in 1870–71, and received from Harvard the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1871. He was admitted to the bar in February 1873, and was engaged in the general practice of law in Boston until 1885. After 1888 his professional activities were confined to his own business affairs and to legal work for corporations, and he came to be one of the prominent corporation lawyers of Boston. He was sole counsel in the consolidation of the street railways and gaslight companies of Boston, was interested in the pneumatic transmission of mail, and introduced the pneumatic mail-tube service in Boston, Chicago, and St. Louis. He had been counsel for the Pacific National Bank and vice president of the Mechanics Trust Company, of which his brother, Charles O. L. Dillaway, was president and in which the two men held the controlling interest. He was engaged also in the development of mining properties in Utah and in the Lake Superior region. He was a member of the corporation of the Perkins Institution for the Blind and of the Robert Bent Brigham Hospital for Incurables.

Mr. Dillaway contributed many articles to newspapers and magazines, and was Fourth of July orator in Boston in 1888 and Evacuation Day orator in 1902 and in 1904, the last-named year marking the centennial of the annexation of that part of Dorchester known as Dorchester Neck (now South Boston) to Boston.

He was a member of the Boston Athletic Association and of several automobile clubs, a thirty-second-degree Mason, and a Knight Templar. He was a zealous collector of works of art, having at one time the largest collection of etchings in New England, and he was a diligent reader of scientific works.

George Atwell Hamlin, of Chicago, Ill., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Canton, Conn., 19 May 1845, the son of Harmon and Celestia (Woodford) Hamlin, and died at Coronado, Calif., 3 June 1927.

He traced his descent from Giles[1] Hamlin, who was at Middletown, Conn., in 1650 and died 1 September 1689, aged 67 years, through William[2] of Middletown, Edward[3] of Middletown, Edward[4] of Middletown, a soldier of the Revolution, Jabez,[5] and Harmon,[6] his father, who was born at Canton 4 July 1800. His mother, Celestia Woodford, who was the first wife of Harmon Hamlin, was born at Canton in 1803 and died there 2 January 1848, the daughter of Giles and Eunice (Wilcox) Woodford.

George Atwell Hamlin spent his boyhood on his father's farm, attended the common schools of Canton, and was afterwards a student in a business college. In early manhood he entered the wholesale dry-goods house of Griswold, Seymour & Company in Hartford, Conn., where his ability attracted the attention of the late Marshall Field of Chicago, who was then travelling in the East. This resulted in his going to Chicago in 1869 and entering the wholesale house of Field, Leiter & Company, afterwards Marshall Field & Company, in which, through years of intelligent application to business, he rose to an honorable and profitable position and attained to high standing in the metropolis of the Mid-West.

Mr. Hamlin was active in politics, without seeking office, a public-spirited citizen, "a consistent advocate of political honesty and good faith." His house which he built in Chicago was for many years a centre of hospitality. The trace of Puritan austerity which had descended to him from his early Connecticut forbears was tempered by his kindliness and sense of humor and became an engaging geniality. In his later years, after his retirement from business, he found leisure for extensive travels in his own country and abroad; and his companionable personality and sincerity of character won for him many lasting friendships.

He was a member of the Chicago Athletic Association, the Society of Sons of the Revolution, and the Sons of Connecticut, and in early life he had been enrolled in the Governor's Foot Guards of Hartford.

He married first, at Palmyra, N. Y., 12 February 1873, Georgiana DeLamater of Palmyra, who was born at Cleveland, Ohio, 12 April 1848 and died in Chicago 7 February 1881, the daughter of Jacob James and Sophia (Beckwith) DeLamater; and secondly, at Rhinebeck, N. Y., 14 October 1885, Mary Lucretia Staats, born at Red Hook, N. Y., 5 April 1856, the daughter of Egbert and Julia (Tanner) Staats. By his first wife he had two sons, Edward Ellis Hamlin, who was born 17 September 1877 and died 9 August 1925, and George Denton Hamlin, who died in infancy; and by his second wife he had one son, who survives him, Rev. Julian DeLamater Hamlin, rector of St. John's Church (Protestant Episcopal), Newport, R. I.

Mrs. Jeannette Meyer (Thurber) Connor, of New York City, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in New York City 29 June 1872, the daughter of Francis Beattie and Jeannette (Meyer) Thurber, and died there 9 June 1927.

She traced her descent from John[1] Thurber, who was at Swansea in the Plymouth Colony in 1669, through James[2] of Rehoboth, Mass., Jonathan[3] of Rehoboth, Jonathan,[4] who moved from Rehoboth to Richmond, N. H., in 1762, Abner,[5] who moved from New Hampshire to New York State, Abner Gilman[6] of Delhi, Delaware Co., N. Y., and Francis Beattie[7] of New York City, her father, who was born at Delhi 13 November 1842 and died 4 July 1907. Her mother was born in New York City 29 January 1850, the daughter of Henry (born at Randers, Denmark) and Ann Maria (Price) Meyer.

She was educated by private teachers in New York and at one of the leading private schools in Paris. Several years of her childhood and young girlhood were spent in France, where she acquired the ability to speak, read, and write French fluently; and in later years she made many translations from French into English. She studied also Spanish and Italian, and history and genealogy claimed much of her attention and interest.

She was married in Grace Church Chantry, New York City, 30 April 1913, as his second wife, to Washington Everett Connor, a well-known financier, who was born in New York City 15 December 1849, the son of Cleveland Augustus and Eliza Lamber (———) Connor. At the age of sixteen he became a clerk in a banking house; and in 1871, at the age of twenty-one, he was admitted as a member of the New York Stock Exchange and carried on business as a broker. Ten years later he established the firm of W. E. Connor & Company, in which the late Jay Gould was a special partner and of which the late George Jay Gould became a member on attaining his majority. He retired from active business in Wall Street in 1887, and has given his time since then to the care of his own properties and to corporations in which he is especially interested.

At New Smyrna, on the east coast of Florida, where Mr. Connor had some orange groves and where he owned the ruins of an old Franciscan mission, Mrs. Connor began researches in the history of Florida under Spanish rule. She studied also the transcripts of Spanish documents in the Library of Congress and in the library of the New York Historical Society, procured copies of Spanish records at Seville, in Spain, and became an authority on the history of Spanish Florida. Her studies bore fruit in the publication of three volumes dealing with the history and records of this old Spanish colony.

Mrs. Connor was a life member of the New York Historical Society and of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, and was a founder of the Florida Historical Society.

She had no children. Her husband, her mother, a sister, Mrs. James Layng Mills (Marianna B. (Thurber) Pruyn), and a brother, Francis Beattie Thurber, all of New York City, survive her.

Walter Joseph Otis, S.B., M.D., of Boston, a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born at Berlin, Erie Co., Ohio, 10 September 1853, the son of James and Margaretta Graves Jackson (Adams) Otis, and died in Chicago, Ill., 13 June 1927.

He was descended from John[1] Otis, one of the founders of Hingham, Mass., in 1635, through John[2] of Hingham, Joseph[3] of Scituate in the Plymouth Colony and New London, Conn., Joseph,[4] who died at Richmond, Mass., whose wife, Elizabeth Little, was of Mayflower ancestry, Nathaniel[5] of Montville, Conn., and Perry, N. Y., Asahel[6] of Montville and of Bethany, N. Y., Joseph[7] of Montville and of Berlin, Ohio, and James[8] of Chicago, his father, who was born at Berlin, Ohio, 1 April 1818 and died in Chicago 14 September 1895. His mother, the daughter of Philo and Laurena (Baldwin) Adams, was born at Huron, Erie Co., Ohio, 24 March 1824 and died 28 August 1866.

Walter Joseph Otis was prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Exeter, N. H., and entered Harvard in 1872; but in his Sophomore year he withdrew from the College to enter another department of the University, the Lawrence Scientific School, where he was enrolled as a student in the academic years 1873–1876. Many years later, in 1907, Harvard conferred on him the degree of Bachelor of Science, as of the Class of 1876. While at Harvard he was especially interested in rowing, was a member of the 'Varsity crew in 1874 and 1875, was influential in establishing the annual four-mile races between Harvard and Yale, and was captain of the Harvard First Eight.

After leaving the Scientific School Otis entered the Harvard Medical School, where he took the full three-years course (1876–1879) and was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1880. He was house surgeon at the Massachusetts General Hospital from August 1879 to August 1880 and house physician at the Boston Lying-in-Hospital for one term of service. He was prosector in surgical anatomy at the Harvard Medical School in 1880–81, and held the same position, together with that of assistant in operative surgery, in 1881–82. In 1881, also, he was assistant surgeon in the First Battalion of Light Artillery, Second Brigade, Massachusetts Volunteer Militia, and in 1882–1884 he was surgeon in the Fifth Regiment of Infantry, in the same brigade. He was also surgeon in the Boston Dispensary, instructor in the Boston Polyclinic, and lecturer in the Tufts Medical School. Along with these various duties he was engaged in the practice of his profession in Boston. In 1886–1888 and again in 1896–1905 he carried on advanced studies in Europe, in the later period doing original work in anatomy and embryology at the University of Vienna.

After his return to the United States he practised his profession for a while at Worcester, Mass., but much of his time in his later years was spent abroad. He was in Italy and Austria in 1911, on account of his health; in April 1912 he went abroad again; after the outbreak of the World War he remained there with his daughter, Mrs. Mallman, whose husband was in the Austrian military service; and, after his son-in-law had been released from this service and the United States had entered the War, Doctor Otis was not allowed to leave Austria until the conclusion of the Armistice. Then he returned with his other daughter, Marghretta, to his native land.

He was the author of a book entitled "Anatomical Researches," and contributed from time to time important articles to some of the leading medical journals of the United States and Europe. He was a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, the Boston Society for Medical Improvement, and the Deutsche Anatomische Gesellschaft, and his Boston club was the St. Botolph.

On the wall of the stair hall of the New England Historic Genealogical Society's house in Boston Doctor Otis placed, within a framework of Caen stone, a slate tablet bearing this inscription: "John Otis Born at Glastonbury Somersetshire 1581 of Hingham Mass^{tts} 1635 died at Weymouth 1657 and Margaret Otis his wife This memorial erected to them and their descendants by Walter Joseph Otis M D 1921."

Doctor Otis married in Boston, 12 February 1884, Alice Dexter Fay, daughter of Franklin Lewis and Hannah Sophia (Blackwood) Fay of Boston. Mrs. Otis died in Boston 22 January 1909; but their two daughters, Marghretta Adams, wife of Hans Wickenhauser of New York City, and Rosamond Fay, wife of Alfred William Mallman of Maffersdorf, Czecho-Slovakia, survive their parents.

Roger Sherman, of Evanston, Ill., a resident member since 1907, was born in Chicago, Ill., 18 March 1877, the son of James Morgan and Mary Eliza (French) Sherman, and died at Evanston 19 June 1927.

He was a descendant of Capt. John[1] Sherman of Watertown, Mass., the immigrant ancestor of many distinguished Americans, who was baptized at Great Horkesley, co. Essex, England, 3 September 1612,* came to Watertown, with his mother, his stepfather, Thomas Rogers, and his half sister, Elizabeth Rogers, about 1636, became one of the leading residents of that place, a holder of town offices, a deputy to the General Court, a captain of the train band, schoolmaster, and steward of Harvard College, and died 25 January 1690/1, through Joseph,[2] 1650–1730/1, of Watertown, a soldier in King Philip's War, William,[3] 1692–1740/1, of Watertown, Charlestown, Newton, and Stoughton, Mass., Hon. Roger,[4] 1721–1793, of New Milford and New Haven, Conn., honorary M.A. (Yale, 1768), treasurer of Yale College, lawyer, judge, statesman, a signer of the Declaration of Independence, Capt. John,[5] 1750–1802, of New Haven, a Revolutionary soldier, Maj. Charles,[6] 1783–1844, of New Haven and Suffield, Conn., a soldier in the War of 1812, whose second wife was Jennet Taylor, James Taylor,[7] 1819–1907, of Brodhead, Wis., who married Abigail Talcott Morgan, and James Morgan[8] of Chicago, his father, who was born at Windsor, Conn., 20 November 1842 and was a member of the firm of Poole & Sherman of Chicago, grain merchants, for many years, until he retired from business in 1900. James Morgan Sherman married at Malden, Ill., 2 May 1871, Mary Eliza French, born at Malden, Mass., 22 December 1849, the daughter of Sanford Byron and Mary Ann (Mead) French.

Roger Sherman was educated in the grammar and high schools of Chicago, and was manager of a real-estate business in Chicago that bore his name.

He married in Chicago, 9 June 1902, Martha Evelina Tucker, who was born in St. Louis, Mo., the daughter of William Stringham Snyder and Martha Ann (Nesbitt) Tucker. Their children were Martha Nesbitt, Roger, Jr., and James Morgan Sherman.

Mrs. Mary Quincy (Gould) Thorndike, of Boston and Nahant, Mass., a resident member since 1923, was born at Córdoba, Argentina, 16 April 1872, the youngest child of Benjamin Apthorp and Mary Apthorp (Quincy) Gould, and died at Nahant 25 June 1927.

She was a descendant of Zaccheus[1] Gould, one of the first settlers of Topsfield, Mass., who died in 1668, through Capt. John,[2] 1635–1709/10, of Topsfield, a soldier in King Philip's War, Zaccheus,[3] 1672–1739, of Topsfield, John,[4] 1709/10–1778, of Topsfield, Capt. Benjamin,[5] 1751–1841, of Lancaster, Topsfield, and Newburyport, Mass., a soldier in the Revolution, who fought at Lexington, Bunker Hill, Bennington, and Stillwater, and was present at the surrender of Burgoyne, Benjamin Apthorp,[6] 1787–1859, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1814), A.M. (ib., 1817), for many years principal of the Boston Latin School and afterwards a merchant, and Benjamin Apthorp,[7] her father, one of the most eminent of American astronomers, A.B. (Harvard, 1844), A.M. (ib., 1847), Ph.D. (University of Göttingen, 1848), LL.D. (Harvard, 1885, Columbia, 1887), who was born in Boston 27 September 1824 and died at Cambridge 26 November 1896. Her mother, Mary Apthorp Quincy, who was born in Boston 27 August 1834, was married 29 October 1861, and died 23 June 1883, was a member of the distinguished Quincy family, the only daughter of Hon. Josiah Quincy, Jr., 1802–1882, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1821), A.M. (ib., 1824), Mayor of Boston from 1845 to 1849, and his wife, Mary Jane (Miller) Quincy, and granddaughter of Hon. Josiah Quincy, 1772–1864, A.B. (Harvard, 1790, Yale, 1792), A.M. (Harvard, 1793, College of New Jersey, 1796), LL.D. (Harvard, 1824), the well-known Federalist statesman, Representative in Congress, 1805–1813, Mayor of Boston from 1823 to 1829, and President of Harvard University, 1829–1845. President Quincy was an honorary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1846 until his death, and a memoir of him may be found in "Memorial Biographies of the New-England Historic Genealogical Society," vol. 6, pp. 10–18.

Dr. Benjamin Apthorp Gould, father of Mrs. Thorndike, was elected a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society 2 September 1885, became a life member in 1890, and served the Society as Councillor and Vice President for Massachusetts. A memoir of him, in which his achievements as an astronomer are described, has been published in "Memorial Biographies of the New England Historic Genealogical Society," vol. 9, pp. 370–372. (Cf. also Register, vol. 51, p. 369.)

Born in South America, while her father was at the head of the National Observatory which he had established for the Argentine Government at Córdoba, Mary Quincy Gould was educated in the temporary home of her parents and later in private schools in Boston. On the return of the family to the United States they made their home in Cambridge; and there she was married, 31 December 1895, to Albert Thorndike, A.B. (Harvard, 1881), of Cambridge, later of Boston, and now of Nahant, investment banker and trustee, for many years (1895–1919) secretary and now treasurer of the Boston Athenæum and treasurer of the Perkins Institution and Massachusetts School for the Blind, who was born at Beverly, Mass., 13 October 1860, the son of Samuel Lothrop Thorndike, A.B. (Harvard, 1852), LL.B. (ib., 1854), A.M. (ib., 1855), and his wife, Anna Lamb (Wells) Thorndike. For several years Mr. and Mrs. Thorndike had a summer home in Weston, Mass., but about ten years ago they took up their summer residence at Nahant. Their Boston home was at 337 Beacon Street. Mrs. Thorndike was active in Boston society, a member of the Chilton Club, and a volunteer worker in the World War. She was one of a group of New England women who were enrolled in the National Service School for Women at Washington, D. C., where they received instruction in practical Red Cross work.

Mr. Thorndike survives his wife, together with their six children, Mary Quincy, Rosanna Duncan, Dorothy (wife of Bentley Wirt Warren, Jr., of Brookline, Mass.), Samuel Lothrop, A.B. (Harvard, 1927), Benjamin Apthorp Gould, A.B. (Harvard, 1926), and Albert Thorndike. Mr. Thorndike has been an annual member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since May 1928.

Charles Anthony Morss, of Newton, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1920, was born in Boston 13 July 1857, the son of Charles Anthony and Mary Elizabeth (Wells) Morss, and died at his summer home in Cohasset, Mass., 5 July 1927.

He traced his descent from Anthony[1] Morss (or Morse), who came to New England in 1635 and settled at Newbury, Mass., through Joshua,[2] Anthony,[3] Anthony,[4] Anthony,[5] Robert,[6] and Charles Anthony[7] Morss, his father, who was born in Boston 15 October 1822. His mother, Mary Elizabeth Wells, was born at Wells, Me., 11 February 1831, the daughter of John and Hannah Wells.

He was educated in the Boston public schools, and, after graduating at the High School in 1875, was employed in the wool business, under Warren D. Hobbs, and in 1884 was admitted as a partner in the firm of Hobbs, Taft & Company. In 1887 he was associated with his father in the firm of Morss & Whyte, and soon became treasurer of the Simplex Wire & Cable Company, formerly a part of the Morss & Whyte company. He resigned these positions on his appointment, towards the close of 1917, as governor of the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston, a position which he held for five years. In this period he directed successful campaigns in New England in behalf of the Third and Fourth Liberty Loans, and made many addresses in these and other patriotic causes. At the end of 1922 he withdrew from the governorship of the Bank in order to give his attention to his own business affairs, including the Simplex Wire & Cable Company, the Simplex Electric Heating Company, and the Morss & Whyte Company, in each of which he was a director.

He was a Republican and a member of the Bostonian Society and of the Union, Exchange, Eastern Yacht, and Brookline Country Clubs.

Mr. Morss married 25 May 1893 Martha Houghton Reed of Boston, the daughter of James Henry and Martha Ann (Wesson) Reed, who survives him, together with their four children, Philip Reed Morss of Newton, A.B. (Harvard, 1917), who has succeeded to his father's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Charles Anthony Morss, Jr., of Montclair, N. J., A.B. (Harvard, 1919), James Reed Morss of Newton, A.B. (Harvard, 1921), and Marian Morss of Newton.

James Alfred Field, A.B., of Chicago, Ill., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since May 1926, when he succeeded to the membership formerly held by his aunt, the late Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Field) (Bates) Spalding of Brooklyn, N. Y., was born at Milton, Mass., 26 May 1880, the son of James Alfred and Caroline Leslie (Whitney) Field, and died at the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital in Boston, after a surgical operation, 15 July 1927.

His father, James Alfred[7] Field, who was born at Beloit, Wis., 8 August 1847 and died at Lakewood, N. J., 17 January 1884, was a son of Alfred Lorenzo[6] Field and a younger brother of Mrs. Spalding; and the line of descent from Zechariah[1] Field of Hartford, Conn., and Northampton and Hatfield, Mass., has been given in the memoir of Mrs. Spalding, on page 118 of the present volume of the Register. His mother was born 10 November 1853, the daughter of Seth Dunbar and Adeline Dutton (Train) Whitney, and died about 1902.

The father of the subject of this memoir died when the son was in his fourth year, and the boy grew up at the home of his grandparents in Milton and at Guilford, Conn., his widowed mother devoting herself entirely to the training of her three sons. James Alfred, the second son, was prepared for college at Milton Academy, entered Harvard in 1899, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts, summa cum laude, in 1903. He was the first scholar in his class.

For three years after taking his bachelor's degree Mr. Field was enrolled as a student of economics in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard, spending two of these years (1903–1905) in Cambridge, where he was also an assistant in economics in 1903–04 and an Austin teaching fellow in 1904–05, and devoting the third year (1905–06) to work in his specialty at the University of Berlin, in Paris, and in London. On returning to the United States he held the position of instructor in economics at Harvard for two years (1906–1908), and then accepted a similar position at the University of Chicago. In 1910 he was promoted there to an assistant professorship, was made associate professor of political economy in 1913, and professor in 1918. "His own special fields," writes one of his Harvard classmates, "lay in statistics and in the theory of population: in the latter he became probably the foremost authority in the country. The history of the theory of development of population, which he had hoped and was peculiarly qualified to write, was postponed and finally prevented by the illness that cut his life so prematurely short."

In his connection with the University of Chicago, which extended over a period of nineteen years, he was helpful to that institution in many activities besides his work as a teacher. In 1923–24 he served as dean of the College of Arts and Literature; for many years he was head marshal of the University, officiating as such on formal academic occasions; and he was a sound and influential adviser in the shaping of the policies of the faculty. He was an associate editor of the Journal of Political Economy, one of the publications of the University, and was a collaborator with two of his colleagues in the preparation of textbooks on elementary economics. In 1911 he published also a volume entitled "The Progress of Eugenics."

His knowledge of statistics enabled him to be of great service to the Government in the World War. From October 1917 to January 1918 he was a special investigator in Washington of the Division of Statistics of the Council of National Defense, and was engaged in determining the shipping required by the needs of the American Expeditionary Forces and for indispensable imports into the United States. Then he was made a member and chief statistician of the American Shipping Mission, which sailed for London in January 1918 to represent the United States in the Allied Maritime Transport Council and was stationed in Paris during the Peace Conference.

In the course of his researches as an economist Professor Field made several journeys to Europe, besides those already mentioned. He worked in the British Museum in 1910 and again in 1913, was in England, with his wife, for several months in the early part of the War, before the United States entered the struggle, and in the last year of his life had spent some time in Europe, with his wife and two sons, when the illness developed which compelled him to return to America and to submit to the operation from which he did not rally.

He married in Chicago, 17 September 1914, Amy Morehead Walker of Chicago, who survives him, together with their two sons, James Alfred Field, Jr., and Charles Walker Field, and a brother, William Lusk Webster Field, honorary A.M. (Harvard, 1924), headmaster of Milton Academy.

Col. William Alexander Gaston, A.B., of Boston, elected a resident member in 1916 and made a life member in 1925, was born at Roxbury, Mass., 1 May 1859, the son of Hon. William and Louisa Augusta (Beecher) Gaston, and died at his summer home in Barre, Mass., 17 July 1927.

Jean Gaston, a French Huguenot, migrated from France to Scotland early in the seventeenth century; and his sons, of whom John, born in Scotland about 1645, was the ancestor of the subject of this memoir, went from Scotland to the north of Ireland about 1675. There, in County Antrim, was born, about 1703, the founder of the New England family, John[1] Gaston (son of John and grandson of Jean), who came to Connecticut about 1730 and settled in the ancient Voluntown; and from him Colonel Gaston traced his descent through John,[2] born at Voluntown in 1750, Alexander,[3] merchant, who was born at Killingly, Conn., in 1772, was for many years a member of the Connecticut Legislature, and moved from Connecticut to Roxbury, Mass., in the summer of 1838, and Hon. William,[4] his father, A.B. (Brown, 1840), A.M. (ib., 1843), LL.D (Brown and Harvard, 1875), lawyer, member of both branches of the Massachusetts Legislature, Mayor of Roxbury, Mayor of Boston, 1871–72, Governor of Massachusetts, 1875, who was born at South Killingly, Conn., 3 October 1820 and died in Boston 19 January 1894. Governor Gaston was a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 1871 until his death.* His wife, Louisa Augusta Beecher, whom he married 27 May 1852, was born in Boston 27 December 1830, the daughter of Laban Smith and Frances Amelia (Lines) Beecher.

William Alexander Gaston received his early education at a private school in Roxbury, which had been built by his maternal grandfather, Laban Beecher, for the education of his own children. Then he was a pupil for two years at the Washington Grammar School in Roxbury, and was prepared for college at the Roxbury Latin School. Entering Harvard in 1876, he received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1880, among his classmates being Theodore Roosevelt and three other men who became prominent in public life, Robert Bacon, Josiah Quincy, and Charles Grenfill Washburn. In college Gaston was active in athletics, and won the championship in middle-weight boxing at a meeting of the Harvard Athletic Association. He studied law at the Harvard Law School for two years (1880–1882) and in his father's office, and was admitted to the Suffolk Bar in September 1883. Soon afterwards he became a member of his father's firm, Gaston & Whitney, and later organized the Boston law firm of Gaston, Snow & Saltonstall, now Gaston, Snow, Saltonstall & Hunt. In his early days as a lawyer he was very successful in jury cases; but later he devoted himself chiefly to corporation work and to the management of estates. As an able corporation lawyer he was selected in 1887 to bring about the consolidation of the various street railways in Boston and its suburbs into the system now known as the Boston Elevated Railway, and, after rendering most efficient service as president of the new company, he resigned this office in 1901, continuing with the company as a director, however, until October 1902.

In banking circles Colonel Gaston was especially prominent and influential. With his associates he organized the National Shawmut Bank of Boston, in which he was one of the largest stockholders and of which he was made president in 1907, retaining that position until eight or nine years ago, when he became chairman of the Board of Directors, but soon afterwards laid down the burden of the latter office. It was in 1907, after he had become president of this bank, that, in the face of an impending financial panic, he urged other banks to grant further time to solvent firms in the payment of their notes and obligations, a course which had much to do with the restoration of confidence in financial circles. Among other financial institutions in the management of which Colonel Gaston participated were the National Rockland Bank of Boston, the Institution for Savings in Roxbury, the Second National Bank of Barre, and the Killingly Trust Company and the Windham County National Bank, both of Danielson, Conn. He was a director also in the Gillette Safety Razor Company, the American Telephone & Telegraph Company, and various insurance and real-estate companies.

From early manhood Colonel Gaston had been prominent in the Democratic Party both in Massachusetts and in the Nation. His title of "Colonel" came to him as a member of the staff of Gov. William Eustis Russell, 1891–1893. In 1902 and 1903 he was the Democratic candidate for Governor of Massachusetts, but was not elected. In 1904 he was a delegate at large from Massachusetts to the Democratic National Convention. In 1905 he was the Democratic candidate for United States Senator, but the Republican Legislature reëlected Senator Lodge. He had been a member of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts and of the Democratic National Committee. More than once he declined to be considered as a candidate for Governor, but in his later years he was again conspicuous as a Democratic leader in two campaigns — in 1922 as a candidate for United States Senator against Senator Lodge, when he was defeated by a small plurality of some 7,000 votes, and in 1926, when he was beaten by a large majority as a candidate for Governor against Governor Fuller, who was seeking reëlection.

In the World War he was one of the leaders in Massachusetts in organizing civilian activities, and had much to do with the solving of labor problems growing out of the War. The United States Government made him arbitrator in all disputes about wages in shipyards in the district between Hartford, Conn., and Bath, Me., and all his decisions were accepted both by employers and workmen.

In many organizations connected with education, charities, and civic progress Colonel Gaston was helpful. He served as a member of the Board of Overseers of Harvard University for a full term of six years (1907–1913) and as a trustee of the Boston Public Library; and he was an officer in the Boston Chapter of the American Red Cross, a director of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and a trustee of the Free Hospital for Women. He organized the campaign by which half a million dollars was raised for the erection of a larger building for the Young Men's Christian Association in Boston. In the work of many other associations he was an active participant, and he gave of his time and money to many worthy causes.

On his farm of 1500 acres in Barre, Worcester County, he worked out problems pertaining to the standardizing of food products and the raising of poultry and livestock, and there he maintained a famous herd of Jersey cows. He was president of the Worcester County Agricultural Association.

He was a member of Trinity Church, Boston, and also of the Bostonian Society, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, and the Roxbury Military Association. His clubs included the Episcopalian, Somerset, Algonquin, Exchange, Country, Harvard (both of Boston and of New York), Eastern Yacht, and Tennis and Racquet Clubs.

Colonel Gaston married in Boston, 9 April 1892, May Davidson Lockwood of Boston, daughter of Hamilton Davidson and Anne Louisa (Eastman) Lockwood. Mrs. Gaston survives her husband, together with four of their five children, Ruth, wife of John Kenneth Howard of Boston, S.B. (Harvard, 1915), LL.B. (ib., 1918, as of 1917), William, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1919), LL.B. (ib., 1923), John, of New York City, A.B. (Harvard, 1921), and Hope, wife of Cornelius Conway Felton of Hamilton, Mass. Mrs. Gaston has been an annual member of the Society since 1923.

Edwin Sanford Crandon, of Cambridge, Mass., a life member since 1899, was born at Plymouth, Mass., 7 December 1860, the son of John Howland and Emily Stephens (Drew) Crandon, and died at Cambridge, after a long illness, 21 July 1927.

He traced his descent from John[1] Crandon, 1699–1773, who came from Topsham, Devonshire, England, to New England in 1718, settling at Plymouth and later at Dartmouth, Mass., through Thomas,[2] 1728–1821, a captain in the Revolution, who married Ruth Howland, daughter of Consider Howland, Benjamin,[3] 1765–1841, for many years deputy collector of the Port of Plymouth, Benjamin Howland,[4] M.D., 1815–1881, and John Howland,[5] his father, a journalist, who was born at Plymouth 16 November 1836. His mother was born at Plymouth 2 November 1835, the daughter of Abijah and Sally Faunce (Chubbuck) Drew, and was married to John Howland Crandon 14 March 1859.

In 1863, his parents moved to Chelsea, Mass., where he was educated in the public schools and was graduated at the high school in 1877. In the same year he entered the employ of the Boston Evening Transcript, of which he was financial editor from 1885 to 1917.

He was active in the work of several patriotic and historical societies, including the Society of Mayflower Descendants, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Descendants of Colonial Governors, the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the American Revolution, of which he was president in 1911–12, the Society of Sons of the Revolution, the Pilgrim Society of Plymouth, the Bostonian Society, and the Bunker Hill Monument Association. He was a member of the Masonic fraternity, in which he had held high official positions. He was the author of a widely read pamphlet, "The Pilgrim and the Puritan," published in 1895.

A communicant of the Protestant Episcopal Church, he was at one time an especially active member of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew. In politics he was a Republican.

He married in Boston, 1 June 1886, Cara Warren Howard of Boston, daughter of Charles Fiske and Eliza Maria (Lowell) Howard, who survives him, together with a son, Lowell Drew Crandon of Park Ridge, N. J., and two daughters, Evelyn Howland (Mrs. William D. Plumb of Wayne, Pa.) and Emily Van der Velde (Mrs. Don L. Stevens of Little Neck, Long Island, N. Y.).

Cæsar Augustin Grasselli, Sc.D., of Cleveland, Ohio, a life member since 1921, was born at Cincinnati, Ohio, 7 November 1850, the son of Eugene Ramiro and Frederica (Eisenbarth) Grasselli, and died at Cleveland 28 July 1927.

His grandfather, Jean Angelo Grasselli, was born in Italy, but became a manufacturer of chemicals at Strasbourg in Alsace, and in 1805 introduced the use of Sicilian brimstone in the manufacture of sulphuric acid at a chemical plant which he had built at Mannheim, Germany. Eugene Ramiro Grasselli was born at Strasbourg 31 January 1810, was educated as a chemist and engineer, and came to the United States, settling in Philadelphia in 1837 and moving to Cincinnati in 1839, where he established the first chemical works for the manufacture of sulphuric acid in that part of the country.

Cæsar Augustin Grasselli was educated in public and private schools in Cincinnati, and in 1865 moved with his father to Cleveland, where they carried on the manufacture of chemicals. In 1882, after his father's death, the responsibility for the conduct of the business devolved on the younger man. In 1885, after a merger with the Harwood Chemical Company, Mr. Grasselli became president of the Grasselli Chemical Company, exchanging this office after many years of continuous service for that of chairman of the Board of Directors, which he held until his death. He also organized and was president of the Broadway Savings & Trust Company, the Woodland Avenue Savings & Trust Company, and the Union National Bank, all of which were merged in 1921 in the Union Trust Company, of which he was a director. He was also a director of the Chicago & Akron Junction Railroad Company and of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

He received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science from Mount St. Mary's College, Emmitsburg, Md., in 1904; he was made a knight of the Order of the Golden Crown of Italy by King Victor Emanuel III in 1910 and was elevated to the rank of commander of that Order in 1921; and in 1923 he was decorated by Pope Pius XI as a commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great. He was an adherent of the Church of Rome.

Mr. Grasselli was a member of many organizations devoted to the advancement of science or to the public welfare, including the American Chemical Society, the Audubon Society, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, and the Western Reserve Historical Society. He was also a fellow of the Cleveland Museum of Natural History, one of the founders of the Cleveland Institute of Music, and a member of the Cleveland Museum of Art.

He was actively interested in various Cleveland charities, and gave his home on East 55th Street, Cleveland, to the Cleveland Society for the Blind. It is now known as Grasselli House. He also founded the Johanna Grasselli Home for Crippled Children, as a memorial to his wife.

He married 1 August 1871 Johanna Ireland of Cincinnati, who died several years ago, daughter of Thomas Saxton and Aloise (Keck) Ireland.

Asa Wilson Waters, A.B., LL.B., A.M., of Cambridge, Mass., a resident member since 1920, was born at Marietta, Ohio, 4 March 1850, the son of Asa Bradford and Annette Searle (Howes) Waters, and died at Cambridge 4 August 1927.

He was a descendant of Richard[1] Waters, who was at Salem, Mass., as early as 1637, through John,[2] Samuel,[3] Samuel[4] of Stoughton, Mass., Zebulun[5] of Stoughton, who married Alice Bradford, a great-granddaughter of Gov. William Bradford of the Plymouth Colony, Capt. Asa,[6] a soldier of the Revolution, Asa,[7] and Asa Bradford,[8] his father, who was born at Watervliet, N. Y., 26 October 1818. His mother was born at Madison, Ind., 2 September 1827, the daughter of John, M.D., and Eliza (Hale) Howes.

Asa Wilson Waters received his early education in the public schools of Chillicothe and Cincinnati, Ohio, was a pupil in the preparatory school of Wabash College, Crawfordsville, Ind., 1864–1866, and was admitted to the Freshman class of Wabash College in 1866. On account of his health, however, he was kept out of college for a year, and then entered Marietta College in 1867. He remained there for two years, but, on the completion of his Sophomore year, finding that his health was so impaired by asthma that a change of climate was necessary, he entered Dartmouth College, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1871. Then he studied law at the Law School of the University of Cincinnati, took there the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1874, and was admitted to practice in the Ohio courts in the same year. Soon afterwards he was admitted to practice in the United States courts.

From 1874 to 1887 he was actively engaged in professional work at Cincinnati, was solicitor of Hamilton County in 1880, and for several years was attorney for that county. In 1880 Marietta College conferred on him the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

The years from 1887 to 1898 were spent in the Far West, in search of health. In 1898 he was designated by the United States Comptroller of the Currency as attorney for the receiver of a Philadelphia national bank that had failed, and from 1898 to 1906 all legal business connected with the Comptroller's work in Philadelphia was referred to him. In the last-mentioned year his health forced him to give up this position.

He then turned again to academic studies, was enrolled in the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences at Harvard University in 1906–1908, and received from Harvard the degree of Master of Arts in 1907. From that time on he resided in Cambridge, and gave much time to historical matters.

He was a member of the American Bar Association and the Pennsylvania Bar Association and also of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants. One of the two Bibles that had belonged to Gov. William Bradford had descended to Mr. Waters's father; and in 1903 Mr. Waters presented it to the Pilgrim Society of Plymouth.

Mr. Waters married at Oakland, Md., 1 September 1886, Nellie Dawson, who died at Cambridge 20 November 1917, daughter of John, M.D., and Adelia (Winans) Dawson of Columbus, Ohio. They had no children.

Hon. Charles Alanson Barnard, A.B., LL.B., of Plattsburgh, N. Y., a resident member since 1923, was born at Plattsburgh 3 November 1874, the son of Henry Eells and Mary Anna (Moore) Barnard, and died unmarried at Plattsburgh 11 August 1927.

His great-grandfather, Joseph Barnard, was born in England, migrated to Canada, where he married Margaret Moore, and afterwards settled in Plattsburgh. His grandfather, Charles Barnard, 1799–1866, for thirty years a justice of the peace at Plattsburgh, where he was born and died, married Sarah Eells, who was born at Manchester, Vt., in 1798 and died at Plattsburgh in 1869. His father, Henry Eells Barnard, A.B. (University of Vermont, 1859), who was born at Plattsburgh 28 March 1837, was justice of the peace, town clerk at Plattsburgh, president of the Village Board for several terms, district attorney in 1873, and a member of the Legislature in 1892. His mother was born at Rouses Point, N. Y., 8 May 1843, the daughter of Russel and Mary Ann (Little) Moore and a descendant of Roger Williams and Thomas Angell of Providence, R. I.

Charles Alanson Barnard was prepared for college at the Plattsburgh High School, entered Harvard in 1894, and took there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1898. He then took the three-years course at the Harvard Law School, and a year later (1902) received from Harvard the degree of Bachelor of Laws, as of the Class of 1901.

Admitted to the New York Bar in 1901, he practised his profession at Plattsburgh, and also served the public as municipal judge for two terms, city clerk for three terms, and mayor of the city for two terms, 1918–19 and 1920–21. From 1902 to 1904 he was chairman of the Plattsburgh Civil Service Commission. In the World War he was president of the War Camp Community Service Club for General Hospital No. 30, which was situated at the Plattsburgh barracks, and during and after the War he was a member of the Executive Committee for the Liberty Loan campaigns.

Mrs. Mary Leila Lilian (Horsford) Farlow, of Cambridge, Mass., a life member since 1916, was born at Cambridge 18 September 1848, the eldest child of Professor Eben Norton and Mary L'Hommedieu (Gardiner) Horsford, and died there 17 August 1927.

Her descent from William[1] Horsford of Dorchester, Mass., and Windsor, Conn., with the names of several of her mother's early Colonial ancestors, has been given in the memoir of her sister, Mary Katharine Horsford, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1923, who died 17 January 1927. (Vide supra, pp. 354–356.) Her father was a resident member of the Society from 1860 until his death (1 January 1893), and memoirs of him may be found in the Register, vol. 49, pp.

85–87, and in "Memorial Biographies of the New England Historic Genealogical Society," vol. 9, pp. 103–105.

She received her early education at various private schools in Cambridge, and later in life took several courses, not leading to a degree, at Radcliffe College. She was married 10 January 1900 to William Gilson Farlow of Cambridge, the eminent botanist, A.B. (Harvard, 1866), A.M. (ib., 1869), M.D. (ib., 1870), LL.D. (Harvard, 1896, University of Glasgow, 1901, University of Wisconsin, 1904), honorary Ph.D. (University of Upsala, 1907), Professor of Cryptogamic Botany at Harvard University, who was born in Boston 17 December 1844, the son of John Smith and Nancy White (Blanchard) Farlow, and died 3 June 1919.

Mrs. Farlow was actively interested in educational matters and in philanthropic movements. She was a member of the corporation of Radcliffe College (the Associates of Radcliffe College) and a trustee of Wellesley College, of which her father had been a generous benefactor. In memory of her father she gave $50,000 to Harvard University, for the general purposes of the chemical laboratory; and as a memorial to her husband she gave to the University the books on cryptogamic botany and the collections which she had bought in Europe after the War and which now constitute the Farlow Library. For a long time she was a director and for a while president of the Rumford Chemical Works at Providence, R. I., in which her father had been professionally interested. In the World War she was very helpful in efforts to bring about preparedness and in the Liberty Loan campaigns.

She was a member of the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, the Massachusetts Society of Daughters of the American Revolution, the Huguenot Society, and the Mayflower Club of Boston. Her religious affiliations were with the First Church of Cambridge (the Shepard Memorial Church).

Professor and Mrs. Farlow had no children, and Mrs. Farlow's nearest surviving relative is a younger sister, Miss Cornelia Horsford of Cambridge.

Albert Rowland Shepardson, of Reading, Mass., a resident member since 1920, was born at Medford, Mass., 30 October 1865, the son of Jarvis Christopher and Frances Caroline (Auld) Shepardson, and died at his summer home in Nahant, Mass., 21 August 1927.

He traced his descent from Daniel[1] Shepardson of Malden, Mass., who died in 1644, through Daniel[2] of Attleborough, Mass., John[3] of Attleborough and Rehoboth, Mass., Daniel,[4] Daniel,[5] Noah,[6] who moved to Guilford, Vt., Noah,[7] 1782–1867, and Jarvis Christopher,[8] his father, who was born at Guilford 25 April 1822 and died 25 April 1898. His mother was born at Boothbay, Me., 17 July 1832 and died 30 March 1905, the daughter of John and Mary Ann (Holton) Auld.

He was educated in the public schools, including the high school, of Everett, Mass., and for many years was treasurer of the Hanover Beef Company of Boston. In Reading he took an active part in town affairs, serving at one time as chairman of the Finance Committee and in his later years as a member and chairman of the School Committee. In the last months of his life he followed with great interest the building of the Walter S. Parker Junior High School, the auditorium of which has been named Shepardson Hall.

For many years he was senior warden of the Church of the Good Shepherd (Protestant Episcopal) in Reading, and he was at one time a member of the Episcopalian Club of Massachusetts. He belonged also to the Appalachian Mountain Club and the Meadow Brook Golf Club, and he was an active member of the Masonic fraternity.

He married at Everett, 8 April 1891, Grace Louise Batchelder, daughter of Francis and Harriet Louise (Rawson) Batchelder of Everett, who survives her husband, together with their five children, Douglas Auld Shepard-son, B.A. (Williams, 1916), of Wallingford, Conn., Helen Shepardson (Wheaton, 1915) of Reading, Robert Batchelder Shepardson, A.B. (Middlebury, 1921), of West Rutland, Vt., Rowland Rawson Shepardson, A.B. (Middlebury, 1923), of New Haven, Conn., and Francis Batchelder Shepardson, B.A. (Williams, 1923), of Morristown, N. J.

Hon. Charles Sumner Smith, of Lincoln, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at Lincoln 19 December 1857, the son of Francis and Abigail Prescott (Baker) Smith, and died there 28 August 1927.

He was a descendant of Thomas[1] Smith, an early settler of Watertown, Mass., who died 10 March 1692/3, aged 92, through Jonathan[2] of Watertown, Zechariah,[3] Jonas,[4] Zechariah,[5] Jonas,[6] 1788–1824, and Francis,[7] his father, who was born 8 April 1822 and died 17 July 1908. His mother was born 13 September 1823 and died 7 March 1918, the daughter of Jacob Baker.

He attended the public schools of Lincoln and was for one year a pupil at Phillips Academy, Andover, Mass. For many years he owned and successfully managed one of the largest farms in Middlesex County; later he became president of the Old Dominion Mining & Smelting Company and the Arizona Commercial Mining Company, and he was chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Abington Textile Machinery Works and a director of the Bank of Commerce & Trust Company of Boston.

He was a selectman of Lincoln for twenty-seven years, holding this office at the time of his death and having been chairman of the board for some twenty years of this time. He was a Republican, and as such was a member of the Massachusetts Senate for three years (1917–1919) and of the Governor's Council from the Sixth Councillor District for six years (1921–1926); and on the transfer of the town of Lincoln to the Third Councillor District, the year before his death, he was reëlected as Councillor for the two years 1927 and 1928, but died after a short illness, at a time when the Council had been much occupied with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Mr. Smith was a member of the Congregational Church.

He married 6 March 1888 Mary Isabel Smyth of Lincoln, and his son, Sumner Smith of Lincoln, survives him.

Mrs. Sarah Rebecca (Damon) Stoddard, of Scituate, Mass., a resident member since 1904, was born at Scituate 28 September 1855, the daughter of James and Abigail Williams (Green) Damon, and died there 24 September 1927.

She traced her descent from John[1] Damon, who was at Scituate in the Plymouth Colony in 1643, through Ichabod,[2] Josiah,[3] Josiah,[4] John,[5] and James,[6] her father, who was born at Scituate 10 August 1819 and died there 7 February 1901. Her mother was born at Northborough, Mass., 15 November 1818, the daughter of Jonathan and Sarah (Harrington) Green.

She attended the public schools of Scituate and took a two-years course at the Bridgewater (Mass.) Normal School, where she was graduated in 1877; and from 1877 to 1891 she was a teacher in the primary and grammar schools of Scituate. She was married at Braintree, Mass., 27 May 1908, to Edwin Otis Stoddard, son of Edwin and Mary O. (Bailey) Stoddard, who survives his wife.

Mrs. Stoddard had been for many years interested in genealogical research, and was consulted often because of her information regarding Scituate families. For seventeen years she was the registrar of the local chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and she was also a member of the Scituate Historical Society, one of its trustees for a number of years, and a faithful attendant at its meetings. For many years she was a member of the House Committee of the Peirce Memorial Library. She was the local correspondent and a valued contributor to the Scituate Herald.

She was a member of the Baptist Church of North Scituate, and she had served as president of the Baptist Missionary Society and as secretary of the Woman's Circle.

Mrs. Alice (Fairfield) Moody, of Portland, Me., a resident member since 1911, was born at Patten, Me., 20 February 1846, the daughter of Edward and Mary Dunning (Rogers) Fairfield, and died at Portland 11 October 1927.

She was a descendant of John[1] Fairfield, who was at Salem, Mass., in 1639 and died at Wenham, Mass., 22 December 1646, through Walter[2] of Reading, Mass., Walter,[3] Daniel,[4] Daniel,[5] 1725–1787, of Vassalborough, Me., Edward,[6] 1765–1819, and Edward,[7] her father, who was born at China, Me., 4 April 1805 and died at Portland about 1873. Her mother was born at Topsham, Me., 30 December 1808 and died at Portland 2 August 1895, the daughter of William and Martha Lithgow (Dunning) Rogers.

She was educated in the public schools of Portland, and was graduated at the high school there in 1865. Then she was a pupil for nearly a year at a French school near Montreal, Canada. From 1868 to 1876 she was a teacher in the Portland High School, giving instruction chiefly in Latin and French. On 12 September 1876 she was married to George W. Moody, son of Daniel and Susan (Page) Moody, who died at Portland 28 June 1921.

Mrs. Moody was a member of the Congregational Church and of various local literary clubs, and led a quiet, intellectual life.

Her son, Edward Fairfield Moody of Portland, survives his parents. Her daughter, Marian, died in 1888, in her 7th year.

Elizabeth Josephine Wilmarth, of Attleboro, Mass., a resident member since 1898, was born at Attleborough (now Attleboro) 29 August 1858, the eldest daughter of William Daniel and Susan Josephine (Mann) Wilmarth, and died 18 October 1927.

She traced her descent from Ensign Thomas[1] Wilmot, who was buried at Rehoboth, Mass., 19 May 1694, through Jonathan[2] of Rehoboth, Jonathan,[3] 1690–1756, of Attleborough, Capt. Moses,[4] 1732–1799, Jonathan,[5] 1761–1839, Daniel,[6] 1799–1887, and William Daniel,[7] her father, who was born at Attleborough 30 July 1838 and died there 8 March 1882. Her mother was born at Wrentham, Mass., 3 August 1838, the daughter of Howard and Susan (Ide) Mann, and died at Attleborough 15 October 1893.

Miss Wilmarth was educated in the public schools of her native town and at Abbot Academy, Andover, Mass. She was a charter member of the Attleboro chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution and also of the Pilgrim (Unitarian) Church, in both of which she was active, was affiliated with the Attleboro Round Table and Chaminacle Clubs, and served for a number of years as trustee of the Attleboro Public Library. She had completed a genealogy of nine generations of the Wilmarth family, one of the oldest families of Southern Massachusetts.

Two sisters and two brothers survive her: Harriette L. Wilmarth and Mrs. Ruth W. Clap, both of Attleboro, William H. Wilmarth of Nice, France, an artist, and Henry P. Wilmarth of Attleboro, a manufacturer.

Mrs. Helena Berenice (Grisson) Galpin, of Muskegon, Mich., a resident member since 1925, was born at Ann Arbor, Mich., 20 February 1864, the daughter of Dr. Samuel and Esther Griffin (Deuel) Grisson, and died at Muskegon 19 October 1927.

Her father, Samuel Grisson, M.D., was born at Hamburg, Germany, in 1815, and died at Ann Arbor 17 October 1869. Her mother was born at Ithaca, N. Y., 7 July 1829, was married to Dr. Samuel Grisson at Hamburg, Mich., 26 September 1847, and died at St. Paul, Minn., 1 January 1898, the daughter of Edmond and Sarah (Thurston) Deuel and seventh in descent from William[1] Davol, who was at Duxbury in the Plymouth Colony in 1640, at Braintree, Mass., in 1643, and later at Newport, R. I., through Jonathan,[2] Joseph,[3] who married Mary Soule, a granddaughter of George Soule of the Mayflower, Benjamin[4] Deuel of Dartmouth, Mass., and Pawling, N. Y., John,[5] Cornelius,[6] 1756–1809, and Edmond,[7] her father, who was born at Cambridge, N. Y., 4 December 1786 and died at Jackson, Mich., 25 August 1834.

She was married in St. Andrew's Church, Ann Arbor, 25 December 1882, to Rev. William Galpin, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, the son of Freeman Pinckney and Mary A. (Ruthruff) Galpin. During her whole married life she was active in the three parishes at Ishpeming, Mich., Elkhart, Ind., and Muskegon, Mich., where her husband was rector. At Muskegon she organized a class for the study of art and acted as its leader, and she was interested in the women's clubs in Elkhart and Muskegon.

Her husband, who is rector of St. Paul's Church, Muskegon, survives her, together with their four children, George Grisson Galpin of Toledo, Ohio, mechanical engineer, Harris Earp Galpin of Muskegon, lawyer, Dr. William Freeman Galpin, Professor of European History at Syracuse University, and Mrs. Rachel (Galpin) Thompson of Muskegon.

Elizabeth Almy Slade, of Cornish, N. H., a life member since 1916, was born in Boston 4 August 1855, the daughter of Jarvis and Hannah Thomas (Patten) Slade, and died at Cornish 24 October 1927.

Her great-grandfather was John Slade of Chelsea, Mass., who married Hannah Torrey. Her grandfather was John Slade, 1780–1855, of Needham, Mass., who married Polly Jennings. Her father, Jarvis Slade, was born in Boston 21 November 1816 and died in New York City about 1899. Her mother, Hannah Thomas Patten, was born at Bath, Me., 29 December 1825, the daughter of Capt. George Ferguson Patten of Bath, a soldier of the War of 1812, and his wife, Hannah Thomas, who was a descendant of Richard Warren of the Mayflower. Her maternal ancestors, the Pattens, were shipbuilders on the Kennebec River.

She was educated under private tutors and at the finishing school conducted by Mrs. Sylvanus Reed in New York City, and later studied Italian abroad and learned the art of bookbinding in Italy, producing some noteworthy specimens of her skill in this line. She became deeply interested in photography, and was the first woman member of what is now the Camera Club. She was early attracted to genealogical research, and devoted much of her time to tracing the pedigree of her family.

She was a life member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society and of the New York Society of Mayflower Descendants and a member of the Society of the Colonial Dames of the State of New York and the United States Daughters of 1812.

Herbert Emerson Fales, of Newton, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at Medway, Mass., 14 April 1866, the son of Albert Francis and Rhoda Daniels (Hunting) Fales, and died at Newton 3 November 1927.

His father was born at Medway 13 November 1836. His mother was born 26 November 1840 in that part of Medway which is now Millis, the daughter of William Henry and Rhoda Anne Parker (Fuller) Hunting.

In 1885, at the age of nineteen, he entered the employ of the Hollingsworth & Whitney Company of Boston, paper manufacturers, and became treasurer of the company in 1904, a position which he held until his death. He was also treasurer and a director of Hollingsworth & Whitney, Ltd., of Canada, a trustee of the West Newton Savings Bank, and a member of the Board of Managers of the New England Home for Little Wanderers.

He was a member of the Second Congregational Church of West Newton, of the Algonquin Club of Boston, and of the Brae Burn Country Club of Newton, and he belonged to the Masonic fraternity.

Mr. Fales married 16 November 1887 Nettie Lureen Ody, daughter of William B. and Ann (Ford) Ody, who survives him, together with their four children, Professor Dean Abner Fales of Watertown, Mass., Herbert Gordon Fales of Newton, who has succeeded to his father's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the New England Historic Genealogical Society, Lloyd Hunting Fales of Binghamton, N. Y., and Marjorie Fales of Newton.

John Collins Warren, A.B., M.D., LL.D., of Boston, eminent surgeon in a family of eminent surgeons, a resident member since 1875, was born in Boston 4 May 1842, the son of Dr. Jonathan Mason and Anna Caspar (Crowninshield) Warren, and died at his home, 58 Beacon Street, Boston, 3 November 1927.

He was a descendant of Peter[1] Warren, mariner, who was in Boston as early as 1659 and died in 1704, through Joseph,[2] 1662/3–1729, of Roxbury, Mass., housewright, Joseph,[3] 1695/6–1755, of Roxbury, farmer and town official, John,[4] 1753–1815, of Salem, Mass., and Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1771), A.M. (ib., 1774), honorary M.D. (ib., 1786), hospital surgeon in the Revolution, professor of anatomy and surgery in the newly established Harvard Medical School, 1782–1815, who married Abigail Collins, daughter of Gov. John Collins of Newport, R. I., and was a younger brother of Maj. Gen. Joseph Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill, John Collins,[5] 1778–1856, of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1797), A.M. (ib., 1800), M.D. (University of St. Andrews, 1802), honorary M.D. (Harvard, 1819), adjunct professor, professor, and professor emeritus of anatomy and surgery at Harvard, 1809–1856, one of the founders of the Massachusetts General Hospital, an honorary member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society from 3 January 1855,* whose first wife was Susan Powell Mason of Boston, and Jonathan Mason[6] of Boston, surgeon, his father, M.D. (Harvard, 1832), honorary A.M. (ib., 1844), who was born in Boston 5 February 1811 and died there 19 August 1867. His mother, Anna Caspar Crowninshield, who was married to Dr. Jonathan Mason Warren 30 April 1839, was the daughter of Hon. Benjamin Williams Crowninshield of Salem, Secretary of the Navy, 1814–1818, Representative in Congress from Massachusetts, 1823–1831, and his wife, Mary (Boardman) Crowninshield.

John Collins[7] Warren, the subject of this memoir, was prepared for college in the Boston Latin School and at the private school of Mr. Epes Sargent Dixwell, entered Harvard in 1859, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1863. From October 1863 to March 1864 he attended lectures at the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, Pa., and in April 1864 entered the Harvard Medical School; but in the following June he went to White House Landing, Va., as a volunteer surgeon, to attend the wounded after the Battle of Cold Harbor. Then he resumed his medical studies at Harvard and was admitted to the degree of Doctor of Medicine in 1866. After spending some two years in medical study abroad, in Berlin, Vienna, Paris, and London, he returned to the United States in 1869 and entered upon the practice of his profession in Boston.

*See memoir of the elder Dr. John Collins Warren in Memorial Biographies of the New England Historic Genealogical Society, vol. 3, pp. 28–69, and a shorter memoir, with portrait, in the Register, vol. 19, pp. 1–12.

He was soon called to the teaching staff of the Harvard Medical School, and served there as instructor in surgery, 1871–1882, assistant professor of surgery, 1882–1887, associate professor of surgery, 1887–1893, and professor of surgery, 1893–1907, holding the Moseley Professorship of Surgery from 1899 and retiring as professor emeritus in 1907. In the development and growth of the Medical School he played a prominent part. In the early eighties he advocated the moving of the School from its unsuitable quarters on North Grove Street, Boston, to the more favorable site on Boylston Street; and later on, with his colleague in the School, the late Dr. Henry Pickering Bowditch, he urged upon the Harvard Corporation the desirability of planning for further expansion and growth. The result was that land on Longwood Avenue was acquired by a syndicate headed by Maj. Henry Lee Higginson and his brother, Francis Lee Higginson, and by the generosity of the late J. Pierpont Morgan and others it became possible to erect the present imposing buildings of the School, in a district given over to hospitals and to other kindred and helpful organizations. For six years, 1908–1914, Doctor Warren served as a member of the Harvard Board of Overseers, and from 1899 to 1922 he was chairman of the Harvard Cancer Commission.

For many years he was closely associated with the Massachusetts General Hospital, serving as surgeon to out-patients and visiting surgeon there from 1869 to 1905. From 1886 to 1899 he was president of the Board of Trustees of the Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear Infirmary, and in 1911 he was active in the founding of the Collis P. Huntington Memorial Hospital.

From 1873 to 1881 he was editor of the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal; and he was the author of many papers on medical and surgical topics and a collaborator in the "International Text Book of Surgery."

His high standing in his profession was recognized by the bestowal upon him of the degree of Doctor of Laws by the Jefferson Medical College in 1895, by Harvard in 1906, and by McGill University in 1911, and by his election as an honorary fellow of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in 1900 and of the Royal College of Surgeons of Edinburgh in 1908.

His name was found on the rolls of membership of many societies. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, an honorary fellow of the American College of Surgeons, a member and former president of the American Surgical Association, and a member of several leading medical associations. He was a member also of the Massachusetts Historical Society, a former president of the Bunker Hill Monument Association and of the Humane Society of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and an honorary member (since 1913) of the Harvard chapter of Phi Beta Kappa.

He married 27 May 1873 Amy Shaw, who was born in Boston 15 October 1850 and died before her husband, daughter of Gardiner Howland and Cora (Lyman) Shaw of Boston. Two sons, John, A.B. (Harvard, 1896), M.D. (ib., 1900), Associate Professor of Anatomy at the Harvard Medical School, a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1919, and Joseph, A.B. (Harvard, 1897), LL.B. (ib., 1900), Bussey Professor of Law at the Harvard Law School, survived him; but Dr. John Warren died in Boston 17 July 1928.

Mrs. Mary Amelia (Dana) (Hicks) Prang, A.A., Ed. M., of Cambridge, Mass., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1921, was born at Syracuse, N. Y., 7 October 1836, the only daughter of Major and Agnes Amelia Livingston (Johnson) Dana, and died at Melrose, Mass., 7 November 1927.

She traced her descent from Richard[1] Dana, an early settler of Cambridge and the founder of a distinguished New England family, who died in 1690, through Daniel[2] of Cambridge, Thomas,[3] Daniel,[4] a soldier of the Revolution, Daniel,[5] 1754–1828, a soldier of the Revolution and a member of the Massachusetts Constitutional Convention of 1820–21, and Major,[6] her father, who was born at Windsor, Mass., 29 August 1797 and died in 1881. Her mother was born at Worcester, Mass., 30 January 1807.

She received her early education at the Allen Female Seminary in Rochester, N. Y., where she was graduated in 1852, and later she attended the Massachusetts Normal Art School and the school of the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. After the death of her first husband she made the teaching of art her profession, was director of art education in the public schools of Syracuse for many years from 1868 on, president of the Social Art Club of Syracuse, 1875–1880, and from 1884 until her second marriage director of the Prang Normal Art Classes in Boston and one of the editors of the Prang Educational Company.

She was married first, at Syracuse, 7 October 1856, to Charles S. Hicks of Syracuse, who died 18 August 1858, the son of John Franklin and Margaret (Couse) Hicks; and secondly, in Boston, 15 April 1900, as his second wife, to Louis Prang of Boston, who was born at Breslau, Prussia, 12 March 1824 and died 14 June 1909, the son of Jonas Louis and Rosina (Schermer) Prang. Mr. Prang took part in the German revolutionary movements in 1848, came to the United States, as a refugee, in 1850, and, settling in Boston, became well known as a publisher of reproductions of works of art and of books on art instruction and as head of the Prang Educational Company.

Mrs. Prang shared her husband's interest in art and in civic and social reforms. After his death she made her home with her stepdaughter, Mrs. Karl F. Heinzen (Rosa Prang); and very late in life she turned again to academic studies and took the degree of Associate in Arts at Radcliffe College in 1916, in her eightieth year, and that of Master of Education at Harvard in 1921, in her eighty-fifth year. For some time before her death she lived in Cambridge.

She was the author, either by herself or in collaboration with others, of many books on art instruction, a contributor to various art and educational journals, and a member of many educational associations. The wide range of her interests is shown by the long list of other organizations of which she was a member, among which were the Massachusetts Prison Association, the Massachusetts Peace Society, the Association to Abolish War, the People's Council of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, the Massachusetts Single Tax Association, the Bostonian Society and other local historical societies, and the Copley Society. She had been president of the Civic Club of Ward 19 of Boston and of the Roxbury Woman's Suffrage Club.

By her first husband she had a daughter, Margaret Hicks, born 21 March 1858, who was married 26 December 1879 to the late Arthur L. K. Volkmann of the Volkmann School, Boston, and died 4 December 1881.

Eugene Shelton Randall, of Eau Gallie, Fla., a life member since 1917, was born at Swampscott, Mass., 13 June 1872, the son of Charles Theodore and Harriet Homer (Shelton) Randall, and died at Tucson, Ariz., 10 November 1927.

His grandfather, Samuel Randall (son of Joseph of Sharon, Mass., and grandson of Thomas Randall), was born at Sharon in 1778 and resided in Warren, R. I. His father, Charles Theodore Randall, was born at Warren 12 September 1825, married Harriet Homer Shelton (born in Boston, daughter of Philo Strong and Georgiana Albertina (Homer) Shelton of Boston), was engaged in the dry-goods business in Boston, and died 15 April 1885.

Eugene Shelton Randall was associated with the importing and exporting firm of Hemenway & Brown of Boston. Several years ago he went to the South and later, on account of his health, to the Southwest. He visited relatives in Boston in the summer of 1927.

He married 30 December 1903 Mary Isobel Taylor, daughter of James William and Mabel Louise (White) Taylor of Montreal, Canada, who survived her husband.

Frederic Lathrop Colver, of Tenafly, N. J., publisher, a resident member since 1906, was born at Milwaukee, Wis., 13 October 1863, the youngest of ten children of Hon. James Dean and Ann Elizabeth (Bowne) Colver, and died at Tenafly 11 November 1927.

He was a descendant of Edward[1] Colver, a soldier in the Pequot War and in King Philip's War, who came to New England in 1635, was at Dedham, Mass., in 1637, later resided at Roxbury, Mass., and at New London, Conn., and died in 1685, through Lieut. Edward[2] of Norwich and Lebanon, Conn., Samuel[3] of Lebanon and Litchfield, Conn., Rev. Nathaniel,[4] 1728–1809, of Litchfield, Conn., and Hubbardton, Vt., a Revolutionary soldier, Rev. Nathaniel,[5] 1755–1831, of Litchfield, Conn., Champlain, N. Y., and Stockbridge, Mass., Rev. Phineas,[6] 1777–1834, of Litchfield, Conn., Champlain, and Fort Ann, N. Y., and Colchester, Vt., and Hon. James Dean,[7] his father, who was born at Champlain, N. Y., 14 February 1813 and died in Louisiana 3 October 1866, having lived at Champlain, Poughkeepsie, Brooklyn, and Oswego, N. Y., Milwaukee, Wis., and New Orleans, La. His mother, Ann Elizabeth Bowne, was born at Fishkill, N. Y., 20 December 1821, was married to James Dean Colver 14 September 1840, and died in Brooklyn 13 January 1892, the daughter of Gershom and Elizabeth (Hasbrouck) Bowne.

Frederic Lathrop Colver was educated in the public schools of Brooklyn, and lived there from early childhood until 1888, when he moved to Tenafly, N. J. In 1879 he was employed as clerk in a warehouse and shipping firm, but soon entered the publishing business. He founded the Philomathean Society of Brooklyn in 1880, The Philomathean Review in 1881, and The Brooklyn Magazine in 1884, which was succeeded in 1887 by The American Magazine, of which he was manager. In 1888 he associated himself with Edward T. Bromfield in the firm of Bromfield, Colver & Company, advertising agents and publishers; and in 1889 he became advertising manager for Frank Leslie's Publishing House, of which he was the lessee and manager in 1895 (succeeding Mrs. Leslie), treasurer in 1898 and president in 1899. In 1905 he was president of the Colver Publishing House, successors to Frank Leslie's Company and publishers of The American Illustrated Magazine, formerly Leslie's Monthly. In July 1906 Mr. Colver sold the Colver Publishing House and The American Magazine, and acquired in 1907 an interest in The Success Company (publishers of the Success Magazine), of which he was secretary and from which he withdrew in 1909.

He was one of the founders and president of the Periodical Publishers' Association of America and founder and secretary of the Tenafly Library Society. He organized the movement which led in 1893 to the incorporation of Tenafly, was a member of the first Borough Council, raised the funds to build the Tenafly town hall in 1893, and was an elder in the Presbyterian Church in that place. He was interested in genealogy, and compiled and published the "Colver-Culver Genealogy," 1910. He was a member of the Huguenot Society and the New York Society of Sons of the Revolution.

He married, at Glens Falls, N. Y., 6 October 1886, Lillian Frances Warren, daughter of Franklin Russell and Mary Elizabeth (Merry) Warren, who survives him, together with a son, Frederic Beecher Colver, A.B. (Princeton, 1910), LL.B. (Columbia, 1913), of Tenafly.

Frank Ephraim Herbert Gary, LL.B., of Newton, Mass., a resident member since 1915, was born at Montpelier, Vt., 8 October 1858, the son of Ephraim, Jr., and Sarah A. (Robinson) Gary, and died at Newton, after a long illness, 17 November 1927.

James Gary, his great-grandfather, who died at Sanford, Me., 22 March 1824, was a soldier in the Revolution and also a member of the Committee of Safety in 1777. Capt. Ephraim Gary, his grandfather, 1770–1847, was of Groton, Vt., and his father, Ephraim Gary, Jr., was born at Groton 1 July 1809 and was a prominent farmer and business man of Montpelier. His mother was born at Sanbornton, N. H., 18 May 1818, the daughter of David and Sarah (Smith) Robinson.

He was educated in the grammar and high schools of Montpelier, was graduated at Montpelier Seminary, as class orator, in 1879, and took a post-graduate course at that institution. He studied law with the firm of Heath & Carleton in Montpelier and was admitted to the Washington County (Vt.) Bar in 1882. In the autumn of 1882 he entered the Boston University Law School, and received the degree of Bachelor of Laws in 1884. Returning to Montpelier, he was admitted in 1884 to the Bar of the Supreme Court of Vermont, and practised law in his native State for two years. In 1887 he came back to Boston, where he was admitted to the Bar of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts in 1889, and continued in the practice of his profession, first in association with the late Charles Steer, then with the late Daniel Linscott, and finally with the late David Greene Haskins, Jr. In 1889 and 1890 he was acting assistant dean of the Boston University Law School and in 1890 he was also instructor in criminal law there.

Among the numerous secular organizations of which Mr. Gary was a member may be mentioned the American Bar Association, the Vermont Bar Association, the American Society of International Law, the American Academy of Political and Social Science, the Bostonian Society, the Massachusetts Society of Sons of the American Revolution, the Anti-Imperialist League, the Twentieth Century Club, and the Appalachian Mountain Club.

A Baptist in his religious views, he had been a member of the Bunker Hill Baptist Church of Charlestown and of the Warren Avenue, the Bethany, and the First Baptist Churches of Boston. He was one of the organizers of the Young Men's Baptist Social Union of Boston and its first president; he had served as a director of the Boston Baptist Social Union, the Charlestown Young Men's Christian Association, and the Old People's Home of Cambridge, Mass.; and he was organizer and director of the Ladies' Unity Club of Boston and an organizer and charter member of the Frances E. Willard Settlement. For many years he was a member, director, auditor, and the trusted counsel of the New England Lord's Day League. He was also one of the organizers of the New England Chinese Mission, its first president, and a director in it for over thirty years. He belonged to the Masonic fraternity.

His publications include "An Appreciation of Professor Henry Aaron Rogers," 1891, "History of 'My Country, 'Tis of Thee,'" 1896, "Our Trip to Europe," 1900, "Oberammergau and the Passion Play," 1901, "The Butterfly Convention," 1904, "A Bit of Christmas History," 1905, "Christmas Mountain Peaks," 1906, and "An Appreciation of Tennyson's 'In Memoriam,'" 1914.

A versatile man, Mr. Gary took especial delight in music. He possessed a genial, winning personality and a sympathetic, generous spirit.

He married 9 February 1897 Helen Putnam Osborne of Peabody, Mass., daughter of George Francis and Rebecca (Proctor) Osborne, who survives him, together with a sister, Clara Emerette Gary, M.D. (Boston University, 1885), of Boston, who has been a resident member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society since 1915. Mr. and Mrs. Gary had no children.

Mrs. Amy Gore (Walker) Iasigi, of Stockbridge, Mass., a resident member since 1923, was born in Boston 9 June 1858, the daughter of Nathaniel and Susan White Seaver (Grant) Walker, and died there 23 November 1927.

She traced her descent from Shubael[1] Walker, town clerk of Rowley, Mass., who lived later at Reading and Bradford, Mass., and died 22 January 1688/9, through Nathaniel,[2] 1675–1721, of Bradford, Nathaniel,[3] 1708–1775, of Bradford and Haverhill, Mass., Nathaniel,[4] 1744–1829, of Haverhill, Rev. Samuel,[5] 1779–1826, of Haverhill and Danvers, Mass., and Nathaniel,[6] her father, a Boston merchant, who was born at Danvers 3 February 1816 and died in Boston 26 December 1885. Her mother was born in Boston 16 December 1824, the daughter of Moses and Mary (Gore) Grant.

She was educated in a private school in Boston and also abroad, and was married 16 December 1879 to Oscar Iasigi, son of Joseph Iasigi, a former Greek consul in Boston, and his wife Eulalie Lois Iasigi. She was left a widow many years ago, when her husband lost his life in the wreck of the steamer City of Columbus off Gay Head.

Her Boston home was at 76 Beacon Street, but her legal residence was in Stockbridge, where she had built a beautiful home, "Clovercroft," on the hill, and cultivated choice flowers. She was interested in many social and artistic activities, and contributed generously to many worthy charities. She was a member of the Colonial Dames of America and of the Chilton Club, was on the board of managers of Welcome House and of the Ascension Farm School in South Lee, Mass., and was the Massachusetts treasurer of the Berkshire Industrial School. She attended Emmanuel Church (Protestant Episcopal) in Boston and St. Paul's Church in Stockbridge.

Her two daughters survive her, Annie Walker (Mrs. Arthur E. Grannis of Brookline, Mass.) and Nora (Mrs. William Marshall Bullitt of Louisville, Ky.), and there are eight grandchildren. Mrs. Iasigi's brother, Grant Walker of Boston, A.B. (Harvard, 1873), who died 4 April 1920, was elected a life member of the New England Historic Genealogical Society in 1911 and became a Pilgrim Tercentenary member in 1919.

Mrs. Louisa (Crowninshield) Bacon, of Riverside, Calif., a Pilgrim Tercentenary member since 1919, was born in Boston 7 January 1842, the daughter of Francis Boardman and Sarah Gooll (Putnam) Crowninshield, and died at Riverside 29 November 1927.

She was a member of the well-known Crowninshield family of Salem, Mass., being a descendant of Johann Kaspar Richter[1] von Kronenschild (a name which was soon Anglicized as Crowninshield), physician, who came from Leipsic, Saxony, in the latter part of the seventeenth century to Boston, settled at Salem, and died in Boston 19 December 1711, through John,[2] Capt. George,[3] 1734–1815, who married Mary Derby, Hon. Benjamin Williams,[4] 1772–1851, Secretary of the Navy, 1814–1818, Representative in Congress from Massachusetts, 1823–1831, who married Mary Boardman, and Francis Boardman[5] of Boston, her father, A.B. (Harvard, 1843, as of 1829), honorary A.M. (ib., 1843), who was born at Salem 23 April 1809 and died at Marblehead, Mass , 8 May 1877. Her mother, who was married 20 March 1832, was born at Salem 1 June 1810 and died in Boston 12 December 1880, the daughter of Judge Samuel and Sarah (Gooll) Putnam.

She was educated at private schools in Boston, and was married 8 October 1860 to Francis Edward Bacon, son of Daniel Carpenter and Desire Taylor (Gorham) Bacon, who died 23 July 1909. Mr. and Mrs. Bacon had six children, of whom the eldest two, Mary Louise and Alice Crowninshield, died in infancy, Francis Edward died in 1885, in his 21st year, Susan Gorham died in 1909, in her 44th year, and Alice Putnam, widow of William Sturgis Hooper Lothrop, A.B. (Harvard, 1890), of Boston, and Louis, A.B. (Harvard, 1894), of Boston, survive their parents.

Joseph Horace Goodspeed, M.A., of Boston, Mass., a resident member since 1897, was born at East Haddam, Conn., 14 January 1845, the son of George Edward and Nancy Green (Hayden) Goodspeed, and died at his home at the Hotel Vendome, in Boston, 11 December 1927.

He was a descendant of Roger[1] Goodspeed, who was at Barnstable in the Plymouth Colony in 1639 and died in 1685, through Ebenezer[2] of Barnstable, Moses[3] of Barnstable, Nathan[4] of Barnstable and of East Haddam, Conn., Joseph[5] of East Haddam, and George Edward,[6] his father, who was born at East Haddam 2 February 1813. His mother was born at East Haddam 29 October 1820, the daughter of Horace and Nancy (Green) Hayden and a descendant of John Howland and Richard Warren of the Mayflower Pilgrims.

He was educated at Bacon Academy, Colchester, Conn., Cheshire Academy, Cheshire, Conn., and the Hartford (Conn.) High School, and entered Trinity College, Hartford, with the Class of 1866, but he did not graduate with his classmates, being compelled to leave college in November 1863 on account of the death of his father. In 1902 he received from Trinity the honorary degree of Master of Arts.

He began his business career in the banking house of Kountze Brothers of Denver, Colo., and in his early years in that State (then a Territory) he was also engaged in mining. He was vice president of the Colorado National Bank of Denver in 1866, cashier of the Rocky Mountain National Bank of Central City, Colo., 1867–1870, and treasurer of Gilpin County, Colo., 1869. In 1870 he went to St. Joseph, Mo., and was employed by railroads until 1876, being cashier of the Kansas City, St. Joseph & Council Bluffs Railroad Company, 1870–1875, and general auditor of the "Joy Roads" of the West, 1875–76. Then he returned to the East, and was supervisor of railroad accounts of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, 1876–1881, general auditor of the Mexican Central Railway Company, in Boston, 1881–1887, treasurer of the West End Street Railway Company of Boston, 1887–1898, comptroller of the Boston Elevated Railway Company, 1899, treasurer of the Massachusetts Electric Companies, 1899–1916, the Nashua Street Railway Company, and the Newport & Fall River Street Railway Company, and assistant treasurer of the Bay State Street Railway Company.

He was secretary of the Beacon Society and a member of the Massachusetts Society of Mayflower Descendants and of the Algonquin Club of Boston. He was also a thirty-second degree Mason. He was a Republican, and belonged to the Protestant Episcopal Church.

He married 27 January 1887 Arabel Morton, daughter of John Dwight and Maria Elizabeth (Wesson) Morton of Boston, who survives him, together with a son, Morton Goodspeed of Denver, Colo.

Mary Elizabeth Emery, of West Newbury,-Mass., elected a life member 3 May 1927, was born at Portland, Conn., 19 March 1846, the daughter of Rev. Samuel Moody and Mary Hale (Emery) Emery, and died at West Newbury 16 December 1927.

She was a descendant of John[1] Emery, who came to Boston in the James from Southampton, England, in 1635 and settled at Newbury, through John[2] of Newbury, Stephen[3] of Newbury, Stephen,[4] Stephen,[5] who married Sarah Moody, Moody,[6] who married Abigail Prescott, and Rev. Samuel Moody,[7] her father, A.B. (Harvard, 1830), honorary M.A. (Trinity, 1838), S.T.D. (ib., 1864), who was born at West Newbury 10 April 1804 and died there 16 August 1883. Her mother was born at West Newbury 24 September 1821, the daughter of Eliphalet and Sarah (Hale) Emery.

Her father, a clergyman of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was rector of the church at Portland, Conn., 1837–1870, and afterwards officiated in various churches in the vicinity of Newburyport, Mass., as occasion offered.

She was graduated at St. Mary's Hall, Burlington, N. J., in 1865. She was a member of the Protestant Episcopal Church and a diligent and devoted worker in the churches which her father served.

Three sisters, Louise J., Frances J. and Georgiana Emery, all of West Newbury, survive her.

Walter Bemis Mossman, B.A., of Brookline, Mass., a resident member since 1924, was born at Chicopee, Mass., 29 November 1854, the son of Nathan and Caroline Bemis (Flint) Mossman, and died in Boston 25 December 1927.

He was a descendant of James[1] Mosman, who was at Wrentham, Mass., in 1674 and died 25 October 1722, through Timothy[2], 1679–1773, one of the incorporators of the town of Ashburnham, Mass., in 1765, George[3] of Sudbury, Mass., Silas,[4] 1757–1829, of Sudbury and Stow, Mass., Silas,[5] 1789–1856, of Stow, Berlin, Warwick, and Chicopee, Mass., and Nathan,[6] his father, who was born at Warwick, Mass., 3 April 1823, married 24 May 1848 Caroline Bemis Flint of Lincoln, Mass., and died at Auburndale (Newton), Mass., 5 March 1898.

He was prepared for college at the Newton (Mass.) High School, entered Amherst, and received there the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1878. He was with the Pratt Manufacturing Company of New York City from 1881 to 1891, and then joined the firm of R. H. Stearns & Company of Boston, of which he became vice president and director when the R. H. Stearns Company was incorporated. He was also secretary of several mining companies.

He was a member of the Leyden Church (Congregational) of Brookline and for ten years chairman of its Board of Trustees. He was a director of the Congregational Board of Ministerial Relief, of the Massachusetts Home Missionary Society, and of the Boston City Missionary Society, and also, until a few years before his death, of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association. He was a member, too, of the Congregational Club, the Twentieth Century Club, and the Appalachian Mountain Club.

He married 11 October 1887 Lucy Theodora Hyde, daughter of Alexander and Cornelia (Hull) Hyde of Lee, Mass., who survives him. Of their three children, Helen Hyde (Mrs. Edwin C. Robbins) died 3 April 1926, while Cornelia Hull (Mrs. Edward A. Manning) and Alexander Hyde Mossman, B.A. (Amherst, 1920), survive their father.

Mrs. Mary Louise (Lewis) Lovell, of Washington, D. C., elected a resident member in 1917 and made a Pilgrim Tercentenary member in 1919, was born in New York City 30 November 1844, the daughter of Arnold Angell and Mary Anne (Caldecott) Lewis, and died in Rome, Italy, 21 January 1927.*

Her grandfather, James Lewis, who was born 11 February 1767 and died 23 March 1850, married 11 January 1798, as his second wife,† Martha Angell, born 23 August 1779, died in March 1824, a daughter of Col. Israel Angell, an officer in the Revolution, and his first wife, Martha (Angell) Angell, and a descendant of Thomas[1] Angell, an associate with Roger Williams in the founding of Providence, R. I. Mrs. Lovell's father, Arnold Angell Lewis of New York, was born at South New Berlin, N. Y., 11 March 1814 and died 4 April 1899. Her mother, Mary Anne Caldecott, was born at Boston, England, 3 August 1812, the daughter of William Caldecott, and was married to Arnold Angell Lewis 3 April 1837.

*On account of delay in securing the necessary information for this memoir it was not possible to print it in the proper chronological order among the memoirs for 1927.

Mary Louise Lewis was married 24 December 1862 to Franklyn Hallett Lovell of New York, now deceased, son of George and Adeline (Hallett) Lovell of Massachusetts.

Mrs. Lovell was deeply interested in genealogical research, and in 1921 published a life of her great-grandfather, Col. Israel Angell, a volume of 360 pages, which is replete with historical and genealogical information.* She was a member of the Daughters of the Cincinnati and a life member of the New York Genealogical and Biographical Society. She had been a contributor to the REGISTER, and on the wall of the stair hall of the New England Historic Genealogical Society's house in Boston she placed a memorial tablet of marble, inscribed as follows: "To Roger Williams 1606/7–1683 and his wife Mary Barnard also to Thomas Angell 1617–1694 The Associate of Williams and his wife Alice Ashton Dedicated by their Descendant Louise Lewis Lovell Patria - Veritas - Fides"

Two children survive her, Isabel (Mrs. Grafton Duvall Dorsey), who has succeeded to her mother's Pilgrim Tercentenary membership in the Society, and Franklyn Hallett Lovell of Madison, N. J.

NOTES

It having come to the attention of this Society that certain genealogists and publishers have used the name of the Society in connection with their own enterprises, the Society again desires to state that it has NO genealogical representatives in this country or in England, nor is it in any way connected with any publications other than those that it issues over its own name at 9 Ashburton Place, Boston.

It has also been reported to the Society that certain paper salesmen have been telling members of the Society who were seeking durable paper for their publications that the paper used in this periodical is "one hundred per cent wood."

For more than fifty years the paper used for this magazine has been made to order by the same manufacturer, and since 1907 it has been made on the Society's formula and watermarked "N. E. H. G. S. Standard." Sample sheets, selected at random, have been examined by a competent chemist, whose certificates have shown that the paper complies with the requirements of the formula. This formula is in substantial agreement with the recommendations of the Committee on Deterioration of Paper, appointed by the Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, & Commerce, whose report (London, 1898) shows an exhaustive study of the subject. The leading German, English, and American chemists who have made a study of the manufacture of paper believe that paper properly made on such specifications will prove sufficiently lasting for publications of permanent value. This Society requires not less than 75% rag fibre, not over 25% wood fibre, freedom from all but the merest trace of chemicals used in the manufacture, and not over 10% clay filler.

Dean and Harrington Bible Records. — Dr. Cassie K. Turner of Portland, Me., has given to the New England Historic Genealogical Society a Bible leaf, on which is written the family record of John Dean, who was born at Dedham, Mass., in 1758 and lived at Francestown, N. H., from 1784 to 1806, when he moved to Palermo, Me., where he died in 1842. The leaf is badly worn and torn, especially at the top and on the left-hand margin, and only a few of the lines are now entirely legible; but from the names and dates given in Cochrane and Wood's "History of Francestown, N. H.," pp. 618–619, it has been possible to restore the mutilated or missing words, and in the copy of the record here given the restored letters and figures are enclosed in brackets. Further information about the family may be found in the "History of Francestown."

Historical Intelligence

Monnet Family Genealogy. — Mr. Orra Eugene Monnette, 350 South Oxford Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif., is preparing a supplemental volume to his "Monnet Family Genealogy," which was published in 1911. The family is found in the ancient Poitou (the modern La Vendée), France, before 1685; and members of it were in London, England, in 1688, and emigrated to America before 1700, settling on Staten Island, N. Y., and in Calvert County, Md. The surname appears as Monet, Monnet, or Monnett, and sometimes as Money or Monay. Mr. Monnette will pay for items (not previously obtained) furnished from original records, especially in Maryland and Virginia, before 1800, and will accept related lineages.

Genealogies in Preparation. — Persons of the several names are advised to furnish the compilers of these genealogies with records of their own families and other information which they think may be useful. We would suggest that all facts of interest illustrating family history or character be communicated, especially service under the United States Government, the holding of other offices, graduation from college or professional schools, and occupation, with places and dates of birth, marriage, residence, and death. All names should be given in full if possible. No initials should be used when the full name is known.

Crooker. — Jonathan[3] (Jonathan,[2] Jonathan[1]), born at Marshfield, Mass., 30 Apr. 1717, died at Pembroke, Mass., 6 Feb. 1793, by Clarabel Crooker, 11 Hilton Street, Hyde Park, Mass.

Ireland. — Thomas, died at Hempstead, Long Island, N. Y., in 1668/9, by Gordon Ireland, City Club, 55 West 44th Street, New York City.

Mosman. — James, born at Edinburgh, Scotland, 9 July 1626, died at Roxbury, Mass., in 1722, by Mrs. Frances A. (Mosman) Chase, 968 Washington Street, Stoughton, Mass.

Thomas. — George (John, Nathaniel, Jeremiah), born at Middleborough, Mass., 22 Oct. 1752, died at Woodstock, Vt., 5 July 1824, by Edna F. Crocker (Mrs. Henry G. Crocker), 1626 29th Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.
